Put Into Force Blockade on Financial Transactions, Including Loans, Bills of Exchange, Subscription for Shares.

SIR SAMUEL HOARE GOING TO GENEVA

Announcement Says He and Anthony Eden Are to Represent England in View of Forthcoming 'Important Decisions.'

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Great Britain imposed another sanction against Italy today with enforcement of an embargo on credit to the warring nation.

France announced similar action earlier in the day, the official journal promulgating a decree putting into effect financial limitations against Premier Mussolini's Government, the order including enforcement in French colonies and mandated territories.

A surprise announcement that Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, as well as Anthony Eden, would go to Geneva late this week to represent Britain in view of forthcoming "important decisions," led to a belief in some quarters that even further punitive measures soon would be undertaken.

British sources expressed hope that Hoare's presence at the League of Nations would lead to more definite Italian-Ethiopian "peace talks" than have been held. Hoare was expected to confine himself to committee work, with possible private meetings with Premier Pierre Laval, central figure in the European negotiations, and other leading statesmen.

British Bar on Credit.

Effective today, the British money market was forbidden to make loans to Italian banks in London. Acceptance or indorsement of bills of exchange for the benefit of Italians was prohibited and issuance or subscription for shares in Italian corporations was forbidden.

Any person in the United Kingdom, British colonies except those administered by dominions, protectorates and mandated territories who violates the provision of the new order may be jailed for not more than two years and subjected to heavy fines.

The first sanction applied was the arms embargo against Italy and the lifting of the embargo from Ethiopia.

Financial circles believed the new order in council did little more to regulate a situation which already had existed. These sources said most British bankers had virtually closed their channels of credit to Italian institutions as long ago as last summer.

The general view was that the sanction imposing a boycott on purchases from Italy and an embargo on export of key war products to Italy would constitute a far more grave risk to the equilibrium of trade.

Paper's Views on U. S. Statement.

The Times described Secretary of State Hull's recent statement of the United States' neutral position as "eminently satisfactory—particularly to this country where good understanding with America is universally accepted as one of the first principles of British policy and where, moreover, restrictions upon American action are thoroughly well-known and appreciated."

The newspaper, referring to President Roosevelt's invoking of the United States' neutrality measures, said "if in effect and intention they constitute a restraining pressure upon Italy, that also interprets the feeling of the American people who are deeply stirred by Italy's attack on a nation much weaker than herself, by her flagrant violation of the Kellogg pact and her disregard of all the principles which America seeks to establish in international intercourse."

24 Nations Have Joined in Boycott, 29 in Financial Bar.

GENEVA, Oct. 29.—An official League of Nations communique showed that up to noon today, 24 nations had agreed to take part in the buy-nothing-from-Italy boycott proposed by Great Britain and adopted by the League.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Evidence of a secret payment of $350,000 in cash to the late F. G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denver Post, by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey to silence that paper's criticism of a proposed natural gas franchise was brought out before the Federal Trade Commission here today.

The $350,000 was given to a special messenger in New York for delivery to Bonfils in Denver, in October, 1927, under the terms of an oral agreement, according to the report of Lewis G. Prichard, examiner for the commission. Prichard based his report on statements made by employes of the Standard Oil Co. and the Colorado Interstate Gas Co., a subsidiary controlled by Standard.

On the day that the payment was made to Bonfils, according to Prichard's testimony, the Denver Post carried a front-page editorial urging support for the franchise and the rates proposed in a special gas ordinance passed by the Denver City Council.

Denial by Bonfils' Daughter.

Affidavits were submitted by Helen C. Bonfils, daughter of the publisher, denying that Bonfils had ever accepted such a sum from Standard Oil. In another affidavit L. F. McMahon, auditor for the Post at the time of the payment, swore that there was no record of any such payment.

In another affidavit, Anne O'Neil who was Bonfil ' private secretary from 1922 to his death, Feb. 2, 1933, said that she was thoroughly familiar with all of Bonfils' financial transactions and that she had never seen any evidence that Bonfils had received such a sum.

Bonfils was a figure in the Teapot Dome scandal that involved members of the Harding Cabinet in charges of graft and collusion in connection with an oil lease to Harry F. Sinclair and Edward L. Doheny. It was shown before a Senate investigating committee that the publishers of the Denver Post, Bonfils and his partner, H. G. Tammen, had ceased their criticism of the oil lease at about the time that Sinclair had paid a large sum to compromise a suit contesting certain leaseholds. The publishers of the Post had had an interest in this suit and received part of the money that Sinclair paid to settle it. During a vigorous grilling by the late Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin chairman of the Senate committee, Bonfils insisted that the suit and the editorial policy of the paper had no connection.

$50,000 "to Influence Mayor."

The Colorado Interstate Gas Co., Standard subsidiary, paid large sums to the Public Service Commission of Colorado to aid it in obtaining a natural gas franchise and a natural gas rate ordinance in Denver, it was stated in the report. This included $50,000 for "influence" with "Mayor Stapleton of Denver in the matter of rate ordinance."

The payment to "influence" the Mayor, according to Prichard's statement, was made to Milton Smith, a Denver attorney. To Cities Service Co., also a large operator in the natural gas field, and ostensibly a rival of the Colorado Interstate Gas Co., was paid $26,750, according to Prichard's report, "for services of its engineers and employes in connection with the rate ordinance and other matters."

The franchise was approved Feb. 8, 1927, by Denver voters and six months later Mayor Stapleton signed a natural gas rate ordinance which had been passed by the City Council. On petition of a certain number of voters, the Council was required to submit such an ordinance to the voters in a referendum.

Denver Post's Change of Front.

The Denver Post, which, according to the record introduced today was in the coal business, led the fight for a referendum to defeat the natural gas rate ordinance.

"Articles appeared in the Denver Post," the record states, "opposing the natural gas rate ordinance until Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, acting for Colorado Interstate Gas Co., paid $350,000 to be delivered to the late F. G. Bonfils, editor of the Denver Post, which newspaper sometimes was designated by its publishers as 'the best newspaper in the U. S. A.'"

Headlines in the Post prior to the payment, according to the record, read, "Coal Men Plan Injunction in War Upon Natural Gas," "Gas Ordinance Opponents. Demand Big Rate Reduction," and "Referendum on Natural Gas to Be Sought."

On Oct. 27, the day the $350,000 was withdrawn by Standard Oil to be paid to Bonfils, according to the examiner's report, an article appeared supporting the ordinance.

MUSSOLINI RESTRICTS MEAT-EATING IN ITALY

Decrees Put Nation on Six-Month Diet to Combat League Sanctions.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 29.—Premier Mussolini today put the nation on a six months' diet to fight the sanctions imposed by the League of Nations. The first of the measures, effective Nov. 5, ordered restricted sale of meats to reduce the necessity of imports. Restrictive measures were put on public dining.

Mussolini also is preparing a plan to reduce the governmental use of paper and other supplies that are partly imported.

The first of the orders to become effective will close butcher shops on Tuesdays and on Wednesdays they cannot sell beef, poultry or pork. The butcher shops, in return for the restrictions, will be permitted to remain open Sundays until 11 a. m. Mussolini rejected the idea of bread cards or any other such restrictions.

Hotels, restaurants and dining cars will be forbidden to serve more than one meat or fish dish at a meal. To increase the food supply the fish industry promised to increase production. Restrictions on game have also been lifted to encourage its use as food. No regulations were placed on spaghetti and bread because the 1935 wheat crop was officially given as 282,000,000 bushels, which, plus the reserve stock, is considered sufficient to cover the nation's needs.

Mussolini took active command of the national defense against the expected sanctions. He summoned to his office all officials and industrial chiefs concerned and at two meetings placed before them the present situation and the probable effect of sanctions. Mussolini said the people had proved their ability to discipline themselves to obey and he had confidence in them once they knew the situation.

TWO MEN, BECALMED AT SEA, EAT CANDLES FOR 15 DAYS

French Scientists Later Lose 40-Foot Boat in Wreck in Hawaiian Islands.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Oct. 29.—A 15-day diet of tallow candle drippings and loss of their 40-foot boat, along with valuable scientific data, have not discouraged two French scientists, Capt. Eric Bisschop and Joseph Tatibouet.

The two, both members of the French Geographical Society, said today they would attempt to outfit a new expedition for South Sea exploration. Their junk-rigged vessel went aground and sank Saturday night in the Kalaupapa surf. Aboard was scientific material they had collected over a period of two years. Bisschop's greatest loss was a two-volume geographical manuscript. Before the wreck they were becalmed and were forced to eat tallow candles when their food supply gave out.

ITALIAN PATROLS ADVANCE 25 MILES FARTHER IN NORTH

Soldiers Reach Point Halfway From Adigrat to Makale, Which Is Next Objective in Drive.

NEW GAINS ON SOUTHERN FRONT

Somaliland Natives Rout Ethiopians in Ogaden Province and Capture 732 Rifles.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 29.—Italian patrols in Northern Ethiopia have penetrated 25 miles farther into the interior, an official communique says.

The communique, issued on the twenty-seventh day of hostilities, says the First Army Corps executed a reconnaissance at Hauzien, about 25 miles south of Adigrat, which the Italians hold, and halfway to Makale, the next objective of the Italian Eritrean army.

Other patrols to the west have conducted reconnaissance expeditions southwest of Aduwa as far as the Takkaze River, 30 miles from the old line, the communique says. They did not encounter important resistance.

On the Somaliland front, the communique says, native patrols from the Italian forces routed Ethiopian troops between Scillave and Gorahai in Ogaden Province, capturing 732 Ethiopian rifles.

"On the Eritrean front, Gen. Emilio de Bono communicates:

"Oct. 28, a detachment of the First Army Corps executed a reconnaissance upon Hauzien, the capital of the Haramat region.

"Various prominent inhabitants of the district, which has not yet been garrisoned by our troops, presented themselves to the high command at Aduwa to make acts of submission.

"On the Somaliland front, patrols of Dubats (native Somaliland soldiers) put to flight groups of armed Ethiopians between Scillave and Gorahai.

"Numerous submissions of chiefs also continue on this front. There have been 732 rifles captured.

Italians Bomb Magalo; Many Ethiopian Soldiers There.

By Exchange Telegraph.

WITH THE ITALIAN FORCES IN ETHIOPIA, Oct. 29.—Italian war planes flew over Magalo, 225 miles southeast of Addis Ababa, today, and found the town strongly fortified with a large concentration of Ethiopian troops.

The planes were met with artillery fire. Several bombs were dropped, the Italians reporting that at least two Ethiopian anti-aircraft guns were silenced and many fires started. The Ethiopians were said to have fled in panic at the approach of the planes, which returned safely to their base.

BOXER HANGED IN ENGLAND FOR KILLING HIS SWEETHEART

Mrs. Van Der Elst Conducts Protest Demonstration as Raymond Bousquet Is Put to Death.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Raymond Henry Bousquet, light-heavyweight boxer, known as Del Fontaine, was hanged in Wandsworth prison today for the murder of his sweetheart, Hilda Meeks, 21-year-old waitress.

As he went to his death, 20 men employed by Mrs. J. Van Der Elst walked up and down outside the prison with placards denouncing capital punishment. The mechanism in a sound truck played hymns. Mrs. Van Der Elst is the leader in a movement against the death penalty.

Sir John Simon, Home Secretary, yesterday rejected an appeal from the National Union of Boxers for a reprieve. Members of the union said that before the killing, Bousquet behaved abnormally owing to a condition of "punch drunkenness."

Bousquet was convicted in the Old Bailey last month of murdering Miss Meeks, on the night of July 20. The girl's mother was shot and seriously wounded at the same time.

MUENCHES LOSE APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT; MUST PRODUCE BABY TOMORROW

'Gigantic Conspiracy in Restraint of Trade,' Says Counsel for Carter Co. President.

'NATIONALIZING OF ALL INDUSTRY' AIM

Government Argues Product Is Interstate—Supreme Court Ruling Is Purpose of Suit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — The Guffey soft coal control act was assailed today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court as "the most gigantic conspiracy in restraint of trade ever arising under the anti-trust laws." The accusation was made by counsel for James Walter Carter, president of the Carter Coal Co., during trial of the first suit challenging constitutionality of the coal act.

Carter is seeking to restrain directors of his company from complying with the producers' code prescribed by the act and also to prevent the Government from collecting the so-called "compliance tax" of 15 per cent of the sale price of coal at the mine. The law provides that operators who accept the code will be entitled to a rebate of 90 per cent of the tax.

Both Sides Agree on Aim.

In response to a direct question by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, attorneys for both sides agreed their primary desire was to get the case before the United States Supreme Court as early as possible.

Justice Adkins put his question after William D. Whitney, attorney for Carter, sought to have the question of the court's jurisdiction stricken from the Government's answer. This met with opposition from Assistant Attorney-General Dickinson and Whitney withdrew his motion.

Declaring the act was in violation of the anti-trust laws, Whitney asserted every member of the producers' code would be "a conspirator in restraint of trade."

"This is the most gigantic conspiracy in restraint of trade ever arising under the anti-trust laws," Whitney added.

He recalled the Guffey bill originally would have exempted code members from the anti-trust laws but that the protests of Senator Borah resulted in elimination of this provision before passage of the act.

Hammering at the tax provisions of the legislation, Whitney said their effect would be to increase the price of coal and added this would be "injurious" to the operators in that it would force consumers to turn to cheaper competitive fuels.

In opposing the motion to strike the motion of jurisdiction from the Government's answer, Dickinson said the Government was anxious to have a determination of the constitutionality of the law, but, at the same time, also desired that all possible questions be raised now to prevent future allegations that any issues had been evaded.

"An Ingenious Means."

Whitney termed the act "an ingenious means" of getting around decisions of the Supreme Court holding that Congress has no right to fix hours and wages in industry. He declared the Government's argument is that mining contemplates interstate commerce and that if upheld, such a premise would "nationalize all industry." Nationalization is in the air, he said.

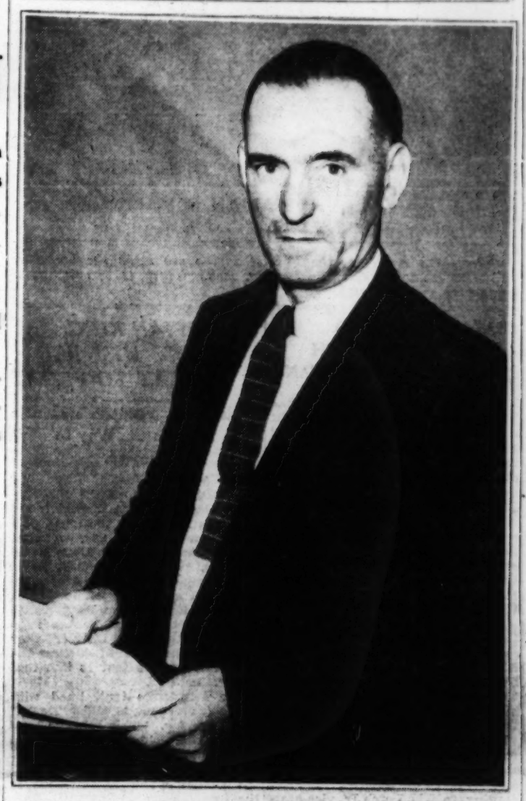

"Getting a whiff of that air," he went on, "Congress proceeded to nationalize one industry. Congress is trying to bludgeon us into this statute."

Dickinson told the Court the law applied to a national industry, 85 per cent of the product of which moves in interstate commerce." He asserted the tax was not used for the purpose of "extending the power of Congress into a field of regulation not conferred by the Constitution."

GARNER AND BYRNS TALK WITH MIKADO

Vice-President and Speaker of House Have 10-Minute Audience With Emperor.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Oct. 29.—Vice-President Garner and Speaker Byrns were received in audience by Emperor Hirohito of Japan today. Notwithstanding some joking by the Americans when crossing the Pacific, on whether they were to appear in socks, they kept their shoes on, no foreign visitor having been asked for two generations to remove his shoes.

They remained for 10 minutes talking with the sovereign through a Foreign Office interpreter in the famous Phoenix Hall, audience chamber of the palace.

Asked about his audience, Garner replied: "I cannot talk about that. It was a private audience, and it would be highly improper to comment on what His Majesty said."

"His Majesty is most gracious," Byrns commented.

A few hours later, a strenuous round of official and unofficial formalities over, the Garner party left on the liner President Grant for Manila, where they will attend inauguration of the Philippine Commonwealth.

Garner first was a guest at a luncheon tendered by Premier Keisuke Okada and Foreign Minister Koki Hirota. He tried chop sticks on such dishes as raw fish and other sea foods.

At a reception in the Embassy, the Vice-President and his wife were hosts to high Japanese officials and various foreign diplomats. The Garners and Mr. and Mrs. Byrns were in the receiving line.

For two hours they shook hands with members of the Cabinet and other officials.

A camera incident said to have involved the Congressional party of the Vice-President, in which someone took a picture of a fortified zone, led to the questioning of a chauffeur of a sightseeing automobile assigned to the group last night. The chauffeur was released after the questioning and the incident was declared closed.

Among the occupants of the machine were Congressman Bert Lord (Rep.), New York, Mrs. Loid, and the Puerto Rican resident commissioner, Santiago Iglesias.

TWO MEN GET YEAR FOR EXTORTION PLOT

Donald Atterbury, automobile salesman, and Harold L. Shortal, a delicatessen proprietor, were sentenced today to a year in jail and fined $500 each by Federal Judge Davis on a charge of conspiracy to extort money from Dr. Bert P. Bebee, 3214 South Grand boulevard. Judge Davis granted a stay of execution to Nov. 11 to permit the defendants to arrange their business affairs.

The two pleaded guilty last May 8 when an associate, John F. Mullin, was sentenced to a year in jail and fined $500. The fourth man indicted, Julius H. Stean, has not responded on his $10,000 bond and is a fugitive from justice.

Dr. Bebee reported to the Department of Justice that Mullin came to him last November and demanded $20,000 under a threat to report the physician to Federal income tax authorities. Dr. Bebee agreed to meet the men in front of the Coronado Hotel, but on Nov. 9 sent his woman office assistant there with a dummy package, which he had informed the extortionists would contain $20,000. The four men kept the appointment and were arrested by Federal agents. Stean, a former medical student, at one time was employed by Dr. Bebee.

GEESE REVIVED WITH BRANDY

25 of 27 Swept Over Niagara Falls Recovering.

By the Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 29.—Brandy fed with a medicine dropper revived 25 of 27 wild geese which lived after being carried over Niagara Falls while a large flock rested in dangerous waters above the falls Sunday and yesterday.

Canadian Royal Northwest Mounted Police rescued the geese from the rapids below the falls and hurried them to a bird sanctuary near Queenstown. There R. W. Sheppard, district inspector for the Canadian Department of Agriculture, fed the geese the brandy. Two of the birds died, but the others soon were honking wildly. They will be kept at the refuge until they are considered fit to fly.

HEARINGS TO BE RESUMED HERE ON ANNA WARE'S SUIT AT 10 A. M

Five Judges Concur, Leaving Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh of St. Louis Court of Appeals Free to Proceed.

INFANT NEEDED AS PHYSICAL EVIDENCE

Unwed Mother's Counsel Had Pointed Out That Lapse of Time Would Make Identification Increasingly Difficult.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 29.—The State Supreme Court today refused to issue a writ of prohibition against the St. Louis Court of Appeals in the Anna Ware habeas corpus proceedings.

This means that the baby now in the Muench home, which Anna Ware claims as her own, must be produced in the St. Louis Court of Appeals at 10 a. m. tomorrow in compliance with the order issued by Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh.

The vote for denial of the writ was unanimous, all the five Judges who participated concurring.

Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench and her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, tried to keep the baby away from the courtroom by taking the issue to the Supreme Court, which decided against them.

Five Judges Consider Case.

Five of the seven judges of the Supreme Court participated in the deliberations on the case today. They were Acting Chief Justice Charles T. Hays, Judges William Frank, Ernest C. Gantt, C. A. Leedy Jr., and John C. Collett.

After deliberating separately, beginning at 9 o'clock this morning, the five Judges were called into session behind closed doors at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At 2:35 o'clock Acting Chief Justice Hays walked out of the conference room and announced to the press that the application for a writ of prohibition had been denied. He added that here would be no written memorandum.

Chief Justice George Robb Ellison, who was called to Oklahoma last night after the death of a relative, announced he would record his vote on his return to the capital tomorrow. Judge Ernest M. Tipton, brother of Mrs. Muench, had disqualified himself.

As has been told, two of the judges, William F. Frank and Ernest C. Gantt, voted yesterday to deny the Muench application forthwith, but the other four judges agreed to give Muench counsel a day's additional time to prepare suggestions to the court.

Arguments of Counsel.

These suggestions comprised nine pages of argument and citation of precedents, closely paralleling those previously advanced in a motion to quash Commissioner Limbaugh's order for the production of the child, and in the application for the writ.

Counsel repeated that Commissioner Limbaugh's order violated the constitutional rights of their clients against unreasonable search and seizure, declared the order of production was too broad and repeated the contention that the order was beyond the proper jurisdiction of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

Beyond the issues in the case, it was stated, "the Court should consider the right of this baby to remain undisturbed in the ideal surroundings it has become accustomed to," until evidence has been produced to show definitely that it

HITLER ORDERS DAMPER PUT ON NEO-PAGANISM

Said to Have Told Dr. Rosenberg to 'Stop Nonsense' of 'Heroes and Gods for Germans Only.'

CATHOLIC CHURCHES MUST FLY SWASTIKA

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The Government added fresh fuel yesterday to the conflict over whether Nazi or papal flags should be displayed on Catholic churches in the third Reich. It issued three new decrees providing for flying of the blood-red Nazi banner bearing the swastika, warning against any infringements of this rule, and declaring failure to submit would mean arrests and fines for churchmen.

Clergymen, however, still maintained that only the yellow and white emblem of the Vatican should be flown.

The Nazi flag was displayed over the St. Hedwig Catholic cathedral in Berlin recently, but almost at half-staff and only on the left pole of three, the other two staffs being bare. St. Mathias Church showed no flag.

Dr. Rosenberg Admonished.

The issue of the Nazi and papal flags was one of the topics discussed in a conference between Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler and Count Conrad von Preysing-Lichtenegg-Moos, Roman Catholic bishop of Berlin.

Hitler, religious circles heard, told the bishop that Dr. Alfred Rosenberg's philosophy of a German faith with heroes and gods for Germans only no longer will be tolerated. Also attributed to Hitler were prohibitions of cult festivals and the further construction of open air amphitheaters in the Germanic style and spirit where such gatherings might be conducted.

The admonition, "Stop your nonsense!" also was reported to have been given by Hitler to Rosenberg, Baldur von Schirach, Reich's youth-leader; Richard Walther Darre, agricultural commissioner, and Heinrich Himmler, chief of secret police, all recognized neo-pagan leaders.

Another matter dealt with at the conference, at which Hitler was said to have done all the talking, was understood to have been the arrest and imprisonment of Bishop Petrus Legge of Meissen for contravention of the Devisen laws. Restrictions on the Catholic press also were discussed.

Statement by Church Ministry.

Meanwhile, the Reich Church Ministry of Hans Kerrl issued the following statement: "Reichschancellor Hitler, acting at the request of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht (president of the Reichsbank and Economics Minister), has had country and district leaders advised that 'Hitler will lead the party along the path of positive Christianity and not along the false path of anti-Christian doctrine.'"

Kerrl himself, during a party meeting at Limburg, declared:

"By Article 24 of our program we recognized positive Christianity. That has nothing to do with dogma, but means free faith.

"The essence of National Socialism is faith, it is an act of love. Therefore, National Socialism is positive Christianity and love toward one's neighbor and neighbors, not primarily the Hottentots and Zulus, but toward Germans' compatriots.

"Should not the representatives of the Christian confession recognize that with the Nazi seizure of power the time came when true Christianity would be made a potent force? National Socialism must demand that each party member be religious, but we don't bother about which confession he wants to belong to."

Secret police entered Protestant confessional church offices recently and seized some printed matter. Max Amann, president of the Reich Press Chamber, ordered that leaflets and other circulars issued by churches should be subjected to censorship.

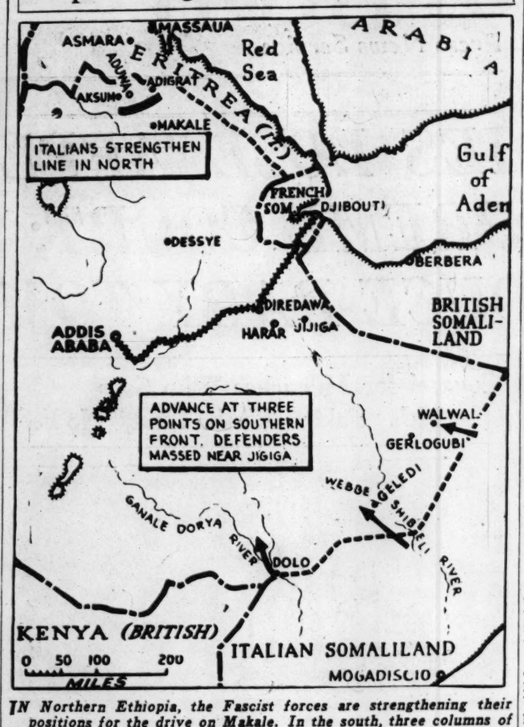

SALE OF TWO OIL COMPANIES ORDERED BY FEDERAL JUDGE

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—Sale of the Richfield Oil Co. of California and the Pan-American Petroleum Co., in receivership for nearly four years, was ordered by United States District Judge William P. James yesterday.

The Cities Service Co. and the Universal Consolidated Oil Co. objected to the sale. The latter contended the properties had not been segregated in parcels that would properly enable their company to obtain a correct share of the price received for specific properties against which it holds a claim. The Cities Service Co. of California previously submitted the only bid for the property. The Standard's bid was about $24,000,000, but this offer was withdrawn recently because the company announced, of changed conditions in the oil industry.

The article read, in part: "The fight against the introduction of natural gas into Colorado should be dropped right now. The petition for repeal of the ordinance establishing natural gas rates should be withdrawn. The Denver Post and thousands of citizens made a determined fight against natural gas to protect the jobs of the thousands of coal miners in Colorado. This fight has not been appreciated by the people for whose interest it was waged. So the thing to do is to drop it.

"The sooner we get natural gas the better. It will be better fuel than coal. It will be cheaper. And it will be dependable. And when Colorado gets natural gas, we won't have to worry about a coal strike every spring and fall."

Copy of Check in Evidence.

Later in today's hearing there was put into the record a photostatic copy of a Standard Oil check for $350,000 made out to J. B. Luse. According to F. H. Lerch Jr., vice-president and treasurer of Colorado Interstate and employed by Standard, Luse obtained the $350,000 in cash in New York and took it to Bonfils in Denver, Prichard stated in his record. Prichard said that he also obtained information about this alleged transaction from Christy Payne, executive of Standard Oil of New Jersey who at one time took an active part in the development of the Colorado Interstate Co.

"Mr. Lerch stated," Prichard's record says, "that no written agreement was entered into and there was only an oral agreement with F. G. Bonfils that the Denver Post would discontinue its unfavorable attitude toward the referendum on the rate ordinance granted to Public Service Co. of Colorado regarding the distribution of natural gas in Denver."

Figuring the Cost.

Considerable correspondence was put into the record to show just how active Payne's part was in the development of the Colorado Interstate Co. and the negotiations leading to approval of the franchise. Milton Smith's bill for legal services was passed along to him and in June of 1928 he wrote as follows to W. S. Fitzpatrick, of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co., regarding that bill:

"Some of the bills from the attorneys have come in and I am sending herewith the bill and letter rendered by Mr. Milton Smith, together with Mr. Hall's comments. I have discussed this with Mr. Smith, who was here recently, and while he is not satisfied with $50,000 I told him that it was all that I could recommend. As a matter of fact, his influence and friendship with Mayor Stapleton did more to get favorable action on the franchise and eliminate the bugs from certain features of it, especially the industrial gas feature, than any other single factor. These helpful things are not charged for on a strictly fee basis.

$50,000 for "Valuable Advice."

"We have also had a bill from Mr. Andrews for $50,000 for his very valuable advice, his three trips to New York and his long period of examination and certifying of titles, on which for many weeks his whole staff was engaged. Mr. Hall and I both think his charges very reasonable, but before paying Mr. Milton Smith, however, I would like to have your approval.

"I have not yet had the bill from the Equitable Trust Co. for their charges, so that shock is yet to come.

"I have just heard from Mr. Smith this morning reporting that he has secured a remarkably low and satisfactory valuation from the Tax Commission of Colorado for the year 1928, of $2,910,320. This has been very ably handled."

Coal Strike Given as Reason.

The Denver Post, according to Prichard's report, gave as the reason for its changed point of view in the article published on the date Bonfils is alleged to have received the $350,000, the existence of the coal strike in Colorado. The editorial said:

"Denver hospitals, with their thousands of patients—sick or maimed, men, women, children—are facing a coal famine. The strike has cut off their fuel supply. If the hospitals were heated with gas this couldn't happen. The purpose of this strike is to shut down every mine in the State and to prevent a single lump of coal from being mined in Colorado. There is a lesson in this coal strike for Denver and every other city in the State. It is: Put in natural gas and don't be at the mercy of a coal strike."

Bonfils and his partner, Tammen, were the subject of a recent biography, "Timberline," which describes many adventures they shared in the course of building up the Denver Post.

Today's hearing was a part of the Trade Commission's investigation of utilities. The hearing was conducted by W. B. Wooden of the commission's legal staff.

ETHIOPIAN KING SENDS HIS RED TENT TO FRONT

Shelter of Emperor's Double Also on the Way to Dessye.

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 29.—Emperor Haile Selassie's imperial red tent was shipped to the troop concentration center of Dessye today, together with that of Haile Likamokwas, the King's double.

The imperial tent is small, obscure and completely camouflaged, and even if Italian military planes should sight the red canvas in a bombing attack on Dessye, they could not be sure of hitting the Emperor, for his tent is like that of Likamokwas.

The Emperor's tent, lined with rich silk brocades, is called "Desta," meaning joy. This shelter and the red silk, gold-fringed, bejeweled ceremonial umbrella are indispensable parts of the equipment of both the Emperor and Likamokwas at the front.

The umbrella was provided by the Coptic Christian Church, while the tent was furnished by a high dignatary named Ras Araya, who was in return allowed free land exempt from taxation.

PHILADELPHIA PAPER INDICTED FOR ATTACK ON OFFICIAL

State Attorney-General Charges Criminal Libel; Venue Issue Before Supreme Court.

By the Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 29.—A few hours after a grand jury in Jefferson County indicted the Philadelphia Inquirer, the State Supreme Court granted an order directing Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti to show why there should not be a change of venue in the trial of his criminal libel charges against the newspaper.

The true bill was returned at Brookville, in the Attorney-General's home county, and it named the Inquirer and two of its officers, John T. Custis, editor, and Charles A. Tyler, president and general manager. The charges were based on an article, which Margiotti said was defamatory, in the Inquirer last month. Margiotti was the only witness who appeared before the grand jury. The indictment contained two allegations of libel.

Raymond Brown, counsel for Margiotti, said one count charges the article was defamatory in charging the Attorney-General with "using his office for unscrupulous purposes." The other count, he said, alleges defamation through charging Margiotti "as an attorney-at-law, with improper and unethical conduct."

Farmer Beats Wife, Kills Himself.

ELGIN, Ill., Oct. 29.—Jake Nesler, 42 years old, a farmer of Hanover Township, Cook County, shot himself to death in his home seven miles east of here yesterday after beating his wife into insensibility. State police said Mrs. Nesler told them her husband came home intoxicated.

NEW YORK RAID ON SMALL LOAN RACKET

27 Alleged "Shylocks" Arrested in Effort to Break Up Usury Gang.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey has begun a fight on Manhattan's small-loan racket today.

Fifteen squads of investigators, striking at once in surprise raids yesterday, dragged in 27 alleged usurers.

Other arrests will follow, the prosecutor indicated, until he cleans out the "Shylock" racket.

The loan racket poured profits of $200,000 a week into the money lenders' pockets on an estimated $1,000,000-a-week business, the Russell Sage Foundation declared.

Most of those in custody, Dewey said, are "six-for-five boys"—they lend $5 today and demand $6 for principal and interest next week.

Methods of Collections.

If the loan is not paid, the investigation disclosed, "strong-arm collectors" are sent after the borrower.

The victim is forced to agree to additional loans to pay off the original debt. He is threatened with—and often has received—bodily injury if he refuses to build up the debt.

The raids followed three months of inquiry into the allegedly illegal loan business which has victimized WPA employes, clerks, stenographers, laborers and other low-salaried employes.

With the individual complaints before them, detectives last week began visits to loan offices which were disguised as clothing and fur stores, novelty companies and bridge clubs.

While the roundup proceeded, more than 300 complainants gathered in Dewey's office. As the prisoners were brought into an adjoining room, the borrowers identified them through peepholes.

Paid $225 on $5 Loan.

One victim said he had borrowed $5 originally, had paid off $225 and still owed $25. Many women were bitter in their complaints against an "open air" lender who did business from a park bench.

Dewey's aids told of the work of "gorillas" used to collect overdue principal or interest. Sometimes the Emperor, for his tent is like that of Likamokwas.

The Emperor's tent, lined with rich silk brocades, is called "Desta," meaning joy. This shelter and the red silk, gold-fringed, bejeweled ceremonial umbrella are indispensable parts of the equipment of both the Emperor and Likamokwas at the front.

The umbrella was provided by the Coptic Christian Church, while the tent was furnished by a high dignatary named Ras Araya, who was in return allowed free land exempt from taxation.

In other instances, the victims were abducted and threatened with death.

In many cases, the officers asserted, borrowers were "persuaded" to induce their friends and business associates to patronize certain loan sharks.

Dewey announced the names of only 12 of the 27 prisoners. He indicated he would ask for high bail and immediate trials for all.

The specific charges against the alleged usurers will probably be exacting usurious interest and lending money without a license, he said.

Gangster Is Arrested.

Among those arrested was Oscar Shapiro, who said he was living on borrowed time.

"The finger is on me," Shapiro said when he appeared in the police lineup with 23 others.

Shapiro is charged with murder in connection with the killing of Abie Meer in Brooklyn, Sept. 15. He had been in Philadelphia since the day after Meer's body was found and returned to New York only two days ago, he said.

Oscar is the only living brother of four, the other three, Meyer, Irving and Willie, having been killed in gangland warfare, each trussed up and shot to death.

The money lending racket was, according to police theory, one of the illicit enterprises in which 'Dutch' Schultz was involved before his death last week.

STORM FORCES ORPHIR TO LEAVE SUNKEN SHIP

By GILBERT McALLISTER.

(Copyright, 1935.)

ABOARD SALVAGE SHIP ORPHIR, Oct. 29.—Instead of being able to send Diver Jim Jarratt down yesterday for a second dive to identify the hulk we are sure is the Lusitania, the Orphir found itself in a storm so severe that the mooring cables had to be cut to save the ship.

The winds increased and soon were tearing in from the open Atlantic in full gale force. The Orphir strained at the cables attaching it to the mooring buoys. It perched on a large wave and then smashed down till the nose was under water.

Capt. Henry Russell showed great anxiety as the ropes threatened to break at any moment. If the salvage ship had gone into the trough of a wave with the fore and aft moorings holding it there, it would have been all over for us. A succession of breakers coming over the vessel would have swamped and sunk it.

"Cut the stern moorings!" Capt. Russell ordered, and seamen Mitchell, Starvos and Walsh hacked away with hatchets and knives.

The Orphir took another big sea. Then it went over the next comber and rode in comparative safety at the port buoy. But it was impossible to ride out the storm in that position so Capt. Russell ordered the remaining moorings cut.

We made the shelter of the lower cove of Kinsale, but not before all the crockery in the saloon had been smashed and more water shipped than ever before in the salvage ship's storm wracked career.

Two End 22,000-Mile Flight.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Harold Farquhar, British diplomat-flyer, and Fritz Beiler, German aviator, landed at Heston Airdrome at 4:20 this afternoon, arriving from Paris to terminate a 22,000-mile flight which began in Mexico City last August. The flight proceeded from Mexico City to New York across Canada, Alaska, Siberia, China, India and Eastern and Northern Africa.

Britain and France Impose Financial Bar on Italy

The communique indicated that the same countries have promised to apply the second feature of the economic boycott, namely, an embargo on the exportation to Italy of certain key products vital to the manufacture of arms and the implements of war.

The application of financial sanctions against Italy has been accepted by 29 countries. They are: The Union of South Africa, Australia, Belgium, Great Britain, Bulgaria, China, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Greece, Guatemala, India, Iraq, Iran, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, The Netherlands, Norway, New Zealand, Poland, Rumania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Russia and Yugoslavia.

Arms Embargo Imposed by 38.

Revised figures show that 38 countries have agreed to the arms embargo against Italy. They are the Union of South Africa, Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Great Britain, Bulgaria, Chile, China, Colombia, Cuba, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Greece, Guatemala, India, Iraq, Iran, Irish Free State, Latvia, Liberia, Lithuania, Luxemburg, Norway, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Poland, Rumania, Siam, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Russia, Uruguay and Yugoslavia.

Eight nations have agreed to the mutual aid project by which countries hard hit as a result of applying the economic boycott will be helped by other states through an increase of their exportations to those countries. These nations are the Union of South Africa, Denmark, Guatemala, Liberia, New Zealand, Poland, Switzerland and Russia.

The buy-nothing-from-Italy boycott applies to all goods other than gold and silver bullion and coin consigned from, produced in or manufactured in Italy or Italian possessions.

Sanctions Machinery Plans.

Officials said the sanctions would be placed in the hands of committees to make them effective. The general staff for sanctions of 52 nations will meet Thursday to fix the date for enforcement of the double-barreled economic boycott. Officials said the general staff also would definitely set up machinery to watch application of the sanctions. Permanent committees, the authorities said, would see that the economic blockade was as effective as possible.

The great net being spread around Italy was reinforced by Russia's acceptance of an economic boycott and international circles believed neither Germany nor Japan would do anythng to embarrass the League. Switzerland had agreed to apply the arms embargo and to restrict purchases of Italian goods to an amount equaling the financial value of the goods Switzerland imports to Italy.

League officials considered Austria the only possible serious break. An Austrian spokesman asserted that his nation could do little to help Italy in the approaching crisis, being unlikely to sell much because of what he called probable inability to pay.

Praise for U. S. Note.

The international newspaper, Journale des Nations, praised the recent United States note to the League as representing political nearness to collective peace and furnishing an example for other non-members of the League.

"Secretary Hull's communication particularly mentions the anti-war pact proposed by Argentina and signed at Rio de Janeiro in 1933," said the paper. "The reason for this reference is that Foreign Minister Carlos Saavedra Lamas' pact contains sanctions.

"The teeth which some men wanted put in the Briand-Kellogg pact are found in Saavedra Lamas' pact, of which the United States is a signatory."

Premier Laval to Leave Thursday for Geneva Conference.

Woman Killed in Fall at Hotel.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—A woman who fell to her death today from the seventh floor of the Washington Hotel was identified as Mrs. Rosamond Batchelder Hodges of 1040 Park avenue, New York. Accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Batchelder, she had come here Sunday for a rest. The victim of a breakdown following the death last summer of her husband, John K. Hodges of New York, she had been in a hospital until recently under treatment for a nervous disorder. Her body crashed through a skylight to the concrete floor of the kitchen.

MONGOLIANS REJECT DEMAND OF JAPAN

Soviet Republic Closely Related to Russia Refuses to Admit Agent of Manchoukuo.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 29.—The Mongolian Peoples republic has refused a Japanese-Manchoukuoan demand for a permanent agency in Ulan Bator, the Mongolian capital.

Flatly, but in conciliatory language, the republic rejected the demand, characterized as an ultimatum.

Earlier Soviet dispatches from the troubled area have carried threats to invade Ulan Bator and parts of Eastern Mongolia if this and other demands, were not met.

Anxiety in Moscow.

Anxiety over the situation, reflected in the Moscow press, was based on two points.

One was that the republic, although nominally independent, is fashioned on a Soviet pattern and maintains close relations with Moscow. The other was that encroachments of Japan and Manchoukuo on republic territory would put Tokio and its sponsored state, which was carved out of Chinese territory, in touch with another long strip of Soviet ground.

The Mongolian Government expressed regret "that the government of Manchoukuo is again resorting to ultimatums."

Such methods, said the reply, "cannot contribute to a friendly solution of the problem, and needlessly sharpen relations."

It added the Mongolian government "sees no reason for an agent in Ulan Bator," and hopes that "the Manchoukuan side will renounce its present methods" and "give greater consideration to Mongolian proposals."

Will Permit Two Agents.

The Mongolians will permit two Manchoukuan agents at border points. The Japanese and Manchoukuoans insist on a third at Ulan Bator, all empowered to act as Manchoukuan representatives on mixed committees to settle boundary disputes.

The Japanese themselves, dispatches to the Soviet press have said, demanded also the right to build their own communication line from Ulan Bator into Manchoukuo.

The Moscow press repeatedly has charged Japan with making moves designed to make war on Russia eventually.

CELEBRATE HARRY E WILKEN'S 63rd BIRTHDAY TODAY

FULL PINT 99¢

Yes folks, that's my 63rd birthday. And you might say I've been distilling a good part of that time. It comes to 43 years of whiskey making, when you go to figuring it up. Fact is my Dad was making whiskey even before my time. And all my boys at the table here—they're down at the distillery carrying on the Wilken notion of good whiskey so to speak.

So you get the idea of what I mean by the Wilken Family Whiskey. And if I might say so, it's something you'll smack your lips over. Real tasty-like, you know, and mild and smooth as ever can be. Leastwise that's what everybody is saying.

Naturally I shouldn't be telling you how good it is and all that—seeing our own family is responsible for it. But honestly I'm proud of it—and proud of my boys that helped their old man make it—and maybe on account of my birthday and all, you'll pardon me. I'd like awful well for you to try it. You'll find it real reasonable!

WARNERS BALKED AT DEAL BECAUSE OF HARRY KOPLAR

S. B. Jeffries Testifies Movie Firm Refused to Have Any Connection With Veteran Showman.

CALLED ALLY OF FANCHON & MARCO

Described as 'Obstreperous' by Witness — Lawyer 'Never Yielded' on Control in Negotiations.

The figure of Harry Koplar, veteran St. Louis film exhibitor, has been drawn into the movie conspiracy trial in Federal Judge Moore's court as the presentation of the defense got under way.

Sam B. Jeffries, a St. Louis lawyer for Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., who began testifying yesterday and resumed the stand today as the first defense witness, brought up Koplar's name. Koplar, who started showing pictures in oldtime theaters and attained an important place in the Skouras chain, has often been at odds with Warner officials as their paths crossed in attempts to control the business here.

Corporate interests of Warners, Paramount and R-K-O and a group of their executives are on trial for alleged violation of the anti-trust law in withholding films from the Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters since Fanchon & Marco gained control of these houses last year.

Jeffries related that he learned Koplar was in the Fanchon & Marco deal and promptly reported this by telephone to Warners' general counsel in New York.

Learns of Lease Offer.

In December, 1933, or the next month, Jeffries said, he first learned of the offer of Allen L. Snyder, engineer, to lease the three theaters from the bondholders' committee. Snyder eventually obtained them, turning management over to F. & M.

"I was certain this was Fanchon & Marco," Jeffries went on, with reference to the Snyder offer. "A few days later I was apprised it was Fanchon & Marco, Harry C. Arthur Jr. (an F. & M. executive) and Harry Koplar. This was strengthened a couple of days later, when Koplar came to my office and said he was interested heavily in the deal. I asked Thomas N. Dysart (chairman of the bondholders' committee) about it and he said he didn't know Koplar was interested."

The witness quoted Herman Starr, a Warner official and one of the defendants, as telling Dysart that Warners would not sell films to F. & M. or Koplar because "we are not dealing with Harry Koplar or any company with which he is connected; we are going to operate our own theaters in St. Louis, if we have to acquire them."

His Opinion of Koplar.

Jeffries added that either he or Starr explained to Dysart that they would not deal with Koplar because "he had been obstreperous and unfriendly, mean, had a bad disposition and mistreated Warner Bros. ever since they had been in St. Louis and ever since they had bought Koplar out in 1928."

An unsuccessful effort was made to introduce decrees and other papers relative to the "Koplar receivership suits" against Skouras Bros. Enterprises, a holding company, and for its subsidiary, St. Louis Amusement Co., operator of a neighborhood movie chain. Koplar figured in that litigation, which resulted in appointment of receivers for the two concerns, which Warners controlled, in November, 1931. Lately they have been operated under the trustee in bankruptcy for Skouras Bros. The Court sustained a Government objection to these documents.

Continuing the effort to bring out evidence about the Koplar litigation, former Senator James A. Reed of Kansas City, a Warner lawyer, drew from Jeffries the statement that Jeffries had told the bondholders' committee Sept. 18, 1934, that the litigation had been costly to Warners and had "tied up" their business here.

At the conclusion of this line of questioning, Assistant Attorney-General Russell Hardy asked that the jury be instructed not to consider this testimony as fact, but merely as the witness' statement of a situation. The Court so instructed the jury. Hardy's objections to other questions along the same line were sustained.

With this, Reed's face flushed. He tossed his head, threw his hands in the air and said: "If your honor please, I don't want to be constantly objecting, but I think your honor is wrong." Launching into an argument on the point, he conceded that existence of an exhibition monopoly here that was hurtful to Warners' interests, if shown, could not condone any illegal act by Warners, but he insisted that Warners "had the right to show conditions existing which caused them to do any act they might have done." The defense has contended that F. & M. had a theater monopoly here.

Judge Moore, who had been leaning forward, leaned back as the argument progressed. "If your honor

Judge Moore, who had been leaning forward, leaned back as the argument progressed. "If your honor is impatient with me, I won't take your time," Reed commented. "I'm not impatient with you, Senator; proceed with your argument," the Judge replied. Reed proceeded.

The argument was in the presence of the jury, which heretofore had been excluded during the numerous debates on legal points.

Three Warner Proposals.

Jeffries discussed three successive proposals by Warners to the bondholders' committee to take over the theaters, by substituting new bonds for old and putting up not more than $400,000 cash. The committee rejected Warners' offers because Warners wanted to control the stock of the reorganized business. To the apparent astonishment of his associate counsel, Jeffries testified, "I never yielded on the proposition of control." The Government had been emphasizing the same point.

MUENCHES LOSE, BABY MUST BE IN COURT TOMORROW

is the child of Anna Ware. Only after evidence has established that it is Anna Ware's baby would the Court of Appeals have the right to order the baby into court, it was contended.

In suggestions filed yesterday, counsel for Anna Ware urged the Court to act promptly, saying that the baby was needed in court for completion of the evidence, and that with the lapse of time the possibility of identification of the child would become increasingly remote.

Mrs. Muench Confers With Commissioner; Warned by Him.

Dr. and Mrs. Ludwig O. Muench, while in St. Louis Court of Appeals this morning, were warned from the bench by Commissioner Limbaugh that they would be in contempt of court, and subject to commitment, if the baby now in their home is not in court at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The Commissioner made the statement in explaining the situation created by the fact that the Supreme Court was preparing to rule on the application of the Muenches for a writ of prohibition against enforcement of the Commissioner's order to produce the baby, said by Anna Ware to be her child.

If the writ should be issued, he said to the Muenches, all proceedings under the order would be dropped. But if the writ were denied and the production order thus allowed to remain in effect, the child must be produced tomorrow morning, under penalty of punishment for contempt of court.

Concluding his remarks, the Commissioner asked the Muenches, who were not represented by counsel, if they had understood what he had said. Both said that they had.

Mrs. Muench Confers With Court.

Mrs. Muench then held a whispered conference with counsel for Mrs. Helen Berroyer, the only member of the force of respondents' lawyers who was in court. The lawyer finally arose and asked if Mrs. Muench might make a statement. When the Court assented, Mrs. Muench went to the bench and talked to the Commissioner out of hearing of the press table.

Later, counsel for Mrs. Berroyer told reporters that Mrs. Muench had asked for police protection, because of the hostile attitude of spectators at previous sessions of the hearing, and had indicated she feared the child might be molested.

"Have no concern on that point," Commissioner Limbaugh said when she had finished. "Be assured that you will have adequate protection. There will be no mistreatment of the child in this court. Be assured of that."

Mrs. Muench made another remark that could not be heard, to which the Commissioner replied: "No one will be permitted to take advantage of the child because it is of tender years. The order is that the child be produced, and you will produce it at 10 o'clock tomorrow if the Supreme Court does not issue a writ, and you will be afforded adequate and ample protection."

Attorney Wilfred Jones, friend and off-the-record adviser of the Muenches, and a respondent in the habeas corpus suit, arrived at court after the Commissioner had left the bench and departed after a few minutes. The grand jury yesterday began an inquiry into a charge of perjury against Jones as a result of his testimony in the baby case.

Counsel for the Muenches and Compensation.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 29.—State Representative Edgar J. Keating of Kansas City mentioned during a conference with newspaper men here Saturday that he was representing the Muenches without compensation. In this connection he said, "I am taking all the heat" in this case. He volunteered the statement that Mrs. Muench's personal attorney got $21,000.

The last remark was made, just after Keating had mentioned that he was serving without compensation, when someone inquired whether another attorney, a St. Louis man, would be in Jefferson City in connection with the Muenches' application to the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition in the habeas corpus case.

"No," said Keating. "You know he got 21,000?"

"You mean $21,000?" the correspondent asked.

"Yes, 21 grand," said Keating.

Keating was one of Mrs. Muench's 13 attorneys at the kidnaping trial at Mexico, Mo. It will be recalled that Pross T. Cross of Lathrop Mo., told reporters at the trial that he and other attorneys who represented Mrs. Muench were "not getting a red cent" for their services. Cross said he was in the case because of his friendship for Mrs. Muench's brother, Supreme Court Judge Ernest M. Tipton.

The St. Louis lawyer referred to by Keating, when informed of Keating's statement that he had received $21,000 said to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "I might draw on my imagination for a statement if I had a shot in the arm." Thus ended the exchanges between counsel for the Muenches on the subject of compensation.

DRIVER WHOSE AUTO HIT ANOTHER IS FINED $150

Bernard Temborius of Lebanon, Ill., Denies He Was Drunk; Policeman Testifies.

Bernard Temborius, operator of a moving picture show at Lebanon, Ill., was fined $150 by Police Judge Simpson today on charges of drunkenness and careless driving.

A policeman testified that Temborius appeared to be intoxicated when he arrested him after he drove his automobile into the rear of another car that was stopped for a traffic light at Union and Lindell boulevards. Temborius said he had been drinking but denied being drunk.

Grand Jury Hears Her Story

MRS. J. R. PLUMMER

IN the grand jury witness room at the Municipal Courts Building yesterday.

JONES PERJURY INQUIRY TO CONTINUE THURSDAY

Grand Jury Holds Special Session to Take Testimony of Mrs. Plummer.

Inquiry into the charge of perjury against Wilfred Jones, lawyer and baby broker, will be resumed by the grand jury Thursday afternoon, following the testimony of the first witness, Mrs. J. R. Plummer of Minneapolis, at a special session yesterday afternoon.

The special session was held so that Mrs. Plummer might testify and return to her home. The regular meeting times are Tuesday and Thursday at 2 p. m. It was not planned to take up Jones' case at this afternoon's session. For Thursday's session, it is expected that Mrs. Margaret Matthews, former superintendent of the Girls' Home, 5501 Enright avenue, will be a witness.

Mrs. Plummer, in her testimony last Thursday in the Muench-Ware habeas corpus case in St. Louis Court of Appeals, said her first meeting with Jones came about through a call which she made at the Girls' Home last Nov. 3 to see about taking a child into her home. Through an arrangement then made with Jones, Mrs. Plummer and her husband for a time boarded Jean Putney, daughter of Mrs. Grace Thomasson Diefenbach, a client of Jones.

Mrs. Matthews was present at the meeting described, at the institution nearly a year ago.

Parallels in Testimony.

Mrs. Plummer's testimony, as given in the St. Louis Court of Appeals last Thursday, was presented by Anna Ware's counsel to show that Jones' "clients," first designated by him as "Mr. and Mrs. X," and later as "Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Palmer," were phantoms in the great Muench baby hoax, created by the skillful Jones in the image of Mr. and Mrs. Plummer.

Jones testified that Mrs. Diefenbach, who he said was the "nurse" handling the Ware infant, reported to him that she turned the child over to the "Palmers," that he understood it was with them in Chicago, and that, having represented the child as their own, they would "face humiliation and disgrace" if it were taken from them before they could procure another infant in its place.

Mrs. Plummer, who with her husband has lived in the Delmar-Clara apartment neighborhood, in Memphis and Chicago, just as Jones related of the "Palmers," said she and her husband had talked of adopting a child, but that nothing had been done about it.

Mrs. Plummer said yesterday, before giving her grand jury testimony, that Mrs. Diefenbach, to her knowledge, was in Chicago July 10 and 12. The day between, July 11, was the date when, Jones has testified, Mrs. Diefenbach helped him in handling the Price baby, which was taken by him to the home of Dr. Ludwig O. Muench and Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, and then to Jewish Hospital, where it died. Mrs. Plummer has testified that Mrs. Diefenbach was suffering from mastoid trouble through that part of July, and that the daughter Jean, who was at the Plummer home, talked to her daily by telephone.

Testimony As to Nurse.

Other testimony, intended to show that the woman who handled the Price baby for Jones was not Mrs. Diefenbach, but Mrs. Helen Berroyer, is scheduled for the perjury inquiry.

Jones, a respondent in the habeas corpus suit, in which Anna Ware charges that the Muenches are holding her infant and "palming it off" as their own, is under $2500 bond. He was arrested Thursday evening, after Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh had denounced him from the bench as "guilty of perjury of the most flagrant character."

5 ST. LOUISANS WIN ON SWEEPSTAKES

Four of Them Have Tickets on Horses, Chances on Major Prizes.

Five winning tickets on the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes, which will run tomorrow at Newmarket, England, are held by St. Louisans. Four of the tickest are on horses, the fifth is a consolation prize.

Miss Helen Auman, 1462 Adelaide avenue, and several friends, have drawn the horse, Robin Goodfellow. Others holding tickets on horses are "Cardinals," 4038 McRee avenue, and "Lucky Dan," 3615 Olive street, eighteenth floor. The latter address is the office of the Mississippi Valley Fuel Co.

Edward Graul, 21 years old, and his brother, Arnold, 24, residing at 4003A Humphrey street, have jointly drawn the horse, British Quota. Both are machinists at the Forest City Manufacturing Co.

Harry J. Woehrle, 4106 Juniata street, has won one of the consolation prizes of about $500. He said it was the second ticket he had bought.

Each ticket on a horse will pay nearly $2000 regardless of whether the horse places in the race. Should the horse win the race, the ticket is worth approximately $147,300. Second prize money is $73,650, and third, $49,100. Edward Graul previously announced he would purchase a farm for his father in Mascoutah, Ill., if he should win one of the major prizes. He first bought the ticket alone, but later his older brother paid for half, and will share in any winnings.

MERCHANT DIES OF SHOCK AFTER WIFE SUCCUMBS

The shock of his wife's death caused the death, a few minutes later of Arthur Lee Gordon Sr., 70-year-old butter merchant, at his home, 1207 North Euclid avenue, last night.

Mrs. Gordon, 68 years old, had suffered from high blood pressure and was stricken fatally at 10:30 o'clock. Dr. Harry Helbing was called and administered to her with the assistance of Mr. Gordon. When the physician pronounced Mrs. Gordon dead her husband collapsed on her bed, and died in a few minutes. The shock had resulted in a heart attack.

ARRESTED FOR DEFENDING WOMAN WHO SHOT HIM

Los Angeles Man Charged With Perjury After Conviction of Assailant.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—Joseph Walsh, liquor salesman, was held to answer to a charge of perjury yesterday, because he told a jury that Miss Lora Hewitt was not the "woman in red" who shot him at a dinner party last Aug. 30.

Miss Hewitt, once known as Walsh's wife, was convicted recently of attempted murder despite his testimony. Walsh's attorney, S. S. Hahn, insisted his client had "lied like a gentleman" in a gallant effort to save the woman. A guest at the party, Miss Frances Beattie, testified Walsh was looking directly at Miss Hewitt when the latter invaded the dining room and fired four shots at him. Walsh, still recovering from his wounds, was ordered released on $500 bail.

WHIPS AND ATTACKS WOMAN

Man Thought to Be One in Similar Cases at Chicago.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—A dark, slender young man entered a fashionable North Side hotel last night and holding a handkerchief over his face, accosted Miss Mary Smith, 23 years old, in a corridor of the hotel. At pistol point he forced her to call on her friend, Miss Anna Wilhelm, 23, of Milwaukee.

Entering Miss Wilhelm's apartment, he turned the radio on loudly, forced the women to disrobe, bound Miss Smith, and then flogged Miss Wilhelm with a leather belt and attacked her. From descriptions given them, police were certain the man was the same who committed several similar attacks in the West Side two weeks ago.

Man Injured by Taxicab.

Joseph Rentaria, 3419 Lucas avenue, suffered a skull injury when he was struck by a taxicab at Channing and Lucas avenues last night. He was taken to City Hospital. The driver was Sam Reese, Negro, 2317 Walnut street.

MRS. ROBERT C. GREER DIES IN SEATTLE AT 94

Former Marie Josephine Papin Member of Old St. Louis French Family.

Mrs. Robert C. Greer, before her marriage Marie Josephine Papin, a member of the old St. Louis French family, died of infirmities yesterday at the home of her son, Robert Papin Greer at Seattle, Wash. She was 94 years old.

Mr. Greer, who died six years ago at the age of 95, was for more than 50 years active in the grain and cotton commission business and as a dealer in real estate. He was one of the organizers of the old Union Exchange, which became the Merchants' Exchange.

Mrs. Greer was the daughter of Hyppolite LeBer Papin, who, with his brother, Silvestre Vilray Papin, engaged in the manufacture in St. Louis of tomahawks, knives and traps for the Indian trade. Her mother was Josephine Loisel.

Hyppolite Papin's father was Joseph Marie Papin, and his mother, Marie Louise Chouteau, daughter of Pierre Laclede Liguest, founder of St. Louis.

The Greer home for many years was at 4965 McPherson avenue, but the Greers moved to Seattle about 12 years ago to reside with their son.

Funeral services will be at the Catholic Cathedral in Seattle, and the body will be brought here for burial in the Papin lot in Calvary Cemetery.

MINING COMPANY WINS IN APPEAL TO ENJOIN UNION

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Directs Judge Wham to Issue Writ Against Progressives.

MINE NEAR FREEBURG KEPT FROM WORKING

United Electric Coal Co. Refused to Recognize Employes After They Abandoned U. M. W. A.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals directed Federal Judge Wham at East St. Louis yesterday to issue an injunction restraining Progressive Miners of America from interference with mines of the United Electric Coal Co., particularly its Red Ray mine, near Freeburg, Ill., which has been a point of contention between the Progressives and United Mine Workers.

The order of the Appellate Court was incorporated in a decision handed down at Chicago, reversing Judge Wham's ruling of Dec. 21, last, declining to grant the company an injunction. Judge Wham based his ruling on want of jurisdiction and equity.

Two principal reasons why the Court lacked jurisdiction were outlined by Judge Wham. One was "that the company has failed to make any reasonable effort to settle the dispute involved by negotiation." The other was "compelled by the evidence" that the company's policy in dealing with its labor at the mine "is in conflict with public policy declared in the Norris act."

Mine Closed by Pickets.

The Court added that the company denied employes freedom of self-organization and freedom to choose their own representatives. Evidence showed, Judge Wham noted, that company officers were intimidated August and September of 1934 when hundreds of picketing miners stopped operation of the Freeburg strip mine. It was obvious, the Court held, that the Sheriff's office of St. Clair County was "unwilling and unable" to protect the mine property.

In reversing Judge Wham's decision the appellate court held, in an opinion written by Judge Evan A. Evans, that the company was "an innocent bystander" in a fight between rival unions.

Wages and working conditions were satisfactory, the opinion stated, but operations were precluded by a struggle between the unions over which would represent the miners. Because the appellant was not a "real party" to the dispute it stated, the Norris-La Guardia act covering employe-employer litigation, would not be applicable.

Although the Red Ray mine employs but about 60 men the Progressives regard it as a test case pointing out that if it operated with U. M. W. A. labor it would be the only non-Progressive manned mine in St. Clair County. About 3500 pickets, recruited from mines all over the county, forced its closing Sept. 9, 1934, after several days of picketing.

Diggers Joined New Union.

The mine operated under a U. M. W. A. contract until its expiration April 1, 1932. The crew then "went Progressive" and worked the mine from Oct. 19, 1932, until March 28 1933, but without a written contract or formal recognition of the union by the company. On April 1, 1933 the company offered the men a United Mine Workers' contract. This they refused to accept and the mine has not worked since.

The attempt to reopen in August 1934, came after an NRA labor board ruling that the mine could open with a U. M. W. A. crew.

H. H. ROGERS JR. DECIDES NOT TO CONTEST FATHER'S WILL

Will Be Content With Income from $500,000 Trust Fund.

By the Associated Press.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Henry H. Rogers Jr. has decided to be content with the income of a $500,000 trust fund from the $26,000,000 estate of his father.

The will of Col. Henry H. Rogers II was admitted to probate in Surrogate's Court yesterday after young Rogers, held for a time after Evelyn Hoey, musical comedy star, was found shot to death in his Pennsylvania home, announced through counsel he would not adhere to plans to file objections.

The fortune, which Col. Rogers inherited largely from his father, Standard Oil magnate, is divided equally among his widow, formerly Mrs. Carl K. Dresser of Oklahoma; his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Peralta Ramos, and her son by a first marriage to Count Ludwig Salm von Hoogstraten, tennis-playing nobleman.

Young Rogers' mother, Mrs. Mary Benjamin Rogers, first wife of the late Colonel, received a $3,000,000 trust fund in 1929. Col. Rogers' second wife was Mrs. Marguerite Basil Miles, who divorced him in 1933.

The $500,000 trust fund set up for young Rogers reverts to the estate at his death.

1935 CORN LOAN TENTATIVELY SET AT 45C A BUSHEL

Some Possibility That It May Be 40 Cents—Announcement to Be Made by AAA in Day or Two.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—It was reported today that the AAA had reached a tentative decision on 45 cents a bushel as the amount of the 1935 corn loan.

The decision was made, it was reported, after late returns from Saturday's corn-hog referendum showed a vote of 6-to-1 in favor of a new production control program next year.

Formal announcement of the corn loan is expected within 48 hours. Caution is being taken to prevent leaks coming from conferences now in progress because, some officials said, there was a possibility that unexpected developments might result in fixing the loan at 40 cents. The 1934 loan was 55 cents a bushel.

The Commodity Credit Corporation will grant the loans to farmers who signed the 1935 corn-hog adjustment contracts. Corn harvested this year will be placed under bond as security for the advances and cannot be sold until the loans have been repaid.

One purpose of the loans is to give producers working capital to tide them over until they can estimate the amount of corn they will need to feed their hogs.

More Corn-Hog Returns.

Returns from the corn-hog referendum continued to come in today. Unofficial results were:

For a new program.....674,711
Against 106,527

Official returns are to be tabulated by the AAA tonight or tomorrow. Special attention was given by the AAA to the heavy favorable majorities recorded both by contract signers—those receiving benefit payments in return for agreeing to adjust production—and non-signers this year. Non-signers voted against a 1935 program in last October's referendum.

Final results last year showed only 374,584 contract signers, or 69.9 per cent of the signers voting, favoring a program for 1935.

Latest tabulations showed 520,358 signers voting for a program this year with 53,154 against, while 100,073 non-signers voted "yes" and 48,571 voted "no."

Corn loans, officials said, have been among the most successful, from the standpoint of repayments, of the advances made on commodities by the Government. In 1933, a total of $120,493,034 was lent on 267,761,708 bushels. This loan was reported repaid in full. The rate was 45 cents a bushel.

In 1934, only $11,038,390 was lent at 55 cents a bushel. The small amount was attributed to crop shortage.

AAA officials are at work on four-year control contracts to be offered to corn-hog farmers. The aim, it was said, will be to provide for an increase of 30 per cent in hog production.

Vote Returns by States.

Missouri, for control, 65,175; against, 9015.
Illinois, for, 60,341; against, 8153.
Kansas, for, 40,232; against, 6610
Iowa, for, 141,309; against, 2360.

More than 500,000 of the votes tabulated were cast in eight states, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, Indiana, Minnesota, Kansas and South Dakota.

Farmers in Kossuth County Iowa, home county of United States Senator Lester J. Dickinson (Rep.), who has steadfastly attacked the AAA, voted nearly 18 to 1 in favor of production control. The vote there was 2906 to 164.

Nebraska Farm Leader to Continue Opposition to Program.

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 29.—Dan M. Hildebrand of Seward, Neb., president of the United States Livestock Association, said last night that his organization, with 63,000 members in 43 states, would continue its opposition to the AAA corn-hog program.

Hildebrand said the "program, if continued for a number of years, will not only wreck the farmers of the nation, but will also demoralize the hog industry for the reason that the processing tax is a handicap not only the producer but also to the consumer."

He said the vote in favor of continuance of the program, "coming after a short corn year and after the drouth of 1934, means some farmers will vote for anything to get a little money."

Corn-Hog Program Wins, 5-1, in St. Charles County.

St. Charles County farmers, in their referendum Saturday, accepted a 1936 Federal corn-hog contract program by a vote of five to one. Those favoring the program totaled 642, while those opposing totaled 125.

Of the 512 contract signers in the county in 1935, 452 favored renewal of the contracts while 49 opposed the issue. Of the non-signers, 190 voted yes while 66 voted no.

Division of Sidney Smith Estate.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—The estate of Robert Sidney Smith, creator of "The Gumps" and other comic strip characters, was divided between his widow and two children by previous marriages in a will admitted to probate today. No inventory of the estate was filed, but it was estimated at $100,000.

MUSSOLINI KEEPS BANKS OPEN SUNDAY AND DISPLEASES POPE

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 29.—Pope Pius and Premier Mussolini disagreed over the question of holidays, it was disclosed yesterday.

Mussolini ordered banks and commercial establishments to remain open Sunday under a Fascist regulation which requires that there shall not be two commercial holidays in succession.

Consequently, banks and business houses were open throughout the day and were closed yesterday while the nation took a complete holiday to celebrate the march on Rome.

Although he did not mention the celebrations specifically, Pope Pius yesterday called attention of Catholics to their obligations in observing Sunday. His address to the Council of Men's Union of Catholic Action was published in the Osservatore Romano.

"The King of Centuries," the Pope said, "wishes at least a little part of this day (Sunday) consecrated to Him."

Speaking of non-observance of Sunday, he said: "It is one of the sins which most greatly brings upon us the irritation of the King of Heaven."

INTERNAL REVENUE LAW COUNT AGAINST H. J. OLDANI DROPPED

Prosecutor Says Evidence Is Insufficient; Indictment Pending Since January, 1933.

One count in a Federal indictment, pending since January, 1933, against Henry J. Oldani, once known as the "king of St. Louis bootleggers," was dismissed with leave to reinstate yesterday by Federal Judge Davis on motion of Assistant United States Attorney Arthur Hapke. The count was dismissed for insufficient evidence, Hapke said.

The count had charged Oldani with violations of the internal revenue laws. Five other counts on the indictment, charging liquor conspiracy under the Volstead act, were dismissed in March, 1934, when Judge Faris sustained a demurrer. Oldani recently was released from Leavenworth Penitentiary after serving a two-year term for income tax evasion.

The dismissal was effective to 20 others jointly indicted with Oldani. They are: Edward Powers, and his wife, Florence, Mario Oldani, Otto Pfeifer, Steve Golden, C. Milo Phillips, Joe Cliviana, Alexander McKeon, Lester Davis, Thomas Holtman, Rudolph White, Charles Engler, Frank Anthonis, Elmer Hass, Frank Habelrigg, Dominic Messina, John Smitker, Angelo Castanza, Josephine Valenti and Charles Tetoni.

When stewed fruit tastes a little flat a dash of this will soon fix that . . .

CHARLES B. SPICER FUNERAL

Services Thursday for Former Executive of Powder Firm.

The funeral of Charles B. Spicer, former local manager of the Hercules Powder Co., who died Saturday of a paralytic stroke, will be held Thursday at 8:30 a. m., from the Arthur J. Donnelly undertaking establishment, 3840 Lindell boulevard, to Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Forsythe boulevard and Asbury avenue. Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Spicer was 66 years old and lived with his wife at the Park Plaza Hotel. With the organization of the Hercules Powder Co. in 1913, he became district manager at Pittsburgh, Kan. He was transferred to St. Louis in 1921. His wife survives.

SHOCKING
to endanger others with germ-laden handkerchiefs

Why germ-filled handkerchiefs are a menace to society

HOW you'd resent it!—if you caught a cold from someone who didn't know these simple facts.

Handkerchiefs scatter germs by the millions. No wonder colds spread. But when you use Kleenex during a cold, you imprison germs! There's less danger of spreading your cold to family and friends.

And talk about comfort! At the first touch of Kleenex, your nose feels the difference! Instead of using wet, soiled handkerchiefs over and over, you use a fresh, gentle tissue each time. Softer than linen—that's Kleenex. Use it once, then destroy. Destroy the germs with it. And you're rid of the distasteful job of washing soiled handkerchiefs!

Expensive?—not at all! At the new low price you can use about thirty Kleenex Tissues for the average cost of having one cloth handkerchief laundered! Kleenex is the only disposable tissue in the handy pull-out package.

$307,000 GRANT BY PWA TO FINISH ST. LOUIS BRIDGE

Construction on Approaches Expected to Be Started by Dec. 15, Mayor Dickmann Announces.

SALE OF BONDS TO BE AUTHORIZED

Board of Estimates Likely to Advance $100,000 From General Revenue for Preliminary Work.

Plans for the often delayed construction of additional railroad approaches to the Municipal Bridge went forward at the City Hall today on receipt of word from Washington that a PWA grant of $307,000 would be made if contracts for the work could be completed next month.

Since the city has authorized a bond issue of $800,000 to help pay for the work, estimated to cost $1,003,000, the PWA grant provided all the necessary funds.

An ordinance was prepared for introduction in the Board of Aldermen today, formally proclaiming the result of the bond issue election and authorizing sale of the bonds.

Mayor Dickmann said the Board of Estimate and Apportionment would agree to advance $100,000 from the city's general revenue fund to finance preliminary work. He expected that actual construction could begin by Dec. 15.

The problem of completing the rail approaches has been a bothersome one since 1930 when the Terminal Railroad Association entered into a contract with the city to build them and accept repayment out of remitted tolls. The Terminal contracted to use the bridge and guarantee a minimum of $500,000 in tolls annually.

Under this contract the Terminal spent $1,400,000 in construction of additional approaches and then announced that it could not complete the work because of business conditions.

The city made several applications to the RFC and the PWA for funds to complete the approaches but in each instance, after plans had seemed to progress favorably the city and the Terminal were unable to get together on an agreement suitable to the Government agency.

President Baxter L. Brown of the Board of Public Service said plans for the construction were ready and that the work should go forward speedily. He estimated a year would be required to complete the work.

Under the plan adopted the terminal association will pay the rental agreed on but will not help finance the construction work.

Y. M. C. A. FUND WORKERS TO MAKE LAST REPORT TONIGHT

Drive Continued Three Days From Friday When Pledges Were 66 Pct. of Goal.

The final report of the 1340 volunteer workers in the Young Men's Christian Association campaign for current funds will be made tonight at the Downtown Y. M. C. A.

When the original two weeks' campaign closed Friday, pledges totaled $93,807, only 66 per cent of the goal of $143,000, so the drive was continued for three days.

George D. Markham of the Metropolitan Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors, will make the closing address.

WIDOW WINS $3300 CLAIM

Husband Who Died Had Accepted $800 Compensation for Injury.

A decision of the St. Clair County Circuit Court confirming a ruling of the Illinois Industrial Commission allowing Mrs. Nona Wilson, widow of John H. Wilson, East St. Louis, Negro employe of the American Steel Foundries an additional $3305 after he had died of an injury for which he had accepted $813 as compensation, has been upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court.

Wilson died Dec. 30, 1928, having returned to a hospital four days after accepting compensation for an injury to his thumb. His widow filed a claim for death benefits last Jan. 23. The American Steel Foundries filed an appeal after the Circuit Court decision.

FUNERAL OF E. W. GODRON

Services Tomorrow for Druggist in Business Half Century.

Funeral services for Emil W. Godron, proprietor of drug stores in St. Louis for nearly half a century, who died of uremic poisoning yesterday, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Witt Bros. chapel, 2919 South Jefferson avenue. Cremation will take place at Missouri Crematory.

Mr. Godron, who was 69 years old, was born in St. Louis and graduated from St. Louis College of Pharmacy in 1884. After several years as a clerk he acquired his own store and thereafter was in business in various sections of the city. He resided at 2601A Virginia avenue, upstairs from his store. Surviving are his wife, two brothers and three sisters.

MURPHY CRITICISES ASPECTS OF LAST LEGION CONVENTION

Says National Meetings Should Be Pageants of Patriotism; Urges "Sound Decorum."

By the Associated Press.

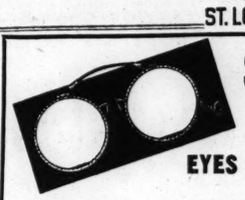

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 29.—J. Ray Murphy, national commander, admonished American Legionnaires yesterday to be their age when on parade.

Addressing the annual conference of Department Commanders and Adjutants, the National Commander asserted some performances in the parade at St. Louis this year had caused much criticism.

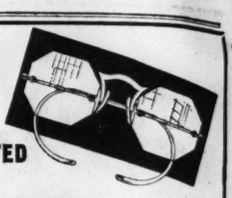

He said: "I think we all agree that our Legion parades at the national conventions should be pageants of patriotism, should be dignified and completely in accordance with the ideals of our organization. I don't know how much criticism there has been on other occasions, but I do know that this year there has been much criticism from members of our ranks, from persons high in the authority of the Legion Auxiliary and from many other citizens against some of the performances in our Legion parades.

"We have all come of age in a Legion sense, and I think you will agree with me that there is a necessity for Legionnaires, if they be Legionnaires, to maintain sound decorum.

"In the past there have been those who were all too scantily clad in suggestive feminine attire. I don't think it is dignified to have some of the floats that appeared in previous parades, and I just want to leave this thought with you. In planning your parade for next year I believe that it is best to consider this thing, and that it would meet with the approval of convention authorities."

GRAND OPERA SERIES TO OPEN THURSDAY

"Turandot" to Be Given First —Convention Hall Being Completed.

Workmen were busy today completing the convention hall of the Municipal Auditorium for the opening performance Thursday night of Puccini's "Turandot," first of the four operas to be presented by the St. Louis Grand Opera Company.

The rising hardwood floor of the arena was completed yesterday, and most of the seats installed. Boxes were constructed today and electricians and stage technicians were putting the final touches on their work to have the hall ready for a dress rehearsal tomorrow night.

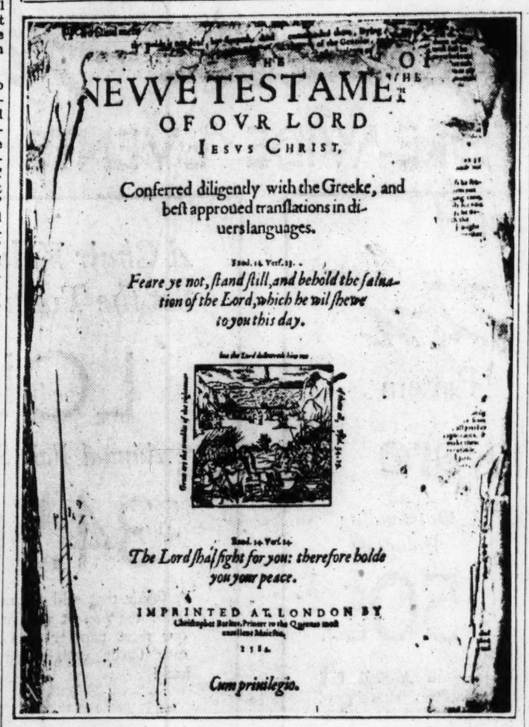

Maria Jeritza, who will have the prima donna role in "Turandot," was to have flown to St. Louis yesterday, but was delayed by bad weather and will arrive this evening. Giuseppe Bentonelli, who will sing opposite Jeritza, was due at noon today. Other principals are arriving today and tomorrow from New York and Chicago.

The arrival yesterday of Fausto Cleva, chorus master of the Metropolitan Opera Company, completed the staff of four Metropolitan directors who will have charge of the productions here. Cleva came to assist Gennaro Papi, conductor of the Metropolitan, who will conduct the performances of "Turandot" and "Faust." Ernest Knoch will conduct the Wagner operas "Tannhauser" and "Tristan and Isolde."

Desire Defrere, stage director of the St. Louis Grand Opera company, is another of the Metropolitan staff and Giacomo Spadoni, assistant conductor of the Metropolitan, has been here for several months, working with the St. Louis Grand Opera chorus.

Many of the opera principals and the directing staff were guests of the St. Louis Advertising Club at a luncheon at Hotel Statler today.

ILLINOIS CONFERENCE ON SOCIAL WELFARE

Opening Session in East St. St. Louis Tonight; Study Courses Held.

The opening session of the fortieth annual Illinois conference on social welfare will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Ainad Temple, Sixth street and St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis. Mayor James T. Crow of East St. Louis will formally open the meeting and Alva G. Elam, general chairman and president of the First National Bank of East St. Louis, will preside. The conference will continue through Thursday.

The principal speakers will be Judge Harry L. Eastman, of the Cleveland (O.) juvenile court, who will talk on the limitations and functions of the juvenile court, and Gilbert Harris, executive secretary of the St. Louis Y. M. H. A., whose subject will be the achievements and failures of group recreation for youths.

Study Courses Held.

Yesterday courses of study and discussions of social welfare problems were held for the 325 social workers present. These courses, held at the Catholic Community Center, Fifth street and St. Louis avenue, and continued through today, included: Fundamentals of social case work, public welfare administration, problems in foster care, health problems, fundamentals of child development, principles of group work, needs of youth and social service publicity.

Tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the Ainad Temple there will be a general session on health at which Dr. Frances Rothert of the Federal Children's Bureau, Washington, D. C., and Dr. K. E. Miller, senior surgeon, United States Public Health Service, will speak. At 10:45 a. m. will be another general session on industrial and economic problems. Principal speakers will be Robert J. Meyers, director of finance, Illinois Works Progress Administration, and Prof. M. H. Hunter of the University of Illinois.

Sectional meetings with round table discussions on the family, children, delinquency and health will be held in the afternoon from 2 until 4 p. m. at the Ainad Temple and the Broadview Hotel. Some of the principal speakers will be Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission; Harrison A. Dobbs of the University of Chicago and Bruce Campbell, chairman of the commission for the physically handicapped.

Annual Dinner.

The annual conference dinner will be held at 6 p. m. at the Ainad Temple, presided over by John C. Weigel, president of the conference, and attended by Mrs. Henry T. Rainey and Gov. Henry Horner, who will deliver an appreciation of the late Jane Addams. The dinner will be followed by a general session at 8 o'clock at the Ainad Temple. Principal speakers will be Weigel and Paul U. Kellogg, editor of Survey.

Sectional round table discussions will continue at morning sessions Thursday. The conference will be concluded with a general session at 1 p. m. when John Martin, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief Commission, will deliver an address on the aftermath of relief.

Crashes on Roof, Not Badly Hurt.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 29.—Douglas Lorraine, U. S. Coast Guard, crashed to the roof of a building here yesterday when he made a delayed parachute jump. Spectators who saw the parachute open less than 200 feet from the ground, rushed to the roof, expecting to find Lorraine's crushed body. Instead, they found the airman unconscious but not seriously hurt.

Heads Frisco System Doctors.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 29.—Dr. P. M. Robert Vinyard, Springfield, Mo., was elected president of the Frisco System Medical Association at the annual convention yesterday.

The modern electric cleaners can be purchased for as little as $3.28 a month

Clean your house electrically

and stay fresh yourself

With an electric cleaner you go through the whole house with a fraction of the old time and effort. That means you have leisure for other things and aren't all tired out. It's more thorough cleaning too, because an electric cleaner actually draws out embedded dust and dirt, instead of scattering it or merely going over the surface. Don't hang on to that old cleaner that was fine ten years ago. The new models have wonderfully efficient, labor-saving attachments. They are simple and light to operate. Their price is moderate, with terms to suit your purse. Never worry about operating costs! Not with Union Electric's low rate to help. You can use an electric cleaner 7 hours (a month's use) in the average St. Louis home, for only 3c. Your dealer has the cleaner you want.

REPORT ON STATE SALES TAX

Total of $650,000 Turned in for September So Far.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 29. — September sales tax returns from 37,000 major Missouri retailers disclosed last night that the State's 1 per cent levy had drawn $650,000 into the treasury.

With about 20,000 smaller companies unreported, Auditor Forrest Smith estimated September receipts would be between $750,000 and $800,000.

'ENGLISH OIL SUPPLIED TO ITALIAN BOMBERS'

Lloyd George Charges British Firm Fuels Planes Used Against Ethiopians.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Charging that the League of Nations waited too long to act against Italy, David Lloyd George, war-time Prime Minister, today accused an English company of supplying the oil used by Italian planes in bombing Ethiopian towns.

Addressing the Council of Action for Peace and Reconstruction, Lloyd George aroused his audience to shout "Shame! Terrible!" when he stated: "I only saw the Abyssinian Minister just before I came here. It was a most pathetic conversation. Bombing planes dropped bombs on villages and killed women and children—and an English company supplied the oil.

"It is the same with tanks, torpedoes and submarines. The Anglo-Persian Oil Co. will say: 'If we didn't supply it the Americans world.'

"Great oil magnates are most powerful. When shall we have a Government that will stand up to people of that sort in righteousness?"

Lloyd George declared that League of Nations economic sanctions would not interfere with Mussolini's African campaign, and then criticised the League for delaying in penalizing Italy. He said: "We waited until Mussolini completed his arrangements for conquest and until he had made all arrangements to frustrate economic sanctions. Sanctions won't prevent war materials and troops from Italy from reinforcing the attack."

Told of Lloyd George's criticism, Sir John Cadman, managing director of the Anglo-Persian Oil Co., said: 'Oil is being supplied completely in accordance with the terms of the sanctions—that is, cash delivery."

MAN GETS 5 YEARS IN PRISON FOR ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

E. R. Jeffries of Gilmore, Mo., Pleads Guilty in St. Charles Circuit Court.

E. R. Jeffries of Gilmore, Mo., was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary yesterday by Circuit Judge Edgar B. Woolfolk of St. Charles, when he pleaded guilty of attempted robbery.

Jeffries tried to rob Lester Stephens, the proprietor of a Gilmore restaurant last Wednesday, threatening him with a shotgun. Stephens and his daughter disarmed Jeffries.

KILLED BY TRAIN AT ALTON

Man Injured, Dies in Hospital; Is Not Identified.

The body of a man, who died last night at St. Joseph's Hospital at Alton of a fractured skull and other injuries suffered several hours earlier when he was run over by an Alton Railroad freight train, is awaiting identification at the Klunk undertaking establishment at Alton.

The man, who was found beside the track near Downtown Station after the train passed, mumbled a name that sounded like Dave Boland when his identity was sought at the hospital. He was about 60 years old, five feet 10 inches tall, with gray hair, bald on top. He was wearing a gray overcoat and dark suit and cap.

NEW ATTEMPT TO GET CASE OF NEGRO IN SUPREME COURT

Angelo Herndon, Convicted of Trying to Incite Insurrection, Gives Up at Atlanta.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 29.—Angelo Herndon, Ohio Negro convicted of attempting to incite an insurrection, surrendered here yesterday, but his attorneys immediately filed habeas corpus proceedings. He is in jail without bond. He had been free under $15,000 bond pending the outcome of his appeal.

The United States Supreme Court 10 days ago declined to review the case in which Herndon was sentenced to 18 to 20 years in prison.

Herndon, the State charged, attempted to incite Southern Negroes to rebel against Federal and State authorities and set up a Negro republic in sections of Georgia, South Carolina and Alabama.

The petition for habeas corpus set forth that the Georgia law under which Herndon was convicted never has been passed on by the United States Supreme Court and is unconstitutional. The measure was enacted in Georgia in 1866 and the death penalty is possible under it.

The Negro's surrender, his lawyers said, was the first move of a new attempt to carry the case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

MAN KILLS EX-JUDGE, LAWYER AND HIMSELF

Another Shot in Chicago Office Building; Assailant Had Brooded Over Jail Term.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. — Attorney William L. Hawthorne, 42 years old, died today in a hospital, the victim of a man who also shot and killed former Municipal Judge William R. Fetzer, 62, and fatally wounded himself yesterday in the Ashland office building at Clark and Randolph streets.

A fourth victim, Attorney Nathan Waintroob, 29, was reported "out of danger."

Fetzer was killed by the man, Raymond Lanning, 36, whom he sentenced in 1929 to a year in the Bridewell on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Writings Show Broodings.

A manuscript which Lanning carried and a note found in his pockets at the hospital both indicated he had long brooded over his conviction and planned revenge. The manuscript told the story of a jail bird who killed five persons, including a Mayor, before he was shot by officers. The note read:

"This is the end of the story. All too severe Judge sticking to the letter of the law and ignoring human principles has taken my life and his own through me and the lives of several others, perhaps, than me.

"I, too, am a severe and cruel man because I find the majority of the people that way. I am sorry that this had to happen, but I valued my life (by its trials and tribulations) as worth any five, so I write finis."

Story of Shootings.

Lanning entered Fetzer's office about noon, according to witnesses' stories to police.

He brushed past Waintroob in the reception room and rushed into Fetzer's office, firing two shots.

"I don't like you. I'm going to kill you, too," he shouted at Weintroob as he came out.

John J. Brownlee, a court reporter, hearing the shots, ran into the Fetzer office. The assailant whirled, shot Waintroob twice, aimed at Brownlee but missed and then started running down the hall. As he fled he attempted to shoot two stenographers but his pistol jammed.

Into the office of Attorney Charles Horgan, where Horgan, Bert Lannon, another attorney, and Hawthorne were talking with a door from the outer office of the suite open, the killer sped. Standing in the reception room, the crazed man shot again. The bullet struck Hawthorne. Lannon slammed the inner office door shut and Horgan called police. They found Lanning on the office floor unconscious from a head wound.

Lanning was sentenced in 1930 to 30 days in the House of Correction and fined $200 on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor. In 1931 he was sentenced to serve 90 days for petit larceny. Police said Lanning's mother lived in Decatur, Ill.

ROBBERS BIND TWO, STEAL MAIL AT CATSKILL, N. Y.

By the Associated Press.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Four robbers bound and gagged a mail truck driver and station agent here last night and escaped with two bags of mail.

The four men are thought to have aimed their raid at two sacks containing money from three Catskill banks, sent nightly to New York City. Postmaster B. G. Dewell said the stolen sacks contained nothing of particular value.

George Hadden, 80-year-old mail truck driver, was met by two men when he stepped from his truck after backing it up to the station platform. Hadden told police the men stuck a pistol in his ribs, bound and gagged him and rolled him under the truck. S. C. Bishop, 60, night station agent, was treated likewise.

Soon the robbers departed. Hadden managed to free his hands. He then freed Bishop, who telephoned police.

INVESTMENT MEN FAVOR LIMITED UTILITY CONTROL

Stand of Bankers' Committee a Departure From Long Opposition to Federal Regulation.

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 29.—The Investment Bankers Association, through its committee on public service securities, expressed the hope today that the Public Utility Act of 1935 would be revised to start Federal regulation "within propert legal limits."

The commitee report, accepted by the association's board of governors, acknowledged this stand as a departure from the association's long opposition to Federal regulation in any form.

The committee said that now the law is on the books, "the industry and the banker alike must await the action of the courts." Even if the act is found unconstitutional, the committee continued, "it marks not an end, but a beginning."

"It may be hoped," it said, "that as a result of court decisions or otherwise it may be modified as to become the beginning of Federal regulation within proper legal limits."

Simplification of Structure.

In the meantime, the committee said, the passage of the act, with its threat of forced dissolution of holding companies, would "speed the simplification of capital structures which has so long been urged by previous reports of the committee."

The report favored continuance of utilities regulation within the province of the Securities and Exchange Commission, as provided under the present law.

"The experience of the Investment Bankers Association with the commission under the Securities Act promised sincere, honest and sympathetic effort on the commission's part in an exceedingly difficult undertaking," it asserted.

After reviewing the fight over the Public Utilities Act, the report said that "the turmoil of the recent past may have disturbed a proper sense of proportion." It said the electric power business of the year had prospered, although new construction had been blocked, and that utility issues advanced substantially in price.

Rate Question First.

In an effort to restore "a proper sense of proportion," the committee declared that in order of importance to the industry, "rate determination by state commissions and courts come first, TVA and Governmental competition which bears on rate determination second, and the Public Utlity Act third."

On the question of rates, the committee, said:

"Let it be emphasized that the basic problem of both Government and industry lies in the determination of sound rate-making policy and the solution is not advanced by yard stick theories or Governmental operations which are always subject to political considerations, and which, unforutnately it must be said, are always lacking in competence and too often in integrity."

Daniel W. Myers of Cleveland is chairman of the committee.

150 ON WPA JOBS STRIKE FOR MORE PAY IN MARYLAND

100 Unemployed Refuse to Cut Wood for Less Than Other Cutters Get.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 29.—Protesting against wage scales, 150 men struck yesterday on WPA projects in Maryland and 100 unemployed men refused to go to work on a private project.

Labor leaders said direct relief had been promised the WPA strikers, but relief authorities denied this. The WPA walkouts were called in Cumberland and Frostburg. Five projects involving sewer lines, a water supply dam and street and road repairs were affected.

In both cities the workers demanded wages of 28.6 cents an hour be increased to the "prevailing" rate of 50 cents an hour, or that working hours be reduced from 140 to 80 a month.

At Princess Anne, on the Eastern Shore, 100 unemployed men who had signed for work with the National Re-Employment Service declined assignments to cut cordwood on private timber land. They said the pay was only 75 cents a cord, while other wood cutters got $1.50.

DR. ANNA LAURA HINTZE, FORMER ST. LOUISAN, DIES

Professor in Goucher College at Baltimore Since 1929; 47 Years Old.

Dr. Anna Laura Hintze, former St. Louis grade school teacher and graduate of Harris Teachers' College, died yesterday at a Baltimore, Md., hospital following an operation. She was 47 years old, and had been professor of physiology and hygiene at Goucher College, Baltimore, since 1929. The body will be brought here for burial.

Miss Hintze attended the University of Wisconsin after teaching here, receiving degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, and Doctor of Philosophy. Later she was made an instructor at the University of Wisconsin.

Her mother, Mrs. Augusta Hintze, and a sister, Miss Amelia Hintze, teacher at Long School, who have gone to Baltimore, reside at 1936 Withnell avenue.

BEQUESTS OF OIL ROYALTIES IN VAN GRAAFEILAND WILL

Document of Petroleum Land Broker Filed; No Estimate of Value of Estate.

The will of Charles P. Van Graafeiland, oil land broker, who died Sunday of pneumonia at Barnes Hospital, was filed in Probate Court yesterday.

Relatives and friends were named as beneficiaries of various rights to royalties from oil lands, the principal beneficiaries being Dr. A. G. Enderle, Dr. Andrew B. Jones, A. J. Schlueter and John S. Thomson. Schlueter and Thomson were appointed executors under the will. They were unable to estimate the value of the estate. An attorney for the executors announced that Mr. Van Graafeiland's parents would receive an income of more than $2000 a year from his life insurance.

Mr. Van Graafeiland, who was 53 years old, formerly resided at 9 Southmoor drive, Clayton, but since the death of his wife in February had resided at the Park Plaza Hotel. His funeral will be tomorrow from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Van Graafeiland, 3935 Shaw boulevard, to St. Margaret's Church, with interment at Oak Grove Mausoleum.

ENTIRE TOWNS DESTROYED BY FLOODS IN HAITI

Most of 2000 Dead Thought to Have Been Swept Out to Sea.

By the Associated Press.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 29.—Authorities said today additional information tended to confirm the estimate of 2000 dead in the hurricane and cloudburst last week. The majority of those who died are thought to have been swept out to sea.

Late reports are that whole towns were swallowed up by flood waters on the Southern peninsula.

The river Anse, near Jeremie, on the peninsula's north shore, is reported to have wiped out the town of Marfranc. Many of its 500 residents are supposed to have been drowned.

The same stream destroyed three-fourths of the town of Moron, inhabited by 1500 persons.

Many highways have been destroyed. It is believed the coffee crop was saved in the main because it grows on hillsides.

Shipping Clerk Leaves $42,000 to Charity in Will

Wanted to Be Geologist But Hadn't Means as a Boy—Lived With Wife in Single Room for 38 Years.

If Henry August Oswald Schindler had had $47,500, or even a small part of it, when he was a young man in Germany, he would have become a geologist; if he had had it when he was in his late thirties he would have built another house for his bride at Galveston, Tex., after the one into which they were ready to move burned down.

But, lacking it as a boy, he came to America and became a shipping clerk, and because all his savings were lost with the destruction of his new cottage at Galveston, he came to St. Louis nearly 40 years ago and lived in a single, high-ceilinged room in a stone building at Fourth and Walnut streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Schindler never moved until three weeks ago when they were taken to Deaconess Hospital. He died Saturday at the age of 82. His will, filed yesterday, left his estate in trust for his wife, but specified bequests of $47,500 are provided for after her death. Of this sum, $42,000 is bequeathed to 18 charities.

Thrifty and Retiring.

Mr. Schindler and his wife, the former Grace Jessie McIntyre, were thrifty. They sought no friends Besides his home, Mr. Schindler had no interest other than his work among boxes and crates at the Meyer Supply Co., 22 South First street, conveniently close to the old rooming house.

For 35 years he worked there until he retired in favor of a younger man three years ago. Ever since, he retained a keen personal interest in the business although he had never been more than an employe. He named Louis T. Meyer, president of the company, as executor and trustee under his will. He had always had a fatherly interest in the younger man.

The Schindlers never owned an automobile, a radio, or even a gas stove. When Mrs. Schindler broke her hip several years ago, and became an invalid, she was content to read or to listen while her husband, at her bedside, read to her. He read newspapers, magazines and books and sometimes a book in German, translating it for her.

Nursed and Cooked for Wife.

When she became bedfast, he took over the duties of cook and nurse. The stove used to prepare simple meals burned coal and made the room uncomfortably warm in summer. But coal was cheap.

There was one concession to modern comfort. While the hall of the rooming house was lighted by a gas jet, Mr. Schindler liked an electric light for reading.

Few people entered the room on the third floor, reached by two steep flights of stairs. The caretaker of the building had not been in it for many years.

Three weeks ago, Mr. Schindler sprained his wrist, wringing a dishcloth. It made his housekeeping and nursing duties more difficult and he walked to City Hospital for treatment. Then he was taken to Deaconess Hospital by Meyer and as there was no one to care for Mrs. Schindler, she went, too, both occupying the same room. Mr. Schindler died of a heart ailment.

Bequests to Friends.

Miss Marie Leuenberg, 1919 South Grand boulevard, who is the ultimate beneficiary of $5000, is secretary of the supply company. Miss Leah Peters, 6934 West Park avenue, who will receive $500, knew Mr. Schindler for about eight years while she was employed by the company as a stenographer. She recalled frequent conversations with the kindly Mr. Schindler during which they discussed a popular weekly magazine which he read from cover to cover each Sunday. She never had been in his home.

Mr. Schindler had seldom, if ever, attended church in St. Louis, yet he provided for charities of various faiths in his will. Mrs. Schindler, he explained in a note appended to his will, was an orphan, they had had no children and there were no legal heirs. Two orphans' homes and a hospital for crippled children are beneficiaries. And for the elderly who are not content, as the Schindlers were, to live in one room on the third floor, he left $11,000 to two homes for the aged.

The bequests to charities were: St. Louis Altenheim, $10,000; Shriners' Hospital for Crippled Children, $5000; German General Protestant Orphans' Home, 4447 Natural Bridge avenue, $3000; Little Sisters of the Poor, $3000; German Protestant Orphans' Home, Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, Bethesda, Inc., Jewish Orphans' Home and Children's Home Society of Missouri, $2000 each; Frank Wyman Outing Farm, Missouri Goodwill Industries, St. Louis Maternity Hospital, Salvation Army, South Side Day Nursery, Tuberculosis and Health Society, Father Dempsey's Hotel, St. Ann's Widows' Home and Lutheran Altenheim, $1000 each.

CITIES SERVICE HOLDING FIRM REVISING ITS ORGANIZATION

Kansas City Gas Unit Seeks to Assume Outright Control of Five Subsidiaries.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 29.—The Gas Service Co., Kansas City, holding company for Cities Service properties in four states, asked the State Public Service Commission yesterday for permission to assume outright control of five Missouri subsidiaries.

B. C. Adams, vice-president and general manager of the Gas Service Co., said the request was in conformity with requirements of the new Federal Holding Company Law.

The Gas Service Co. also asked for permission to transfer control of the Kansas City Gas Co., another Cities Service subsidiary, to the parent company.

Adams explained that this procedure was necessary because 10 per cent of the Kansas City company's stock was owned by outside interests. He said that control of the Kansas City company later would revert to the Gas Service Co.

Missouri companies involved in the proposed transaction are: Jackson County Heat & Power Co., St. Joseph Gas Co., Carthage Gas Co., Webb City and Carterville Gas Co., and Ozark Utilities Co.

ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT SALE

Plans for Campaign Announced After White House Conference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Plans for a campaign to sell Government-sponsored electrical equipment were announced yesterday by Morris L. Cooke, head of the Rural Electrification Administration, after a White House conference attended by Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator. Cooke said he was making arrangements with electrical manufacturers to "add to the line" previously carried by the Electric Home and Farm Authority.

The latter agency, set up as a subsidiary of the Tennessee Valley Authority, was reorganized recently after its activities were enjoined and Cooke became its director. Cooke said that although RFC funds were available, he had arranged to finance purchase of the equipment through private loans. The RFC is expected to put up most of the money for loans to build farm power lines, he added.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 29.—David Lamson's third trial on a charge of killing his wife was continued until Nov. 12 yesterday. Superior Judge Robert R. Syer granted the State's request for a delay after Defense Attorney Leo R. Friedman filed a petition asking the Judge to disqualify himself on grounds of bias and prejudice. Judge Syer previously had denied a similar request, denied a change of venue and granted a new jury panel.

NATIONAL BOARD SAYS PLANES ARE NOW RAIL COMPETITOR

Resources Committee Cites Transportation of 50-Pound Gold Ingots, 1600-Pound Shaft.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Summarizing reports of state planning councils on transportation needs, the National Resources Committee said yesterday that railroads were faced with competition not only from automobile vehicles and pipe lines, but airplanes.

"Idaho," the committee said, "makes allround use of air lines in the State, where the major air-freight service is to mines. Planes delivering 50-pound ingots of gold are no exception at the Boise airport, nor is the flying of a 1600-pound shaft to a mine, and landing it on the snow.

"The delivery of fuel oil has been accomplished in the same manner. The most important use of the air service during hot months has been the tranporting of men and equipment to fight forest fires."

The committee said, however, that aviation interest "varies greatly among the states. New Mexico and Missouri planning boards "reported no special need for intrastate air routes," it said.

RECAPTURED CONVICT ENDS LIFE WITH POISON

'Midget' Fernekes Found Dying in Chicago Cell—Escaped From Joliet.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Henry J. (Midget) Fernekes killed himself today rather than return to the State penitentiary at Joliet, from which he escaped Aug. 3.

Rearrested yesterday after 12 weeks' freedom, the 5-foot, 4-inch outlaw, accused of three murders, swallowed poison in his cell at the Detective Bureau this morning.

Police found him unconscious an hour after they had talked with him at 9 a. m. He died in an ambulance en route to a hospital. A Coroner's physician reported an examination of the brain tissue showed death was due to poison.

Fernekes, 37 years old, came from Valparaiso, Ind. For 14 years he had been sought by New York State authorities for the killing of two men in a bank robbery in Pearl River, in 1921.

He told Chief of Detectives Sullivan last midnight: "I'd rather go back to New York and face the chair than go back to Joliet."

A small glass vial containing greenish-white crystals was found in a pocket of Fernekes' trousers when his clothes were examined in the presence of reporters. The convict had studied chemistry. "His guards said they had searched him with extreme care only a few hours earlier, stripping the prisoner and ripping out the seams of his clothing, but found nothing.

How he managed to walk out of the State prison has not been explained. It is presumed that civilian clothes and a pair of dark glasses were smuggled to him, and in this costume he walked past the guards, who thought he was a prison visitor.

He was serving a sentence of 10 years to life for the killing of Cashier Michael Swintowski in the robbery of the Pulaski Building and Loan Association of Chicago.

When arrested he denied he was Fernekes, but his identity was established through fingerprints.

In an inquiry after Fernekes escaped from prison, Capt. Michael Leonard, in charge of the interview room, a veteran of 17 years' service; Frank Friend, guard at the inner gate, who had been employed 20 years; Robert Shaw, outer gate sentinel, and James Nolan, a supervisor of the fiber shop where Fernekes worked, were dismissed.

WHY MILLIONS CARRY TUMS!

MILLIONS now know the smart thing is to carry a roll of Tums, always. Heartburn, gas, and other symptoms of acid indigestion have a habit of occurring at unexpected times. You don't have to drench your stomach with harsh alkalies which physicians have long warned may make the tendency toward acid indigestion worse. Tums, a real scientific advancement, contain no soda or other alkalies. Instead a wonderful antacid that simply neutralizes stomach acidity, the balance passing out of the body inert. Pleasant to eat as candy. Only 10c a roll. Put a roll in your pocket now.

LACLEDE GAS WAGE HEARING UNDER WAY

Witness Before Arbiters Charges Discrimination Against Union.

Martin Wagner and Thomas Morley, leaders of the Gas House Workers' Union, appeared today before the special committee appointed to arbitrate the increased wage demands of the 750 union employes of the Laclede Gas Light Co.

Answering questions of Munro Roberts, union attorney, Wagner said his wages as a first-class fitter for the gas company were 81 cents an hour, as compared with $1.43 an hour for expert union gas fitters employed by contractors. Wagner testified that Louis Cuneo, gas fitting contractor, who did installation work for the gas company during the strike of union employes early this year, paid his gas fitters $1 an hour.

The union employes of the gas company are asking for increases ranging from 5 to 30 per cent. Wagner said that for first-class fitters the increase would be to 93½ cents an hour.

Wagner charged, in his statement, that instances of discrimination against union workers had occurred since the settlement of the strike last July. He recited the case of two workers at the company's coke plant in Luxemburg who, he said, told him they were being forced by company "tactics" to give up membership in the union.

The union leaders testified that there had been an increase in general living expenses, justifying a wage increase retroactive to last July 17, the date on which the strike was settled.

A letter, which Wagner said had been turned over to him, was introduced showing that the Laclede Gas Light Co. had rewarded certain employes, who had remained loyal during the strike. The communication, signed by E. P. Gosling, company president, spoke of the company's inability to increase wages generally, but mentioned a "token of appreciation," which, the letter stated, was inclosed. Wagner said he had been informed that the "token" was a check for $50.

The arbitration committee is composed of former Gov. Elliott Major, chairman; A. E. Wyatt, personnel director, for the company, and Joseph M. Klamon, Washington University instructor, for the union. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow afternoon at Hotel Mayfair.

GAS HEAT gives so much more for the money

THE ST. LOUIS COUNTY GAS COMPANY

No wonder Gas Heat has gone into more St. Louis County homes this year than ever before

To derive the utmost pleasure and benefit of living in the County one SHOULD HAVE clean, healthful Gas Heat. The comfort and the freedom it gives from furnace dirt and from furnace care make it a joy to the whole family. The house is always comfortable, no matter when you go out or when you come in. You don't have to even look at the furnace.

The One-Year Plan

lets people in the County prove to themselves the value of modern Gas Heat

The Gas Company will tell you how much gas it should take to heat your home for one year . . . will install a gas burner in your furnace and remove it at the end of the year, refunding all payments on the burner, if the cost of gas exceeds that specified under the plan.

St. Louis County is changing to Gas Heat

This Plan will put gas heat in your home now and will either prove that its cost does not exceed the budget set for it or will give you the privilege of having it removed without losing a penny on the burner.

Don't put off until tomorrow what you can have today. Life is fleeting. Have Gas Heat put in your home now. Enjoy this Winter. Call us about it . . . our number is REpublic 4561.

Judge Grants Stay to Dave Barry.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Judge Michael Feinberg granted a stay of mittimus yesterday until Nov. 6 in the case of Dave (Loung Count) Barry, former boxing referee, sentenced to a year in the County Jail for conspiracy to embezzle bank funds. The stay will allow Barry's attorney to complete preparations for an appeal. Barry was at liberty under $10,000 bond. He was sentenced last June.

INCREASE IN RELIEF ALLOTMENTS URGED

Mass Meeting Also Opposes Discontinuance of Direct Federal Aid.

Resolutions opposing the announced intention of the Government to discontinue direct Federal relief by Nov. 15 were adopted last night at a mass meeting of more than 800 representatives of St. Louis labor, political and social welfare organizations at Third Baptist Church, Grand and Washington boulevards.

The meeting, sponsored by the Permanent Council on Relief Needs, demanded an immediate increase of not less than 50 per cent over present relief allotments, provision of proper medical care for those on direct relief and Works Progress Administration programs and that union wages be paid to all employed on WPA works.

Other resolutions, calling on the Governor to call a special session of the Legislature and for the Mayor to call a meeting of the Board of Aldermen to provide funds for relief, unemployment insurance and old age pensions, and one demanding the maintenance of civil and legal rights, were unanimously approved.

Principal speaker of the evening was the Rev. Claude C. Williams, vice-president of the American Federation of Teachers, who was recently ousted as pastor of a Presbyterian church in Paris, Ark., for his activities in support of striking miners, and who later was convicted of barratry in a municipal court in Fort Smith, Ark.

The economic system in the United States, he said, is not designed for comfort, security or education but is operated for profit. During a period of territorial and industrial expansion, this system could operate, he said, but that period is over and only 30 per cent of our mechanical potentialities are being used.

"Concession to Masses."

This depression, he continued, is not a temporary but a permanent condition which is becoming more aggravated as time goes on. He characterized relief as a temporary concession to the suffering, exploited masses, and said all New Deal legislation, which might have aided the workers, inevitably contained a "joker," put in the measures at the insistence of industrialists.

When the breaking point was reached, the NIRA and other legislation was enacted, the speaker said, but as soon as the attention of the workers had been diverted, NIRA was declared unconstitutional by "unsympathetic constitutional lawyers," and every concession was withdrawn.

Since then, he continued, a number of techniques have been adopted to subjugate the workers to save profits. The public school system is threatened with a return to conditions of 1870, and only teachers, willing to take orders from the 400 families ruling the country, are being hired, he declared. "As a result, the schools are becoming aggressively worthless and wickedly orthodox."

Other methods being employed, he charged, are the passing of anti-sedition bills and the revival of "our old friend—the Red scare" by the American Legion, chambers of commerce and merchant associations.

Security and Union Wages.

"Measures to establish security wages," he stated, "are designed to abolish trade union wages. It is designed to force the starving workers to work for what they can. That is why relief will be discontinued—because industrialists oppose a decent relief wage which would make their employes leave their shops and join the relief lines."

Other speakers were Sam Katz, St. Louis Welfare Guild; George Roberts, member of the Molders' Union; Joe Morris, organizer for the American Workers' Union, who faces contempt charges growing out of the strike of tiff miners at Potosi, Mo.; Sidney Williams, Urban League, and the Rev. George M. Gibson, pastor of Webster Groves Congregational Church.

The meeting was the result of a conference sponsored by the St. Louis Welfare Guild several weeks ago, when the Permanent Council on Relief Needs was organized among 64 organizations.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF NAVY SPEAKS AT DOUBLE LAUNCHING

Henry L. Roosevelt Stresses Industrial Importance of Expansion in Philadelphia Speech.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29. — The industrial importance of the naval expansion program was stressed yesterday by Henry L. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, at the launching of the destroyers Shaw and Cassin, and the laying of the keel for the cruiser Wichita.

He said the launching marked "the successful expansion of the Philadelphia yard from a state of comparative inactivity to the No. 1 shipbuilding plant in the United States. It now employs more than 7000 men. Its payroll exceeds $1,000,000 a month."

After the destroyers slid into the Delaware River, Roosevelt drove the first rivet in the keel of the $13,700,000 cruiser Wichita, the last heavy cruiser under present treaties.

In another shipway the hull of the cruiser Philadelphia as taking form. Across the river at the New York Shipbuilding Co. yard in Camden, N. J., three light cruisers and four destroyers costing more than $50,000,000 are under construction.

The Cassin and Shaw are of 1500 tons standard displacement and mount five-inch guns.

ITINERANT CONFESSES KILLING GIRL, 12, AT FAIRFIELD, ME.

Makes Statement After He Is Arrested on Charge of Attacking Girl, 14.

By the Associated Press.

AUBURN, Me., Oct. 29. — Guy Cressey, 28-year-old wanderer, confessed today, Sheriff Ralph Riley said, that he criminally assaulted and killed 12-year-old Annie K. Knights at Fairfield Oct. 7. Riley said Cressey told him he "choked her with a rope and tied her body to a stump."

Cressey was arrested Monday night on a charge of criminally assaulting a 14-year-old Livermore schoolgirl.

Missing two days, the body of Annie Knights was found by a boy Oct. 9 in bushes near a highway. Her arms were tied behind her to a tree stump.

Sheriff Riley said Cressey's story to a Livermore woman of being a State detective in the Knights' case aroused his suspicions. The confession, Riley said, was made this morning, after several hours of questioning.

BEARS CRIPPLED FOR OPENING OF VALLEY SEASON WITH CREIGHTON

There have been happier situations than that in which the Washington U. Bears find themselves today as they continue preparation for the Creighton game Saturday, the game which opens the Bears' 1935 Missouri Valley Conference competition. Two reasons for their unhappiness are the injuries to regular players and the report of Scout Percy Gill that Creighton is stronger than for some years. It is certain that Londy, guard, Lamb, tackle and Wimberly, fullback, are out of Saturday's battle. It is uncertain that Hobbs, end and best kicker and Droke, halfback, will be able to play. That means a definite loss of strength and then there's the report of Scout Gill about the power of the Omaha Blue Jays. October was pretty tough for the Bears and November is beginning to look almost as difficult.

According to Gill, Creighton uses a straight Notre Dame system with a few frills such as some spreads which have proved effective. There will be little difference in weight between the Bluejays and Bears and the Creighton morale is higher than merely high because the new Creighton coach, Marchy Schwartz of Notre Dame fame, has made a great hit with the players.

Six Young Bluejays.

Creighton probably will start a team which has six sophomores in the lineup, Gill says and adds "they are SOME sophomores." One of them, Vinciquerra, 185-pound fullback, he designates as the best plunger he has seen in many a moon. He also rated Holland, Creighton center, as an all-round star.

Defensively, the scout rated Creighton highly. "Once" he says, "Drake, two weeks ago, had the ball on Creighton's one-yard line, first down and couldn't score. Then, last Saturday, with Grinnell leading 6 to 0, the Bluejays just seemed to "click" all at once and push over the tying touchdown and the winning after-point. It's a team that appears to need real crises to bring out their best football and when the crises come, they rise to them."

Gill also pointed out that in five games—Rice, St. Louis, Drake, Oklahoma Aggies and Grinnell — Creighton had permitted only 24 points, 12 of which were scored by Rice which defeated Duquesne 27 to 7. And, Duquesne won from Washington by a touchdown. In fact, Gill says, Creighton and Duquesne are very much alike in material, plays and ability.

All of which would appear to point toward difficulties in the road of the Bears to the retention of their Valley football championship for Drake, the team that follows Creighton in, tied Creighton, 6 to 6.

But, the Creighton game will come in November and November, the Bears argue, cannot possibly be as tough as October proved. Work was necessarily limited because of bad weather yesterday but there was some outside work after indoor calisthenics with handling of the

For nearly two years metropolitan headlines have had him on his way out; but he's not only "in," but apparently in good.

Perhaps the most amazing gesture he ever made in his career was when he chose Jim Braddock as the "logical contender" for Baer's crown and then picked him to beat Max.

Before the fight Johnston was laughed at; but when Braddock outfought and outgeneralled Max to gain his title, it was Johnston's turn to laugh. And perhaps you think he didn't.

The Passing Show.

THE Bears of Jimmy Conzelman
Into a tough obstruction ran
That mussed up his "eleven."
Alas! into a jinx he bumped
And by the Spartans he was thumped
"Thirteen" to forty-seven!

Missouri Tigers went to Ames
To boost their streak of winning games
And brave the Cyclones' fury.
Although they only got a draw
The corn-fed opposition saw
That they were from Missouri.

The Bulldog tackled Army's mule
Which gave that celebrated school
A course in football kicking;
On Yale he clamped a hammer lock,
And gave the Bulldog such a shock,
His wounds he still is licking.

Saw Layden's "Irish" take the Gobs
And lead them to the slaughter.
The Army still they have to beat,
Our Uncle's forces to defeat,
On land as well as water.

A THREE-DAY open season
On deer brings no relief;
Though venison is deer meat,
So is pork and beef.

To beat the cost of living
I had a little plan
Which simply meant becoming

So I refrained from slices
Of various costly meats,
And, lo! up went the prices
Of cabbage, beans and beets!

MISSISSIPPI U. RATED HIGH BY BILLIKEN COACH

By James M. Gould.

Combining the duty of scout with that of coach, Cecil Muellerleile, football director of St. Louis University last Saturday afternoon went to Milwaukee "for to see what he could see" in the game between Mississippi and Marquette Universities. "Mull" was more than ordinarily interested in the spectacle because "Ole Miss" is scheduled to oppose his Billikens at Walsh Stadium Friday night. To hear him tell it, Muellerleile half wishes he hadn't seen Mississippi in action because what he saw, he says, completely ruined his enjoyment of the trip home.

"They've got everything," said "Mull" today. "They're big and fast and smart and, honest, I'll be tickled stiff if we win Friday's game by just one point. Just one point more; give me that margin Friday night and I'll be more than satisfied."

How was it, then, he was asked, that the Billikens made a much better showing against Marquette than Mississippi did? How come and why and wherefore, such being the case that he was "a-skeered" of the Mississippians?

"That's easy," the coach replied. "Marquette was a much better team against Mississippi than against us and, at that, they didn't push 'Ole Miss' around."

But they scored 33 points against them, he was reminded. "Oh, sure," he came back, "but how? On passes, that's how. They couldn't gain much on running plays and only their passes were effective. Mississippi was pretty cocky. The team had scored some 200 points against only six, it was a cold day and Marquette scored on almost the first play of the game. Everything was against them, but even so, Marquette made no steady marches down the field. In fact, the Avalanche had to resort to passes. If they hadn't the teams might be playing yet for a decision."

The next question had to do with the respective weights of Mississippi and St. Louis. Muellerleile said the Southerners were much the heavier with a line averaging around 198 to about 191 for the Billikens and a backfield of 193 average to 171 for St. Louis. The two lightest Mississippi backs, he said, were 180-pounders.

Muellerleile was especially impressed by the backfield ability of two brothers—"Big" Hapes, a mere 230-pounder and "Little" Hapes, who weighs 165.

Also, a young gentleman by the name of MacWilliams of Mississippi was nominated by Muellerleile as the "best blocking guard I have ever seen." "Mull" attributed Mississippi's defeat by Marquette to poor quarterbacking. He said that the Southern team's running attack was clicking all through the game, but that once within the scoring zone, the Mississippi quarter abandoned runs and took to passing with disastrous results.

"Mark my words," he concluded his praise of "Ole Miss," "we're in for a mighty tough game and if you can guarantee me that we'll have a point to the good Friday, I'll be much obliged."

Now, few coaches will admit before a game that the opponent in a coming game is going to be "easy." And, it is quite possible Muellerleile believes all he says. It also is just as possible that he doesn't. Probing a coach's mind when he is talking for publication is a tough probing proposition.

The fact remains, however, that if Mississippi is really tough, the Billikens never were in better shape to meet a tough team. Every one of the regulars are ready for action after their semi-vacation last Friday night when they appeared in only one quarter against Arkansas State. Also, reserves are able and plentiful.

Yesterday, the rain interfered somewhat with St. Louis practice but the men worked out on the cinder-covered parking lot east of the stadium and put in a couple of hours perfecting a pass defense against the air attack which their coach saw at Milwaukee. Also, blockers were given work in protecting kickers and passers.

THOROUGHBRED CLUB TO HONOR OMAHA'S OWNER

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 29.—Silas H. Strawn, nationally known Chicago lawyer, will be the principal speaker at the testimonial dinner to be given by the Thoroughbred Club of America here Nov. 14 in honor of William Woodward, New York, it was announced today.

The dinner will be the fourth of its kind to be held here in four years. Col. E. R. Bradley was the guest of honor in 1932, Joseph E. Widener in 1933 and the late Desha Breckinridge, Lexington publisher and turfman, in 1934. The guest of honor is selected for his outstanding contribution to racing during the year.

FOUR BOWLERS TOTAL 700 IN LEAGUE ROUND

Sensational bowling featured last night's round of the Classic League on the Rogers Recreation alleys. Four individuals had totals of better than 700, while four teams scored over 3000, with three of the number going over the 3100 mark.

Harry Frederic of the Budweisers was the leading individual, putting together games of 223, 243 and 279 for a 745 total, an average of better than 248. Ted Gillett of the Rogers, had 705, with a high game of 279; Mitzi Weinstein of the Hermanns totaled 704 and Ben Cohen of the Silver Seals 701.

The Hermanns had counts of 1034, 1046 and 1075 for a 3155 count, the best team score of the night. This big count enabled the team to win three straight from Old Judge, with 2975. Sottrell of the losers totaled 645.

The Rogers scored 3109 to win three straight from the Chas. J. Krons, with 2872, while in the closest match of the round, the Silver Seals scored 3108 to 3078 for the Budweisers to make off with the odd game.

The Say It With Flowers, led by Otto Stein Jr., with 632, totaled 2964 to win three straight from the Allhoffs, with 2890. Milt Fletcher hit 660 for the losers.

Following last night's round, the Hermanns are leading in the title race with 26 victories and seven defeats, five games ahead of the Silver Seals. The Budweisers, with 17-16, are third.

RETZLOFF-LOUIS BOUT IN CHICAGO UNDER DISCUSSION

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29. — Promoter Mike Jacobs of New York conferred with Chicago Stadium matchmakers today on a proposa lto match the sensational Joe Louis against an unnamed opponent, probably Charley Retzlaff, in a bout here next January.

Retzlaff, a lanky farmer boy with a devastating right hand sock, is in the midst of an impressive winning streak, knocking out Al Ettore and Art Lasky and beating Ford Smith in his last three starts.

JOCKEY PETERS INJURED IN FALL

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 29.—Maurice Peters, the country's leading jockey last year, was injured in a fall in the first race on today's program here.

In a jam of the 11 horses at the start of the six-furlong dash, Peters was thrown from H. W. Wageley's Canteret. An examination showed his right collarbone to be broken. He was taken to the South Baltimore General Hospital.

Arizmendi to Box Day.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Alberto "Baby" Arizmendi, Los Angeles Mexican who ranks with the country's foremost featherweights, will go out of his class to meet Davey Day, Chicago lightweight title contender, at the Chicago Stadium, Nov. 8, in a 10-round bout. Arizmendi has agreed to let Day weight in at the lightweight limit of 135 pounds, after holding out for 134

MATCHMAKER FOR NEW YORK CLUB GETS FIRST CALL ON THURSDAY NIGHT'S WINNER

By W. J. McGoogan.

Bob Olin, light-heavyweight boxing champion of the world, and the promoters of his title defense against John Henry Lewis, Arizona Negro, at the Arena Thursday night, won a victory in the skirimish with Madison Square Garden of New York today, when the Garden agreed to dismissal of its application for an injunction in Judge Max G. Baron's court, with the proviso that the winner box for the Garden within six months against the best available opponent.

About the time Judge Baron was ready to begin the hearing, Judge Fred G. English, representing the Garden, asked the Court for a little time for a discussion of the case between interested parties with a view to a settlement out of court.

Whereupon Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Garden; Lew Raymond and Benny Greenberg, promoters; Harold Scadron, Olin's manager, and Gus Greenlee, Lewis' manager, with their attorneys and Missouri Commissioner Ernest Oakley, repaired to the chambers of Judge Wesley McAfee for a conference.

Johnston's Statement.

After a few minutes, reporters were called in and told that Johnston had a statement to make concerning the dismissal of the Garden's suit.

"Owing to the fact that the promoters have gone to considerable expense in the promotion of this bout, which will give St. Louis its first chance to view a world championship contest in some time, Madison Square Garden has agreed to dismiss its suit with the understanding that the winner of the fight will box for us within six months against the best available opponent," Johnston said.

It was said the court costs would be defrayed by the Garden.

The attorneys then went into Judge Baron's court and went through the formality of legal dismissal.

Training Uninterrupted.

Judge Baron did say later that he had examined the Garden's contract and petition thoroughly last night and on the face of it did not think it would have held, declaring that the provisions were such as to have enabled the Garden to keep Olin from boxing for life without any obligation on its part, had it so chosen.

He said he naturally did not know what the testimony would have disclosed, but merely from the contract the Garden had no reason to expect any favorable action.

The effect of the action, of course, is almost nil, so far as the boxers are concerned. They have kept right on with their training since the application was filed and possibly the only sufferers have been the promoters because the advance sale of tickets has been retarded. They are now free to go ahead with their promotional efforts.

Johnston, who arrived by plane last night, prepared to depart as soon as possible because the Garden has a show Friday night and he was unable to remain here for the Olin-Lewis go.

He did say before leaving that he thought Olin had every attribute to defeat Lewis if he stuck to his task.

Some Predictions on Outcome.

Some who have been watching both boxers in their training for more than a week believe that Lewis will win, and just about as many others favor the chances of Olin.

George Wilsman, for instance, manager of Al Stillman and Allen Matthews, believes that Lewis will gain the decision in 15 rounds, claiming that Lewis is too smart for Olin, that he is a much better boxer and probably will have Olin all but out by the end of the fight.

Eddie Vandeventer (Kid Bandy), manager of Joe Parks, who has been boxing with Olin regularly thinks that Olin is just too rough and tough for Lewis, that John Henry will not be able to withstand the punches which Olin will throw at him. Eddie thinks that Olin is a distance horse, that Lewis will undoubtedly have the better of the early fighting, but that Bob will come stronger at the finish and cop the verdict.

Scadron, taking his first peek at Olin since Bob started training for this fight, declared that he was pleased with his man's appearance and had no doubt as to the outcome.

"I have never seen a man give Bob more than he was able to take," asserted Scadron, "and I have never seen a man able to take all that Bob can give when he's right. And he's going to be right Thursday night.

"His training has been in the capable hands of Ray Arcel and I know that Olin will be ready to do his best."

Observers of both men's training have noticed that Olin is easy enough to hit, bearing out the impression you get from his appearance which indicates that Bob has been to the wars. Parks has been able to hit Bob without effort.

At the same time Olin does appear to be a rough, strong fellow, who keeps everlastingly after his opponent. His best weapon seems to be a left hook to the body which he lashes out with speed and precision.

Lewis no doubt is a better boxer than Olin. Also he is strong, but not so strong as Olin, it would seem. John Henry doesn't appear to punch as hard as Olin either, but he will land more often than Bob, in the opinion of those who have been watching the men.

It will be a question, seemingly, of whether Olin can weather the early storm he is almost sure to face and have enough left to finish strongly, if and when Lewis tires.

As to a knockout, that hardly seems probable from the record of either man. Neither has displayed a killing punch. Both have been defeated. So it would seem that the ultimate victor will be decided by the tide of the batle, depending upon which direcion it turns. A little luck here or there may decide the issue.

PAUL PIRRONE AND FRANK BATTAGLIA TO FIGHT ON NOV. 11

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 29. — A 10-round middleweight bout between Paul Pirrone of Cleveland and Frank Battaglia of Winnipeg, Man., was announced yesterday by promoters Taylor and Gunnis for Nov. 11 at the arena here.

It will be their second meeting. The Canadian knocked out Pirrone in a round when they fought first, in February, 1934.

Leroy Haynes, Los Angeles Negro heavyweight, and Willie Reddish, Philadelphia Negro who recently outpointed Eddie Simms of Cleveland, will be the semifinal bout opponents.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Still on Top.

JIMMY JOHNSTON, a little Irishman in a big job (matchmaker for Madison Square Garden), who is here in the role of trouble shooter for his employers, in the Olin-Lewis fight controversy, has been in more fights than most of the men he matches.

A mere mite of a man, he is an 18-karat scrapper and has been in more promotion battles than he can recall. He has wielded a powerful influence in New York as was shown this year when he survived determined efforts to remove him from his position.

JOHNSTON

For nearly two years metropolitan headlines have had him on his way out; but he's not only "in," but apparently in good.

Perhaps the most amazing gesture he ever made in his career was when he chose Jim Braddock as the "logical contender" for Baer's crown and then picked him to beat Max.

Before the fight Johnston was laughed at; but when Braddock outfought and outgeneralled Max to gain his title, it was Johnston's turn to laugh. And perhaps you think he didn't.

Garden Holds the Key.

AS a result of Johnston's judgment, the Garden is in a key position in New York and able to cut in on Mike Jacobs' gold mine, Joe Louis. Control of the title is a real asset.

One wonders how even a canny observer like Johnston could have chosen Braddock. Of course, the answer is that Braddock had been coming back in previous fights and had as a climax beaten Art Lasky, then being touted as a logical foe for Baer.

Johnston also knew that Braddock had a good punch, was game and was in condition. He suspected that Baer lacked the last two requisites and would not be able to use the first.

Even so, he must have remembered that Braddock was so little esteemed that when Bob Olin beat Maxie Rosenbloom for the light-heavyweight title, Braddock fought John Henry Lewis in the light-heavyweight preliminary the same night on the same card.

It took courage to pick such an ordinary opponent as Braddock then appeared to be for a

Pointer Owner Ordered Killed Wins State Amateur Derby

By the Associated Press.

MOBERLY, Mo., Oct. 29.—Every dog has his day but few ever will approach the accomplishments of Tom Tinker Schroers, New Missouri amateur derby champion.

Tom, a pointer nearly two years old, won his laurels in the State meet near Sturgeon yesterday under the guidance of Irvin Young, a Mexico farmer who never before had seen a field trial.

Until Young took charge of the dog, Tom's life had been one of trouble. His original owner was Herb Schroers of Vinita, Ok., nationally known bird dog trainer and authority. Schroers didn't like Tom's markings so he gave him to Mrs. Loyal Wonneman of Mexico.

At the Wonneman Kennels Tom caused trouble and finally he was taken to the Young farm with the request that he be killed.

At Sturgeon yesterday he won the State amateur championship in competition with 25 pointers, some of them from the Schroer kennels.

Hunters from Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Oklahoma started competition in the "all age stakes" following completion of the members' derby today. Four cash prizes were offered.

Between 75 and 80 dogs are kenneled on the scene awaiting participation in various events of the meet.

DETROIT CLUB LOST MONEY ON WORLD SERIES, NAVIN SAYS

WORK STARTED ON IMPROVING PARK FOR NEXT PENNANT RACE

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—Those poor 'ole Detroit Tigers threw $500,000 today at the wolf that started hanging around during the world series.

Mr. Wolf didn't have a chance to prowl around the Tiger den during the regular season. Attendance which surged past the million mark made the turnstiles click so fast and the money bags jingle so merrily that the noise kept him away. But then came that world series, and the wolf, sniffing the thousands of dollars in expenses of which only the boss Tigers knew, came padding around the bengal bailiwick.

But when he poked his nose inside the door at Navin Field today, he took it on the lam, routed by a crash of concrete as workmen began wrecking operations which started expenditure by the Detroit club of a cool half million dollars to pep up business hereabouts next year.

Lost Money on Series.

Charles J. Navin, club secretary, said today that the Detroit club didn't even break even on the 1935 fall classic. Without digging the receipt and expenditure records out of the vault, Navin further said that even had the Chicago-Tiger battle gone a seventh game, the Detroit club would not have climbed out of "the red" on the series proper.

"The expenses in getting ready for a world series are terrific, considering the fact the players take the big share of the first four games," Navin pointed out. "It cost the Detroit Baseball Co. more than $55,000 just to get the park ready by improving the field, moving the score board and building the temporary bleachers to seat about 20,000." (Each club's share in the series was $137,324.26.)

Best Campaign in Years.

Navin then pointed out that extra ticket sellers, ushers and other attendants had to be employed. Then there was the item of about 40 young women who worked for weeks taking ticket applications. Extra ground men were hired, and when the series began, the club entertained members of the working press at a Detroit hotel. The item of ticket printing also was a heavy expense.

Navin said the past season was one of the best the Detroit club ever has enjoyed and the enlargement of the park is an effort to accomodate the fans who loyally have supported the club. While plans still are tentative, he said the general idea is that the pavilions in right and left field will become part of the two-deck permanent grandstand and that the center field bleachers will be connected with the right field grandstand and also be made into two decks.

ball accented. The Bears fumbled away many chances in the October games and Head Coach Conzelman and his assistant "Happy Gale" Bullman are determined to correct the fault if possible.

Hobbs May Play.

There is some hope that Ray Hobbs can return to his end-position Saturday and, if Droke, too, finds he can play, the Bears will be better fixed than they figured they would be for playing talent. Noskay and Tomlinson probably will start at the tackles Saturday. Zboyovski's return to form assures his start at quarter and Hudgens also is a certain starter with Joe Bukant. If Droke cannot play, Tutinsky appears to have the present first-call for the other half-back job.

No signs of a "depression" are apparent at Washington. The boys feel they have "been through the wars" but they figure, too, that they are a better team because of the class of competition they have faced. They are sure they showed improvement in the last two October games and are just as certain that the improvement will continue to such a point that they will "take" Creighton and thus be away to a good start toward another Valley title.

Primo Must Be "Balmy."

PRIMO CARNERA is planning a comeback. He will, he says, knock out Walter Neusel quickly; then they'll have to give him a return match with Joe Louis, preferably after Louis wins the title from Braddock.

That's a bit in the future perhaps, but Primo can wait. Or, he might first beat Joe this winter in Florida, and then push over Braddock to gain the crown he seeks.

No trouble for Primo. "He always beats 'em the second time he fights 'em," says Louis Soresi, Primo's manager. "Sharkey, Maloney and others went that way. Louis will go the same way."

"But yes, signor," you reply, "we have no bananas!"

"By that, you mean what?" Mr. Soresi interrogates.

You explain that to knock out anybody one must have a knock-out punch. And Primo has none, yes?

"Yes and no," Mr. Soresi seems to explain. "Yes, he has no punch when he steeks out the so long left arm and pooshes. But that's in the deescard. Primo poosh no more; he what you say—sock!

* * *

Back to the Primitive.

IT DEVELOPS that Primo, disgusted with purely artificial defensive methods, is returning to the day of the cave man and kitchen midden. He reverts to the Neanderthal type. He will rush in and batter away as in the days when he first met the late Young Stribling.

He may even decide to take the opposition apart to see what operates him. He's going to use his weight, size and strength instead of holding back and letting the enemy call his shots—right to the commissary and left to the molars—as Louis did.

* * *

That's not a bad thought. A gargantuan Primo, charging the enemy, would yield a thrill anywhere. And if the enemy sidestepped him, what a spectacle he would make plunging on through the ropes to the concrete! Even Strangler Lewis couldn't rival that.

* * *

Fans would even desert the wrestlers to see that show.

* * *

But it's all just hooey. Primo wants another match with Louis for the loser's end. And that's what he'll receive, should they match the pair again.

* * *

Busy Winter for Joe.

VERY evidently Joe Louis is not going to be permitted to "rust" through idleness. Already he is matched with Paulino Uzcudun for December. And, Mike Jacobs having leased the Miami Arena, what more likely than that he will try to fill it with a match between Louis and Schmeling or some other secondary attraction—Retzlaff, Lasky, Ford Smith, or what have you?

Even Carnera or Schmeling might be considered for a Florida bout. Louis would bring back the big gate at Miami, if matched with a big name there. The bowl will hold about $600,000—and that's enough to justify almost any match short of a championship.

* * *

It Isn't Worth While.

AMERICAN tennis players want the "open" tournament legalized so badly that they threaten revolt. That is to say, they are talking of holding open tourneys in America, regardless of what England and European countries might do or say about it.

The effect would be to keep our amateurs out of important foreign tourneys with the exception of the Davis Cup play; and also to keep foreign players out of our own classics.

It is the belief of some of the leading amateurs and professionals that open tournaments in this country would arouse more interest—and develop more gate receipts—than anything Europe could do to help us, with the amateurs remaining exclusive.

But there isn't much need for haste. The amateurs of America today are not such wows that we want to see them tested out by men like Vines, Nusslein, Tilden and other professional masters. If and when we develop a superplayer or two, that will be time to capitalize on the "open" play.

In the meantime, the International Association will change its stand, ere long, and recognize the "open." A world-wide "open" tennis tourney would be something to talk about.

Inmate of Home in Kansas Dies, Still Claiming to Be 'Tip' O'Neill

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 29.—King "Tip" O'Neil, 76 years old, who said he was the noted baseball player with the St. Louis Browns half a century ago, died in the Sedgwick County Home here today of neuritis and infirmities of age.

Almost friendless, he had lain on his bed for weeks contradicting statements by sports writers all over the United States that he was not the famed baseball player.

Less than a week ago, he again stated that the "Tip O'Neill who died in Montreal, Canada, in 1918 was not the baseball player who batted .492 with the St. Louis Browns when that club was a member of the American Association in 1885."

The man around whom the controversy flared said he was forced to retire from baseball because of an injured arm which hampered his throwing. After leaving baseball, he said, he became a "boomer," engaging in coal mining in Kentucky, and a soldier in the United States army, which he joined in 1891 when war with Chile was threatened.

While in an army camp in the State of Washington, he said, he engaged a lieutenant in a fist fight and was courtmartialed and sentenced to Alcatraz. He later was pardoned, he said by President Theodore Roosevelt.

For four years prior to his death he had been employed at the county home here as a janitor and handyman.

For several weeks, he had been declining offers of help from old baseball fans to gain for him benefits of old and disabled players.

"I have everything here that any man needs or wants," he said. "I haven't long to live and there would be little or no use to attempt to do anything for me now."

Editor's Note—According to reliable information the Original "Tip" O'Neill (James E., not King) died of heart disease in Montreal Jan. 5, 1916, at the age of 52. He joined the old Browns in 1884 and was a member of Charles Comiskey's four-time pennant winners as an outfielder.

Added Offensive Plays.

Juveniles Run to Dead Heat in Race On English Track

By the Associated Press.

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 29.

A DEAD-HEAT marked the running of the Criterion Stakes today when Sir Abe Bailey's Dan Bulger and A. de Rothschild's Midstream finished all-square at the end of the six-furlong sprint for two-year-olds.

O'Mahony Gains Third Triumph Over Don George

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Amid much groaning, Dan O'Mahony young Irish wrestling sensation, hurled back the challenge of Ed Don George of North Java, N. Y., for the third time last night to defend successfully his world's heavyweight title before 10,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden.

O'Mahony weighed 220 and George 218.

The end came with startling suddenness and the quick decision was roundly booed by the gallery.

After slightly over five minutes of more or less enthusiastic grappling, O'Mahoney slugged George to the mat with his elbows, quickly applied a body straddle and it was all over but the booing.

The victory was in the nature of a celebration for O'Mahony. Last night he announced his engagement to Miss Esther Burke, a Cambridge (Mass.) nurse. The wedding will take place in the near future.

SACKETT WILL MEET CHITWOOD IN BOUT AT COLISEUM NEXT WEEK

Charley Sackett of East St. Louis, Greater St. Louis 112-pound champion, has been signed to take on Ray Chitwood of the Tower A. C. in one of the 10 all-star bouts being arranged by Matchmaker Benny Kessler for the Coliseum next Tuesday night.

A return bout, with a touch of revenge in it, is also one of the headliners on the program. Tony Moretta, the City Class B champion, who recently surprised with a decision over the St. Louis Class A lightweight champion, Tommy Starr, has been signed to take on Tommy again.

Featured also is the appearance of Lew Wallach, Ozark A. A. U. and city 118-pound champion, who is now fighting in the featherweight class and the return to the boxing wars of Paul Patterson, City Community Center 160-pound champion. Wallach takes on Willard Penrod, City Class A 126-pound titlist, while Patterson is scheduled to swap blows with Don Ellis, Greater St. Louis Class A champion.

Wolverine Eleven Wins.

The Wolverines blanked the Bombers, 5—0, last night in a Wesley House Soccer League contest. Costello scored four of the goals, and Allen the other. The Gunners also turned in a shutout victory, defeating the Hustlers, 6—0. Bethroad had three, and Jehne, Waddell and Hale, had one goal each.

WRESTLING RESULTS

NEW YORK.—Dan O'Mahony, 220, Ireland, defeated Ed Don George, North Java, N. Y., one fall.

CAMDEN, N. J.—Charley Santon, 220, Kirksville, Mo., defeated Ernie Hefner, 228, Sherman, Tex., one fall.

PORTLAND, Me.—Chuck Montana, 175, Detroit, defeated Bill Curry, 178, Chicago, two falls out of three.

FOOTBALL

by J. M. Gould

Back in "Peaceful Valley"

AND so it has come to pass that Jimmy Conzelman's Washington U. Bears roaming foreign fields and seeking the football light and a football tradition, are back in their own valley among more friendly and more equally-powerful enemies. The Bears fared forth bravely in early October and the end of the month finds them somewhat scratched up by the thorns of adverse fortune. But such scratches heal easily and, today, Conzelman's team undoubtedly is much smarter than it was four weeks ago. After all, one learns only from one who can teach.

Washington University never has had a real football tradition. Conzelman is building one up and it was most noticeable that the Bears in the last two of their four defeats against high-class teams, steadily improved in their play. The lessons learned against Illinois and Southern Methodist helped considerably against Duquesne and Michigan State. Moreover, the Bears showed the proper "never-quit" spirit by scoring against each of the four major opponents.

Once upon a time and not so many years ago, Notre Dame started to build up a football tradition. The then "little" South Bend school was practically unknown in "big" football circles. It was figured out that the best way to get in a higher football class was to play teams of a higher football class. Notre Dame began relations with West Point. They did well against the Army and they added the following year other strong elevens to their schedule. It is said that teams at Notre Dame, if they were allowed to play only one game a season, would choose the Army as their opponents because of the start the Cadets gave them in football. Certainly, Army always is on Notre Dame's schedule and will continue on it probably as long as football is played.

Notre Dame got well scratched up, too, in its rise to fame, but the Irish didn't weep about it. And the Bears won't weep either and the policy of playing the better teams ultimately will bring its own reward and Washington will be on the map of big time football with a real tradition behind its teams.

A Good Suggestion.

WHILE it isn't exactly new, the suggestion that, at the beginning of the third quarter, play be resumed under conditions existing when play ended in the second period, is getting attention among rules students.

There appears to be merit in the request for this change. Certainly, a team that has carried the ball 60 or 70 yards down the field into enemy territory should be allowed to cash in on the drive whether or not the time comes for a temporary cessation of play. The chief sufferer under the plan now in force most frequently is the weaker side. To a team well in the lead, it couldn't make much difference where play was resumed.

Hail to the Wolverines.

MICHIGAN State walloped Michigan U. early this season and followers of the Wolverines—those who hop on and off the band wagon—looked for another bad year for Kipke's team. It hasn't worked out that way, though, for Michigan has two victories and no defeats in Big Ten play and, Saturday, won from Columbia in an intersectional feature.

Michigan has a record to defend in the Big Ten. Over a 40-year stretch—from 1895 to 1934, inclusive—the Wolverines, in conference play, have won more games, scored more points and held opponents to a lower total than any other team in the group. Michigan's conference percentage of victories over four decades is .751 while the second team—Chicago, believe it or not—is 161 points lower in the table. In scoring, Michigan has averaged 15.8 points, Minnesota following with 14.7. In opponents' scoring, Michigan has allowed an average of 5.6 points with Wisconsin next with 8.4 for the opposition.

The Governor Remembers.

GOV. OLIN D. JOHNSON of South Carolina was a tackle on South Carolina U.'s eleven 13 years ago. Always interested in the game and in the success of his alma mater, Gov. Johnson, before the present season, announced that he would appoint the first scorer of the 1935 eleven to his staff.

Quarterback Clary now is Lieutenant-Colonel Clary.

THIL GAINS VICTORY OVER U. S. FIGHTER

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—Marcel Thil, recognized in some parts as the world's middleweight boxing champion, turned back Al Diamond of Paterson, N. J., in a 10-round non-title fight last night.

The Frenchman put Diamond on the defensive in the first round and then, with pounding rights and lefts that left the American's body and face badly bruised, took every other round. By the eighth round the crowd of 20,000 was howling for a knockout but the New Jersey fighter managed to stay on his feet. Twice he was warned for fouling.

MAPLEWOOD TO PLAY DAVENPORT TEAM, NOV. 9

Maplewood High School's remarkable offense that has bewildered all opposition to date and scored 200 points in five games, and its great defense that has kept its goal line uncrossed, will be given a severe series of tests in the next few weeks when it plays four games in two weeks. Davenport High of Iowa was scheduled last night for Nov. 9 at Maplewood's field, and a game with Muskogee, Ok., probably will be arranged for Nov. 16. Armin A. Wahlbrink, athletic director, announced.

The next game for the Maple Leafs will be Saturday at Webster Groves. The game with St. Louis University High, originally scheduled for Nov. 9, has been changed to Tuesday, Nov. 5 at Walsh Stadium to allow the playing of the Davenport contest.

The Nov. 16 game will be played at Maplewood if Muskogee is scheduled. It will be a home-and-home arrangement.

Davenport has won three of its four games this season, losing to Moline (Ill.) 13—7, and defeating Ottumwa (Ia.) 14—0; Galesburg (Ill.) 18—0, and East High Des Moines) 31—0. Davenport won the championship of the Quad-City Conference last season and is always represented by a strong eleven.

Maplewood has a home-and-home arrangement with Davenport, the 1936 game being scheduled for the Iowa city. Both school boards have passed favorably on the agreement.

Negotiations for a game with the Tonawanda (N. Y.) High School were dropped today when Wahlbrink learned that the school wanted to play at Maplewood. Wahlbrink had planned to schedule one game away from home and would have taken the game if it was to be played at Tonawanda. Now, Wahlbrink is writing to Muskogee to arrange that game for Nov. 16 at Maplewood and plans to schedule a post-season game away from home.

CHICAGO BEARS LEAD IN GROUND GAINING

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Although beaten Sunday, the champion New York Giants continue to lead the National Professional Football League in points and successful forward passing.

In six games to date the Giants have rolled up 109 points while holding their opponents to 62. The New Yorkers have completed 31 passes out of 66.

The Chicago Bears have been ousted from the leadership of the Western division of the league, but continue as the leading ground-gainers. In five games they have gained 1856 yards. The Green Bay Packers are second with 1548 in seven games.

The Detroit Lions continue to rule as the best defensive team, having held their opponents to 722 yards in five games.

ACES HOLD LEAD IN TABLE TENNIS LEAGUE

The Aces took eight of their nine matches with the Bears and went into the lead in the Metropolitan Men's Table Tennis League as the first round of play was held in the league's headquarters at 125 Merchants' Exchange Building.

Other matches were: Dukes 3, Quakers 2; Lions 7, Blue Devils 2; Deuces 5, Flyers 4.

Women's League.

Opening games of the Women's League resulted as follows: Whites won six of nine from Reds; Blues won five and lost four to Grays, and the Greens drew the bye.

EDMONTON, Alberta, Oct. 29.—The Shaw-Stephens American Legion girls' basketball team of Maplewood, Mo., is on its way to California today as the last defeated American challenger of 1935 for the famous Underwood trophy, symbolic of the North American title, held by the Edmonton Grads since it was put into competition in 1923. It was the Canadians' twelfth straight North American championship.

Loss of three regulars, because of fouls, together with first half injuries, shattered the Americans' hopes of victory last night and turned a hard-played, exciting game into a 43-24 rout in favor of the Canadians. As the Legionnaires had dropped their two previous contests, last night's defeat put an end to the best-three-out-of-five game series.

After jumping away to an 8-3 lead early in the first quarter, and holding a 15-11 edge late in the second period, the Shaws lost Dorothy Dueker, guard, with a hip injury, while Mary Dueker went out with a foot injury. Immediately, the Grads cashed in on the Yankees' weakened lineup and scored three field goals to lead at half time, 17-15.

An Edmonton doctor worked on both girls during the half and they were pronounced fit to resume play as the third quarter opened. The Grads made two field goals but Catherine Dueker's goal from near midcourt and Bernice Frillman's free toss cut the champions' lead to 21-18.

The small crowd, cut to 2000 by the zero weather and heavy snow, stood and shouted lustily: "Come on, you Grads. Do something and do it fast!"

But instead, the Americans did something that wrecked their own ball game. In rapid succession, Mary Dueker, Helen Moon and Bernice Frillman were ejected and working under this handicap, the Missourians saw the Grads rally and run the score to 28-20 at the end of the third period.

In the last quarter, the Shaw-Stephens reserves failed to click and the Grads rolled up 15 points while Betty Carpentier and Alois Mertensmeyer were accounting for the losers' four markers.

G. B. HATCHARD, MUNY COUNCIL MEMBER, DIES

George B. "Dad" Hatchard, member of the Central Council of the Municipal Athletic Association, died this morning at 1:45 o'clock. He is survived by his widow, five sons, and a daughter. He resided at 4038 N. Twenty-third street.

Mr. Hatchard was instrumental in developing many baseball and soccer players in this city. Among the players he helped were: Eddie Meusel, Walter Roettger, Fred Hoffman, Harry Oellerman, Nick Reidy, George Schweppe, Raphael Tracy, Mickey Selzer, Shorty Ryan, and Walter Hitchcock. He was interested in local athletics for over 25 years.

His five sons, Walter, Les, Jim, George, and Roy, have played on many soccer and baseball teams in the Municipal Leagues.

The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at the Provost Chapel.

STEVE BRODIE, OLD BASEBALL STAR, DEAD

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 29. — Walter Scott Brodie, the "Steve" Brodie of baseball fame, died today at his home here. He was 63 years old and had been ill for a week, suffering from a heart condition.

A native of Warrenton, Va., Brodie climbed to baseball glamor as a member of the celebrated old Baltimore Oriole team with such famous diamond figures as John J. McGraw of the New York Giants, Uncle Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Hughey Jennings, and Joe Kelley.

A brilliant centerfielder, Brodie was a wheelhorse of that swashbuckling crew—old National League champions for three years in succession, 1894-1896. He also was one of the premier clowns of the game and his fame spread far.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, and a son.

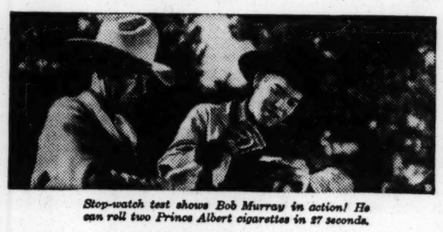

SENSATIONAL ROLL-YOUR-OWN OFFER

WINNING SMOKERS OF ST. LOUIS

The whole state is talking about this dramatic Money-Back Plan... brought forward by Prince Albert... that has aroused sensational approval here almost overnight!

THE PLAN: Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the tin with the rest of the tobacco in it, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage.

PRINCE ALBERT EASY TO ROLL AND "STAYS PUT"

Here you see Bob Murray doing some jiffy-quick rolling during recent Prince Albert speed tests. Mr. Murray is modest about his ability. "Thanks to Prince Albert's special 'crimp cut' I can roll my own quickly and easily," he says. "Prince Albert's sensible big red tin means that I'm not going to spill the makin's. And I know I'm getting enough for about 70 cigarettes. That's a lot of cigarettes."

Duward Ryon (an 11-seconds roller) says: "I'll bet you didn't know there're 2 oz. in every P. A. tin. How about it?"

Now How About You?

Try P. A. for your makin's. We've made a money-back offer that should appeal to any one's sense of fairness. So start today.

Note P. A.'s special cut. "Crimp cut," it is called. It has a lot to do with why Prince Albert burns so cool and mild.

Only top-quality tobacco is used. And there are two ounces in the big red tin of P. A. Real roll-your-own smokin' at its best! A constant joy in a pipe too.

FROM TRADING BONDS TO TRADING PUNCHES

By Bob Olin.

THE movie colony and others who wager on boxing in Hollywood were offering odds of 6 to 1 that Godwin would beat me and I began to wonder, "How great is this Bob Godwin?" We met June 18 of last year and it took only 49 seconds for me to convince the movie colony and Godwin that I should have been the betting favorite and not Godwin. I knocked him out in exactly 49 seconds. In a return bout I won a rather easy decision. A few weeks later I boxed a draw with Abe Feldman, the heavyweight, in Hollywood.

BOB OLIN.

After the Feldman bout my manager, Harold Scadron, went after a championship bout with Maxie Rosenbloom and finally the New York Boxing Commission ordered Maxie to defend his title against me. I don't know, but I always felt that I could whip Rosenbloom and on Nov. 16 I became the world's light-heavyweight champion.

After winning the title I ran into plenty of trouble at home. My sister, a 21-year-old girl, passed away after a long period of illness. There's no need for me to tell you that losing her sort of broke my spirit. And then my dad became ill, suffering from heart attacks. Despite the fact that I was broken in spirit, I had to fight. My family needed money.

I accepted a match with John Henry Lewis in San Francisco and enroute from New York I stopped off in Cleveland and picked up some money whipping a youngster named Mickey Dugan. Although I knew that Lekis had defeated Jame J. Braaddock and Maxie Rosenbloom I was confident that I would flatten him with a punch. He really looked "soft" to me, but I found out otherwise.

Lewis gave me a good licking for six or seven rounds before I realized that I was waging a losing fight. One thing I do know is that from the eighth round on I turned the tables and dished out a beating to the man who is my opponent Thursday night. I say this with no intent to brag—but if the fight had gone another round or two I am confident that I would have knocked Lewis out.

And now we face my first defense of the title against the man who beat me only a few months ago, John Henry Lewis.

If you want to know the winner of the fight, just scan my record. I never failed to beat any fighter in a return match after that fighter won a decision over me. And what's more, I feel that the distance of 15 rounds is in my favor, since I've gone that distance before and I get stronger as the bout progresses.

It is my candid opinion that I will knock out John Henry Lewis and I hope that I will get a crack at Joe Louis this winter.

$300.00 in Cash Prizes Offered to 50 Successful Fans In Third Football Test

Listed below are fifteen major football games scheduled for Nov. 1 and 2. To enter the Post-Dispatch Football Knowledge Test, fill in your estimates of the scores of the games and send your entry to the Football Scores Editor, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, accompanied by a brief explanation of your selections. Entries will close at midnight, Thursday, October 31.

First Prize	$100.00
Second Prize	50.00
Third Prize	25.00
Fourth Prize	15.00
Fifth Prize	10.00
Ten Prizes, each	5.00
Ten Prizes, each	2.50
25 Prizes, each	1.00
50 Prizes, totaling	$300.00

Here Are the Simple Rules:

Prizes will be awarded to participants whose entries are most accurate and whose explanations, in the opinion of the Football Scores Editor, are most logical and convincing.

A brief explanatory letter must accompany each entry.

The games on which the competition is based will be listed daily in the Post-Dispatch sports section up to and including Thursday, October 31. The competition will close at midnight, October 31, and entries must be postmarked before that time.

It is not necessary to use the entry form in the Post-Dispatch. Any piece of paper of approximately the same size will do.

You do not have to buy the Post-Dispatch to enter. Copies may be examined at public libraries or in the business office of the Post-Dispatch.

Only one entry may be submitted by each participant.

In the event of a tie for any award, the full amount of the award tied for will be paid to each participant.

Names of successful participants will be published in the Post-Dispatch, Wednesday, November 6.

The Football Scores Editor will be the sole judge of entries submitted and his decision must be accepted as final.

Carnera-Neusel Bout to Be Over 10-Round Route

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29. — Tony Galento, the New Jersey fat boy with a night stick for a left hand, has gone into training.

He weighs in the Neighborhood of 220 pounds and is almost as broad as he is tall. His method of fighting, highly successful to date, consists of walking in with his left hand swinging like a fence gate, and driving it to the opponent's chin.

If it lands, the fight is over. If it doesn't, Tony repeats the procedure until he makes a connection.

What the other fighter does is immaterial, for Tony has a fine disregard for being slugged on his open face. A fist has to travel quite a distance before it reaches a vital spot in his midsection.

People have been taking notice of Tony of late, and he has even been mentioned as a possible opponent for Joe Louis. Next Friday night he takes on Eddie Mader in the semifinal of the Primo Carnera-Walter Neusel scrap, and under pressure from his manager, he agreed to go into training.

Mader is a good boxer and he can hit. He beat Hank Hankinson on the Louis-Baer card.

After much argument between the rival managers, the New York Athletic Commission ruled yesterday that the main attraction would be over the ten-round route. Louis Soresi, Carnera's manager threatened to call off the match when apprised of the decision, saying his fighter was better over the longer distance. He is expected to reconsider.

DISCOVERY TO REST, BEFORE TRAINING FOR $100,000 RACE

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Discovery, the handicap champion, is through with racing for the year. The son of Display, which hung up an enviable record after a slow start, will be given a long rest before starting preparation for the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, a race in which he is almost sure to be the favorite unless heavily weighted.

Only two more racing days remain for New Yorkers this year. The season, which will close at Empire City tomorrow, has been a most profitable one for the racing associations.

Eddie Yager and Cal Rainey, both under contract to C. H. (Pat) Knebelkamp, are waging an interesting duel for jockey honors at Empire City. Yager, who has ridden 13 winners at the meeting, is slated to perform in California this winter. Rainey, who has nine victories, will head for Miami, where he will pilot his employer's horses during the Florida season.

Mate, A. C. Bostwick's veteran which campaigned successfully in this country but did not have much luck in England, has been retired from racing and soon will enter the stud in Kentucky. The son of Prince Pal has won $297,660 in this country and $3950 in England. He lists among his triumphs the Preakness, the Arlington Classic and the American Derby.

GUNNERS ELEVEN PLAYS CHICAGO TEAM TONIGHT

The St. Louis Gunners, professional football team, plays the Chicago Gophers tonight at East Chicago. Eighteen players accompanied Coach Frosty Peters when he left here last night. The Gophers and the Gunners played at Walsh Stadium two weeks ago, the game resulting in a 0-0 tie.

The Gunners' last game was at Paducah, Ky., last Saturday night, the contest ending in a tie, 13-13.

On Neutral Grounds.

The annual football battle between V. I. M. and V. P. I. will be played on neutral grounds, Roanoke, Va., Nov. 28.

NEGRO ACQUITTED ON HORSE DOPING CHARGE

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 29.—Charles Brown, alias Woodtrap, 46-year-old Negro groom, was acquitted yesterday by an Anne Arundel County Circuit Court jury of charges of cruelty to an animal by administering a sedative drug.

The charges grew out of the recent attempt to drug Mrs. H. L. Ughetta's race horse Deduce at the Laurel racetrack. John E. Hughes' Silent Shot also was a victim of the attempted drugging.

Morton J. Sacks, track watchman, testified he saw Brown in Deduce's stall early Oct. 17, the day the drugging was attempted. Brown denied he had been there.

FIVE CLUBS TO PLAY IN HOCKEY CIRCUIT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The Eastern Amateur Hockey League will operate this season with five clubs, the line-up comprising three of last year's clubs and two new teams.

The Atlantic City Sea Gulls, the Hershey, Pa., Bars and the Baltimore Orioles again have entered the circuit with the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and the New York Rovers captained by Stewart Iglehart, polo star, the newcomers. Iglehart, a member of last year's Crescent Athletic Club, will pick his squad from last season's Greater New York League teams and Lester Patrick's Winnipeg school.

Victorious or Defeated, Big Ten Coaches "View With Alarm" All Remaining Contests on Schedule

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—Without a moment's hesitation, the old professor called for Ossie Solem of Iowa yesterday as soon as his Monday morning class for Big Ten football coaches had completed a wild scramble for back row seats.

Professor: "Ossie, your silence this semester has fooled all of us, even Bob Zuppke. We didn't think you had anything to talk about. You must have, or else those football teams on the Pacific Coast aren't what they used to be. Illinois beat Southern California, 19 to 0, two weeks ago; Saturday, you reversed that score on Illinois."

Illini Overrated?

Solem: "Professor, we played the best game of the season at Illinois, but the Illini were greatly overrated. We found them much weaker than we expected. I expect a far tougher game against Indiana Saturday. Those Hoosiers have done everything but score touchdowns and they have the stuff to do that."

Professor: "Well, you're not fooling anyone any more. From now on, "it'll be a shock to all of us every time any one can score on Iowa. Note with alarm that Mr. Zuppke has skipped the class. I hope he hasn't taken Saturday's game to heart. And now Lynn, tell us which is the stronger team, Minnesota or Ohio State. You got licked by both of them."

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern: "I can't do it, professor. Minnesota, a team with a bruising game that generates more power along tackle than I've ever seen, has a stronger line and the best fullback I've seen this year in Beise, but Ohio State has more and faster backs and a better passing game. We played better football against Minnesota than we did Ohio State, so the scores are no basis for comparison."

Professor: "We're all wishing you luck, Francis, against Notre Dame Saturday, but it's my personal opinion that you'll need all you get. Don't let me alarm you, but after watching Notre Dame and Ohio State, I think the Irish are far too strong for you."

Francis Schmidt, Ohio State: "I'm still shivering from that scare Indiana gave us. And now comes Notre Dame. They keep getting tougher all the time. Five other teams have tried to beat those Irish and couldn't do it. I'm trying to figure out a way to keep the score down."

Professor: "Don't be too facetious, Francis. They tell me you have two backs to surprise everyone with Saturday. Let's hear from Indiana and Purdue, which fooled us, too."

A Tough Future.

Noble Kizer, Purdue: "Losing to Carnegie Tech isn't nearly as bad as looking at the remainder of our schedule — Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana in order. It looks like an impossible task, but we're going back on a diet of fundamentals this week and might be able to convert some of our yardage into points."

Bo McMillin, Indiana: "Our boys are disappointed but not downhearted. We should play our best game of the year to date against Iowa. Our biggest worry is to stop Iowa's running attack, but we'll show the folks a ball game."

Bernie Bierman, Minnesota: "Red Dawson, our backfield coach, said Purdue just had an off day against Carnegie Tech. I hate to play teams that had an off day the Saturday before. They put too much effort in trying to make things up. Purdue is good enough without trying that much more. Those Northwestern Wildcats certainly had spirit and a grand team."

Harry Kipke of Michigan broke into the discussion, suddenly changing from an optimist to a teller of bear stories.

"We were lucky to get out of New York with a win over Columbia," he said. "We had the breaks and Renner! What a passer, what a field general! If Kizer thinks Purdue has a schedule, what about Michigan's—Penn, Illinois, Minnesota and Ohio State on the next four Saturdays."

Doc Spears, Wisconsin: "Professor, we've got just a 'ducky' schedule. We've lost five straight with Purdue, Northwestern and Minnesota coming up on three successive Saturdays. I was disgusted with mistakes in our field generalship against Chicago."

Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago: "Anyway, we've got a week off to celebrate our victory and we're going to have a swell time while it lasts. Then we play Ohio State. Ouch!"

MACKINNON AND M'LEOD STAR IN FLYER PRACTICE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GALT, Ont., Oct. 29.—Newcomers have stolen some of the spotlight from old stars and may play a prominent part Friday night as the St. Louis Flyers open their exhibition season against Rochester of the International League here and also when the St. Louis squad makes its home appearance in American Association play at the St. Louis Arena late next month.

Wilf McLeod, who came into camp yesterday as an added wingman, stepped out on the ice and showed such dazzling speed that he was soon appointed "captain" of one of the two teams which took part in a practice game and later found himself lined up on a forward combination with the two big stars of the American Association, Manager "Shrimp" McPherson and Pete Palangio.

Another newcomer to make good was Johnny Mackinnon, defense man formerly with Oklahoma City. Mackinnon showed plenty of speed and aggressiveness as he and Tom Palangia, brother of Pete, handled the charges of Manager "Shrimp's" forward line which had, besides him and Pete Palangio, the German importation, Henz Guttman.

With the scheduled arrival today of Paddy Padden, leading scorer in the association last year, McPherson will have on hand a squad of 14 players. Several more newcomers are due in the next day or so.

KANSAS STATE BASKET TEAM BEGINS PRACTICE

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Oct. 29.—Nine candidates for the Kansas State varsity basketball team yesterday reported to Coach Frank Root for first practice. Coach Root said short practices will be held daily this week.

Those reporting were Capt. Lee Railsback, Arnold Mills and Charles Schierlemann, guards; Paul Gilpin, Al Burns and Jack Miller, forward-guard; Frank Groves, center; Herbert Poppenhouse and Floyd Fulton, forward-center.

A PLAN I CAN UNDERSTAND—

THE GMAC 6% time payment plan for new cars

SIMPLE AS A.B.C.

B ADD COST OF INSURANCE
C MULTIPLY BY 6% — 12 MONTHS' PLAN

[One-half of one per cent per month for periods more or less than 12 months]

THAT'S YOUR WHOLE FINANCING COST

NO EXTRAS · NO SERVICE FEES · NO OTHER CHARGES

*In some states a small legal documentary fee is required.

Buyers of new General Motors models are already taking advantage of the new GMAC 6% Time Payment Plan announced only last week. They find that it is convenient, economical and easy to understand.

Think what it means to you, who have been considering the purchase of a new, modern automobile on time payments. By the simplest arithmetic—by merely multiplying the unpaid balance and the cost of insurance by 6%—you know in advance the total financing cost.

Not only is this plan as simple as A, B, C, but best of all, it saves you money. It is entirely free of all so-called "service" or other charges. It is a straightforward business transaction—whereby you pay 6% and only 6% for the privilege of budgeting the cost of your new car and its insurance into your income. Understand, this is not 6% interest, but simply a convenient multiplier which anyone can use and readily understand.

And finally, when you buy a new Cadillac or Buick, Chevrolet or Pontiac, Oldsmobile or La Salle on this plan, it will be insured in the General Exchange Insurance Corporation. Your insurance policy will cover Fire, Theft and Accidental Damage, including Collision.

Wherever you live, you can take immediate advantage of this new, more economical way to buy the new car you have long wanted.

FEDERAL INQUIRY IS CONSIDERED IN CROPPERS' STRIKE

NEGRO DELEGATION IN WASHINGTON

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The reign of terror which, it is charged, has grown out of the strike of Negro members of the Sharecroppers' Union in Alabama may bring a Federal investigation, it was indicated here today.

Dallas Dort, chief of the investigative staff of FERA and WPA, said he is considering an investigation of at least one phase of the charges made by a delegation of union members who have put their case before various Federal officials. Relief labor, the union delegation charged, was brought in to pick cotton when the union struck for a wage of $1 a day.

This charge will be investigated, Dort said, indicating that he would ask the Alabama Relief Administrator to send investigators into the counties where most of the strike violence is alleged to have occurred. Dort told the union delegation that the charges of violence, involving six lynchings, did not come within his province.

Death List Reported at 15.

For some time, field representatives of various Federal agencies have brought back to Washington reports of violence in Alabama which, according to some accounts, has resulted in a death list reported as 15. Most of the violence has occurred in Alabama counties where Negroes are in the majority.

The union delegation, which included Annie Mae Meriwether, widow of one of the Negro strikers alleged to have been lynched, also called on Chester Davis, AAA Administrator, and his executive assistant, Paul Porter. They left with Davis and with Porter, as well as with Dort, copies of affidavits describing the lynching of Jim Press Meriwether and the beating of his widow and other men and women in Lowndes County.

"There is nothing that we can do about these charges," Porter said. "They do not involve specific cotton reduction contracts and therefore we would have no jurisdiction. We asked if they had any case involving a specific contract but they did not. Therefore all that we could do was discuss the general situation with them."

Charge Postmasters Open Mail.

To still another Federal agency, the Postoffice Department, the union delegation took the story of alleged coercion and violence. Assistant Postmaster-General Burke was asked to investigate the opening of mail addressed to Negro strikers. The strikers charge that postmasters in small Southern towns opened their mail whenever they chose to. Burke said he would send a postoffice inspector to look into the charges.

Annie Mae Meriwether in her affidavit alleges that a mob composed of landlords from the plantations in the neighborhood in Lowndes County in which she lived stripped her and beat her two successive times. They also put a rope around her neck, she charges, and suspended her from the rafter of a cabin for nearly 15 minutes. She was unconscious when she was finally let down, she alleges.

This was in an effort to force her to tell of the activities of the Sharecroppers' Union, she said. The attacks occurred after members of the union had tried to distribute strike leaflets. Annie Mae Meriwether was "captain" of the women's local, she said in her affidavit. Hours of work against which they were striking, according to the affidavit, were customarily from "sunup to sundown."

The woman and others who had taken an active part in the strike fled to Birmingham after Meriwether was lynched. Other affidavits allege that other Negroes were lynched and that many were whipped and shot at. Mobs of landlords, according to the affidavits, roamed the countryside heavily armed. Most of the Negro population took to the swamps. Those who could, escaped to Birmingham.

Hardships Described.

The affidavits describe the hardships of the sharecroppers' life in the cotton South. They were sometimes paid, according to Annie Mae Meriweather, in "meat after it had got too strong."

"I couldn't go to the sheriff for protection," said the affidavit of Wesley Smith, "because I was afraid he would shoot me just like he did Willie Witcher. I didn't go to see the Governor because we Negroes don't get our rights anywhere in Alabama and I don't believe the Governor would do anything for us. Montgomery (the capital) is right near Lowndes County and I believe I would be lynched if I went there to see the Governor.

"If we don't get more wages we will have to strike again. We can't live on the wages we have been getting."

Federal officials indicated that the scope of any investigation would be extremely limited, inasmuch as the charges of violence involve violation of State laws. The Federal agencies would have authority to investigate only specific infraction of Federal regulations or law, it was said.

U. S. Relief Grants for 10 Months Pass Those of Same Period in 1934

Official Summary Shows $1,227,973,000 Compared to $1,013,069,000 Despite Program to End Dole.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—An official summary showed today that the Government, despite its program to end the dole, has spent more for relief so far this year than it did during the same period of 1934. This year's relief grants were placed at $1,227,973,573, compared to $1,013,069,738 in the corresponding 10 months of last year.

The amount granted for relief since Oct. 1 has been only a fraction of what it was in October a year ago, however, and officials say that increased employment from the Works program will end all Federal outlays for relief during November.

The tapering-off process was reflected in the relief grants for September and October this year. They were $96,039,145 and $31,382,514 respectively, compared with $106,841,985 and $160,090,072 in the corresponding months last year. Six states have been cut off the Federal dole entirely and Hopkins has said that the rest will be cut off as the Works program gains momentum.

Not Up to Old Program Yet.

Employment provided directly by the $4,000,000,000 Work Relief effort has not yet attained the proportions reached by FERA's old work relief program last October.

Latest figures issued by Hopkins said that 1,421,470 persons were employed under the new Works program on Oct. 19. The number of relief cases receiving work program earnings in October last year was 1,998,161.

Although the number of families on relief recently has declined—from 4,074,875 in September last year to 3,263,199 this September—Hopkins has said that this will not alter the administration's goal of 3,500,000 Work Relief jobs.

Part of the September reduction in the relief population was attributed to improving business conditions. Spokesmen for the Works organization said, however, that winter usually brings an increase in the number of relief applicants.

To Drop 175,000 Families.

Resettlement Administration officials said they were taking steps to remove 175,000 farm families from relief rolls by Dec. 1.

These families, in widely scattered sections of the country, will be placed on a "rehabilitation" status and will be advanced loans or grants intended to enable them to get on a self-supporting basis.

The 175,000 families, officials said, represent less than half the number of farm families now on relief. Families not accepted for rehabilitation by the Resettlement Administration will continue to receive aid from State and Federal agencies.

70 BODIES RECOVERED IN HONDURAS FLOODS

By the Associated Press.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 29.—The bodies of 70 persons drowned in the present floods were recovered at Corocito today, leading officials to estimate that further reports would indicate that Honduras is suffering a major disaster.

The breaking of communications prevented a general estimate of the total loss of life, but it is known from official reports that hundreds of persons are marooned in the hills and treetops and in danger of death unless rescued soon.

Most of the rivers throughout the country were over their banks as a result of torrential rains which followed the recent hurricane.

The United Fruit Co. and other fruit-growing firms were estimated by authorities to have suffered about $6,000,000 damage.

An official dispatch from the Trujillo zone this morning said the Aguan River, which had gone down for a time, was out of its banks again, had flooded all the banana plantations along its shores, and had drowned many laborers.

A dispatch from the Governor of Comayagua province said two mountains had sunk, one of them completely blocking the main highway to the north. An airplane dropped packages of foodstuffs in the northern zone.

ROOSEVELT PROCLAIMS ARMISTICE DAY, NOV. 11

"Fitting That We Express Determination to Remain at Peace," He Remarks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29. — Proclaiming Nov. 11 as Armistice day, President Roosevelt remarked today that "it is particularly fitting on this anniversary of the armistice that we should express our determination to remain at peace with all nations and our conviction that permanent peace can and must be attained throughout the world."

Roosevelt directed that the flag be displayed on all Government buildings that day, and invited the people "to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies in schools churches or other suitable places."

Ray Murphy, national commander of the American Legion, said after a call on Roosevelt last week that the President would make a talk at Armistice day exercises in Arlington National Cemetery.

SPANISH CABINET QUITS THEN IS REORGANIZED

Premier Back in Office After Shakeup Due to Gambling Scandal.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Oct. 29. — Premier Joaquin Chapaprieta, whose cabinet resigned today as the result of a gambling scandal, went back into office a few hours later with a reshuffled ministry.

Former Premier Alejandro Lerroux, who had served Chapaprieta for a month as foreign minister, and Juan Jose Rocha, the minister of education, both of whom were drawn into the scandal, were absent from the new list.

Two radical party members replaced them on the list, but otherwise the cabinet personnel was unchanged. Luis Bardaji went in as minister of education and Luis Usabiaga was made minister of agriculture, industry and commerce. The latter succeeded in that post Jose Martinez de Valesco, who was made foreign minister, replacing Lerroux.

The investigation of negotiations said to have been carried out for a gambling concession—gambling being outlawed in Spain—involved members of the Radical party which forms part of the governmental bloc.

Parliament voted last night to hand over to the courts for trial seven of eight public officials named by a parliamentary commission as implicated in the scandal.

The eighth official, Mayor Salazar Alonso of Madrid, was suspended from official duties along with the other seven. Some Deputies said they thought it likely he would be reinstated.

Debate over the scandal, which was disclosed when Daniel Strauss, a Mexican citizen, said he had turned over about $68,000 to eight politicians, continued many hours.

BALDWIN SAYS ENGLAND WON'T LEAD ARMS RACE

Prime Minister in Speech Promises to Undertake Only Needed Bolstering of Defenses.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, in his first platform speech for the general election Nov. 14, pledged yesterday that Great Britain would not lead the world in an arms race.

There is no question of "huge armaments" being ordered by the Government, Baldwin said at Wolverhampton. Only the necessary bolstering of the nation's defenses, including the replacement of obsolete warships, will be undertaken, he asserted.

Baldwin also pledged the Government not to introduce conscription. "There is no truth to reports the Government would take advantage of the present situation to introduce conscription," he said.

MacDonald Speaks.

Former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, now Lord President of the Council, opening his part of the national Government's campaign, said "steps should be taken at once to make it possible to arrive at an international economic agreement which would revive international trade."

MacDonald criticised nations which he said prevented success of the world economic conference. He asserted "those responsible for the failure of the last attempt have had enough experience since to make them more helpful in the next."

The Independent Labor party issued a statement charging the Government was "war-minded" and pointed to "formidable preparations made in the Mediterranean."

"Once the election is over," the party asserted, "there is danger it (the Government) will revert to its former attitude" of "warlike intentions."

Eden Replies to Charges.

Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, met charges of Government opponents on the armament and peace issues with reassurances in a speech to his constituents at Leamington.

"Whatever the outcome of our present troubles," he said, "I am convinced we are moving into an era when nations will strive to understand one another, as individuals within a nation do today, when mutual comprehension will allay suspicion, when with more genuine endeavor we shall each strive to work together for the maintenance of peace."

Winston Churchill, Conservative, urged that the navy be rebuilt immediately, and said: "We must keep in closest touch with the United States, whose navy is as important to the peace of the world as our own."

SHIPWRECK NEAR LEPER COLONY

Two Frenchmen Reach Molokai Settlement Safely.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Oct. 29.—Two members of the French Geographica' Society—Capt. Eric Bisschop and Joseph Tatibouet—are safe at the Kalaupapa leper settlement on Molokai Island after being shipwrecked. Their 40-foot junk-rigged boat Fou-Po II was being pounded to pieces in the surf at Kalaupapa after grounding there Saturday night.

News of the shipwreck reached here from Ralph L. Cooke, superintendent of the leper settlement at whose home Bisschop and Tatibouet were cared for. The men were unhurt, but suffered somewhat from lack of food and water since leaving Marshall Island, 2400 miles west of the Hawaiian group

G. O. P. LEADERS DECIDE ON STATE PUBLICITY DRIVE

Chairman Dalton to Name Committee to Work With One From Republican Editorial Association.

The executive committee of the Republican State Committee adjourned its two-day session at noon today, after adopting motions for a State-wide publicity program for the 1936 national and State campaigns and for closer co-operation with veterans' and women's organizations. The meeting was held at Hotel Statler.

As the party leaders departed for their homes, there was no indication that the "unofficial" topic of the meeting—the selection of a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor and other State officers next year—had gone beyond the stages of preliminary discussion in hotel rooms outside the meeting place. No candidates were agreed on and none of the possible nominees was willing to admit that he was a candidate as yet.

The publicity program contemplates the appointment of five members of the State Committee as a publicity committee by State Chairman Grover W. Dalton. Dalton will appear before a meeting of the Republican Editorial Association at Springfield later in the week to recommend the appointment of a similar committee by the association to work with the State committee in the establishment of a permanent publicity bureau at Jefferson City.

Arthur M. Curtis of Springfield, Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, urged committee members to "be on the lookout" for stories reflecting unfavorably on the expenditure of public funds by the Federal Public Works and Works Progress Administrations.

Speakers at the final session today included L. H. Breuer of Rolla, former United States District Attorney here, Lawrence Presley of Buffalo, minority floor leader in the 1935 State Legislature, and Alfred Fairbanks, vice-president of the Boatmen's National Bank.

Presley criticized the Legislature for failure to provide adequate funds for State old-age pensions. Fairbanks presented reports from Republican leaders in 90 of the 114 counties of the State, indicating that Republicans were gaining votes in communities carried by Democrats in the last two State elections.

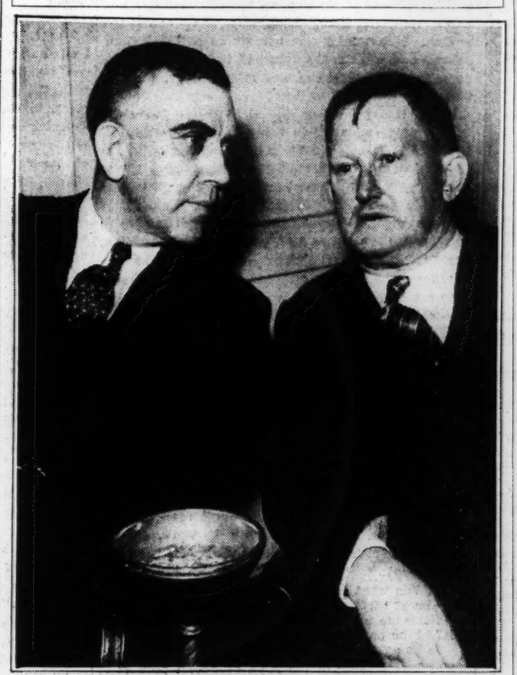

Campaign for Funds.

Curtis told a Post-Dispatch reporter after yesterday afternoon's session that within the next few weeks he will appoint a committee to direct the campaign for funds. No goal has been set, but Curtis said the committee will try to raise a sufficient amount to carry on all activities. The committee will include A. L. Shapleigh of St. Louis, who has made large contributions to the party in past campaigns.

The principal pre-election activity will be the formation of Young Republican Clubs in the counties, there already being such organizations in Kansas City and St. Louis.

JAPANESE MAKE NEW DEMANDS IN NORTH CHINA

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

TIENTSIN, China, Oct. 29.—Japanese military and diplomatic authorities made a formal demand today on North China officials for immediate elimination of anti-Japanese and anti-Manchoukuan organizations.

Carrying out a decision reached at recent conferences of Japanese military and diplomatic officials in both China and Japan, Consul-General S. Kawagoe submitted the note demanding "prompt and decisive measures."

The communication charged the Chinese with failure to carry out the terms of a settlement concluded by Lieutenant-General Yoshijiro Umetsu, former commander of the Japanese garrison in North China, and Chinese War Minister Ho Ying-shin after a series of incidents last June.

This apparently referred to Chinese compliance to Japanese demands when the North China administration was reshuffled last June, troops objectionable to Japan transferred and anti-Japanese organizations abolished.

After the note was delivered, Major-General Harao Tada sent military emissaries to the authorities to whom the note was addressed to explain the Japanese Army's view. Gen Tada is commander of the Japanese garrison in Tientsin.

"Terroristic activities have been carried out in a well devised plan and these incidents are interpreted by us to be the result of incomplete orders from Central China authorities," Gen. Tada's statement said.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

A Law Professor on Procedural Reform.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

DURING all of the years that I have been here, I have read and been enlightened by your editorials and cartoons.

One of the most pertinent of those cartoons appeared this week. It depicted the courts bound.

Though much has been written concerning legal philosophy, there can properly be but one basic ideal of any law. That is justice as nearly as imperfect human beings can approach it. This fair dealing must take into consideration everybody concerned. Law must not be unfair to one of the parties to a controversy to the unreasonable advantage of the other one. But how often this unfairness exists in criminal procedure when defendants, who are probably guilty, are unduly aided.

The present procedural situation in this, and nearly every other jurisdiction, prevents the application by the court of a close approach to legal justice. Our only hope is in an aroused citizenry. If those who formulate procedural laws are made to understand that their re-election depends upon the enactment of laws which will sever the cords which now bind the courts, then, and only then, will the courts be able to function properly.

The time to act is here. Personally, I have every confidence that the Post-Dispatch will take a leading part in a definite educational program which should continue uninterruptedly until legislators dare not oppose the will of Missouri to be an example of justice.

In addition, the courts of this and other states must have the daring to unbind themselves. There are several instances in which the courts of this State still interpret procedural statutes so narrowly that some of the good that the legislation was intended to bring about is not realized. The courts have, no doubt, acted honestly and conscientiously in coming to their decisions. Some of the conclusions were reached when laws were still new and the old order was yet favored. These decisions should be reinvestigated. I, for one, cannot believe that our courts lack the mental honesty and the courage to reverse decisions made by themselves or earlier Judges if they believe that former judicial conclusions were incorrect.

Let us be about the business of purging our procedural laws of all that hinders the courts from dispensing real justice to everyone concerned. The suggested goal can be reached and Missouri can lead the way. CARL WHEATON, Instructor in Procedural Law, St. Louis University.

Would Compel Use of Mechanical Firing Devices to Curb Smoke.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IF our esteemed Board of Aldermen would pass legislation that every heating plant in St. Louis had to use some mechanical device such as a stoker, our smoke would materially decrease. A possible 50 per cent to 75 per cent could be eliminated by this method.

I have no interest in any company selling such items, but actual experience has shown me the truth of these statements.

Why not compel those who are making our atmosphere unfit to live in to install these devices? A properly fired furnace or boiler equipped with a stoker will eliminate most of the smoke and dirt.

We have been sitting for more than 20 years doing nothing on this smoke problem, when relief can be had if we will get off our chairs and act in the manner indicated. FILTHY AIR.

Feet Before the Emperor.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

TO sock or not to sock. . . .

Shakespeare's dramatic dilemma so many times has been paraphrased to baser ends than Avon's glorious bard intended, that no idolater of the Elizabethan master's genius can seriously carp at the recurring literary murder.

This time personages no less than Vice-President Garner and Speaker Byrns, have converted the immortal query to personal, comic ends.

"Cotton socks!" insists the ingratiatingly homespun Garner.

"Silk!" demands Speaker Byrns, whose higher tone of sophistication is possibly due to Tennessee being nearer than Texas to the effetely correct East.

From the most surprising source of all, the President himself, comes a note of gay and simple insouciance. "No socks at all!" chuckles the charming FDR.

Is this an official squabble concerning American fashions? Nothing so prosaic as that, for these sartorial deliberations are congressional nods to Japan's traditional social decorum.

American interest should mount apace as Garner and Byrns draw nearer to Fujiyama and the land of the rising sun. However, we may never know just what his Imperial Majesty, Emperor Hirohito, thinks about the matter, for Emperors and Kings and things have been gentlemen down the ages.

Since socks of varying quality have been tendered by interested observers, and to speculate is everyman's privilege, we feast our curiosity on the vision of American pedal extremities padding down to meet the Emperor. We'd give 10 years of our lives to see the silk caparisoned feet of Joe Byrns, the two inch-yellow-striped Garnerian tootsies, and a third person representing the President, with bare puppies aglow, all in the light of the royal household.

JOSEPH F. CODY.

THAT AAA ELECTION.

That big election came off Saturday, and the cornhog farmers voted overwhelmingly against assassinating Santa Claus, In other words, they are highly in favor of continuing not to raise Poland Chinas, Duroc Jerseys, to say nothing of just plain razorbacks, as long as the Government's checks rain down like the gentle dew from heaven. Not that anyone anticipated a close election, with check decliners and check receivers going neck and neck down the stretch. Who wouldn't rather sit on a fence, chaw tobacco and whittle, the approved technique, we suppose, in the business of not raising hogs, than to look after the pesky critters?

If Dr. Henry Wallace and Dr. Chester Davis denounce this comment as being hopelessly flippant, the obvious retort is that to hold an election under the circumstances and conditions surrounding that of last Saturday is to engage in a form of opera bouffe. The only possible significance is that some 50,000 farmers, whether because they are not getting theirs or because they oppose AAA policies from conviction, voted "No." If a real plebiscite were held, to include all those who pay the processing taxes and like to eat pork chops, the result would be worth something.

Meanwhile, the AAA reduction policies, designed as an emergency measure, go on and on. And not the least disconcerting thing about it is that the Republicans, who are highly vocal on all other phases of the administration, are strangely reticent about this. Witness the proceedings at the Grass Roots conference, where the G. O. P. leaders approached the subject with the cautious and ingratiating manner of a tramp wooing a Great Dane. Witness Senator Capper's letter to the "Lion of Idaho," pointing out the need of drawing up a farm plan for the next G. O. P. platform. In substance, Senator Borah replied: "You do it, Arthur." Edson Blair in Barron's, talking about Senator Vandenberg's aspirations for the presidency, says:

> If Van went out now and started sounding off, he almost certainly would stick his foot into it.
>
> Someone would ask him about AAA. Is he for it? Fine position for the G. O. P. champion.
>
> Is he against it? There goes the Farm Belt!

The best defense of the AAA reduction policies is that they tend to equalize the prices of what the farmers sell with the prices of the things they buy, and that, since the latter are determined in large degree by the country's high protective tariff, benefits to farmers are only a necessary corollary. To put it more brutally, one subsidy is necessary to offset another. Through the tariff, we pay, in effect, a huge yearly bonus to our manufacturers and, through the AAA, we match that with a bonus to the farmers.

Who, the pork-chop eater may ask, is going to pay a bonus to me? Who is going to subsidize my meal ticket?

The subsidy is an evil that grows by what it feeds upon. To pile one subsidy upon another is only to postpone the day when the country will have to face the problem honestly and courageously and scrap the whole subsidy system. Meanwhile, what with the Democrats clinging to the AAA and the Republicans nervously shy about coming out against it, the prospects for ending it in the near future are exceedingly remote, unless the Supreme Court consigns it to the same fate as NRA.

HOW CINCINNATI DOES IT.

The City Manager of Cincinnati recently found it necessary to appoint a new chief in charge of one of the most important public departments in his city. The qualifications of various eligible men were carefully reviewed by the city's Civil Service Commission, which submitted three names to the City Manager. He, in turn, made the appointment on the basis of the facts before him, and that was all there was to it. As he said afterward: "I give you my word, I did not have a telephone call or a letter concerning that choice. I was left entirely free."

This, of course, does not mean that the people of Cincinnati are not interested in who occupies their local public offices. It means just the contrary. For until about 10 years ago, they had party administration of municipal affairs, and with it the waste and bad government that go with the spoils system at its worst. Now, thanks to the city manager plan and a public consciousness which supports it, they live in what is probably the best-governed large city in the country. Municipal America can learn a lot to the advantage of its pocketbook, to say nothing of welfare and convenience, from the rebirth of Cincinnati.

MR. HULL'S LETTER.

The American people, we believe, have read with satisfaction the correspondence between the League of Nations and Secretary of State Hull.

Asked by the president of the Committee on Co-ordination to comment on the League's program of sanctions against Italy and to outline steps taken by our Government, Mr. Hull wrote a letter which might be said to have been dictated by our public opinion.

The League was told that the United States looks sympathetically upon all efforts, individual or in concert, to halt the armed conflict. Our official action was succinctly set forth: the embargo on export of arms, ammunition and implements of war to both belligerents; the proclamation making it unlawful for an American ship to carry such arms, ammunition or implements of war to any port of the belligerent countries; the further proclamation warning American citizens against travel on belligerent ships; the President's injunction that American citizens doing business with either of the belligerent nations do so at their own risk.

Such is the neutrality policy of the United States, authorized by acts of Congress and now brought into positive operation. Mr. Hull refers to the fact diplomatically but pointedly that our neutrality legislation preceded action by the League or its constituent members. We have followed in nobody's steps. We have charted our own course. We have done this in the firm determination not to become involved in the present isolated war, or in whatever violence may ensue.

That is the American credo. It does not mean that we are indifferent to the fate of other nations, to the agony and hardship imposed on peoples by war. It does mean that we cannot actively take sides in the quarrels of other nations. It does mean that we have learned from bitter experience the cost of participation in the affairs of other nations. Out of that experience we are trying to avoid any repetition of the mistakes that brought us at last to the bloody trenches of the World War.

It ought to be clear to Geneva and to the chancelleries of the world that this position is not merely the attitude of Congress, that the presidential pronouncements are something more than executive decrees. It is the American people that have spoken.

"Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations—entangling alliances with none." What Jefferson said in his first inaugural has again been stated by Mr. Hull, with documentation and decision.

LET MISSOURI LEAD!

The late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court spoke in more than one notable opinion of the opportunity that rests with the states, under our dual system of government, to make of themselves laboratories for social experimentation. He was reluctant—and so was and is the court as a whole—to put obstacles in the way of legislative experiments within the "insulated chambers" of the states.

A letter on this page today, by a member of the St. Louis University law faculty, suggests one simple and practicable way in which Missouri can set itself up as an example. The urgent need for reform of our criminal procedure presents an issue that bears no relationship to partisan politics. It is an issue that involves no change in our governmental system, but only a cutting away of anachronistic devices that hinder the administration of justice.

Missouri, as our letter writer says, can lead the way. It would be leading the way today except for the unsocial efforts of an obstructionist clique, composed in the main of lawyers, which has scuttled virtually every effort at code reform in session after session of the Missouri Legislature.

Let that minority group be put down and Missouri will serve its own interests and provide a shining example for the nation. The goal is worth striving for. We can make Missouri, in the field of legal procedure, a model State; aside from the other advantages of code reform, we can recapture for the State some of the prestige that it, with all the other states, has lost through the steady growth of the Federal power. We can help to make Missouri, as an entity of government, respected as it once was and as it still should be.

All this we can do if we will. We can do it if the citizenry of the State will gird itself for the task. We can do it, as our correspondent says, through the force of an aroused public opinion. That is the way, and the only way. Failing a militant expression of public opinion, we shall witness at the next legislative session the usual killing of code reform measures by the usual shameless methods.

The defeatist theory has it that a dry rot from which there is no escape is eating at the heart of state government. Missouri can help to disprove that theory.

Let Missouri lead!

AN UNFAIR CRITICISM.

It appears to us that the Supreme Board of Directors of the Knights of Columbus is unfair in criticising the President because he has failed to protest against the religious policies of Mexico. However much Mr. Roosevelt may deplore anti-religious measures in Mexico, he has no power or authority to interfere with the internal affairs of another nation. Mexico is not a fief of the United States. If the President should establish so dangerous a precedent with regard to Mexico, he would be called upon to protest against religious persecution in Germany, to take action in the case of China, when discrimination is practiced against Christians, and, in short, to set himself up as a universal Sir Galahad.

Surgeons have discovered a gland operation that will give a bearded lady that school girl complexion. Mere man will go right on buying razor blades forever and after.

SINNERS OF LONG AGO AND FAR AWAY.

Concerning that affair between Joseph and Mrs. Potiphar, as related in Genesis, most of us are willing to let bygones be bygones. Not so the editor of the Nazi weekly, Judenkenner. That chap has been probing into the dust of days when Memnon sang the dawn and Isis was grieving for Osiris, and has dragged out a new version of the scandal. Dame Potiphar, he assures us, was as chaste as Diana and Joseph a Casanova, or, anyhow, a philanderer. The chroniclers who wrote the Old Testament were Jews, he says, and so was Joseph, and they stood by their co-religionist and gave the woman what Mr. Wodehouse calls "the bird."

This German re-write man quotes as authority for his version that Aryan troubadour, Madison Grant, who 20 years ago sang the glory of the blue-eyed, blond-haired people in "The Passing of the Great Race," and recently repeated his racial rhapsody in "The Conquest of a Continent." But there's another pro-Aryan anthropologist, Lothrop Stoddard, who took us into the parlors and kitchens of the Cro-Magnons and, pointing to the poisoned arrows of the swarthy Mediterraneans, explained just how that prehistoric massacre occurred. There is a second witness whom the anti-Semitic editor might summon to testify about Egypt long before Cleopatra strolled the banks of the Nile in a one-piece bathing suit.

Ox cart and stage coach and covered wagon and laboring locomotives and automobiles and airplanes and the streamlined trains, but yesterday, today and forever, at the same changeless pace, is "the river that flows past Hannibal still."

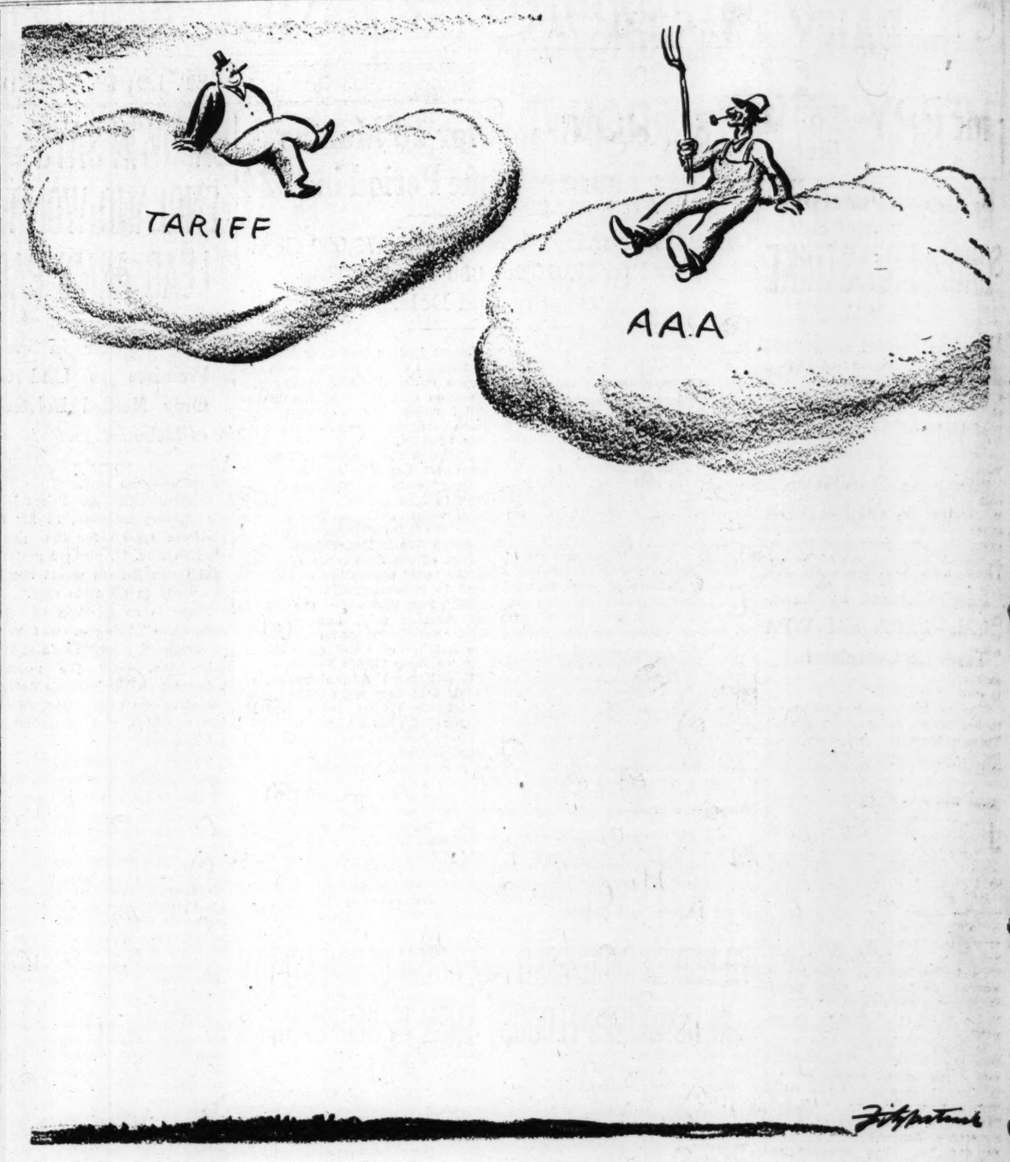

PLEASE REMIT.

When the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill was before Congress, and, again, while it lay on the President's desk awaiting Mr. Hoover's signature, the economists told us that, if it became a law, our foreign debtors would find it difficult, probably impossible, to pay the war debts. Events have confirmed that judgment.

Now Gen. Hugh Johnson informs us that, when the Roosevelt administration devalued the dollar, it "made easier every cent of debt and interest payment by our debtors abroad."

But pay days have been coming along, with the falling of the calendar leaves, and never a remittance. Perhaps our foreign debtors haven't heard about our generosity. You're telling us, Gen. Johnson. Tell it to them.

A St. Louis brewer tells a convention of associates that we're galloping towards recovery and that private industry will absorb the bulk of the unemployed "in the next 18 months." Beer, you see, can paint as pretty a picture as a mint julep.

THE FARMER LIKES IT UP THERE, TOO.

Problems of Subdivision Control

Premature attempts at developing land near cities cause waste and inefficiency, engineer says; estimates there are now enough vacant lots in U. S. to house double our present urban population; huge costs in street maintenance and fictitious values involved; urges zoning restrictions to curb "wild-cat subdivisions."

From a Paper by Earl O. Mills, St. Louis Planning Consultant, Before the National Conference on City, State and Regional Planning, at Cincinnati.

NOTWITHSTANDING that meritorious progress has been achieved in subdivision control as a part of comprehensive planning, certain evils still prevail. Few, if any, communities have escaped the blighting and detrimental effects of land exploitation in the form of excessive and unwarranted subdivided areas. The disastrous consequences of these false attempts at the urbanization of land yet unripe for development are not, and cannot be, fully realized in the absence of more complete and authentic information. The editors of the magazine Fortune, however, throw some light on this dilemma in their excellent publication, "Housing America," in which they say:

"The American continent was whittled down from the lap of God to the corner lot in a man's lifetime. And the waste of that process lies about our cities now in slag heaps of houseless subdivisions and tailings of high-priced acres like the refuse around a careless mill. Chicago was said to have enough newly plotted suburban land five years ago to house 10,000,000 people. There are enough lots staked off on Long Island to make suburbanites of the inhabitants of the five boroughs of New York. Of Cleveland's 375,000 lots, 47 per cent were vacant in 1929. Detroit suburbs have been staked 30 per cent in advance of requirements for the last 30 years. Seventy-five per cent of the total plotted area of Burbank, Cal., and 53 per cent of the plotted land throughout Los Angeles County are vacant."

If the average amount of vacant platted land known to exist in several representative communities is indicative of the average for all urban regions, there are now sufficient vacant lots to accommodate a total urban population considerably more than double that of 1930, which was 69,000,000. If the migration from rural to urban areas continues at the same pace as it did from 1920 to 1930, which is exceedingly doubtful, the maximum increase in urban population will scarcely exceed 13,000,000, or only about 15 or 20 per cent of the amount needed to absorb the now existing vacant lots. Furthermore, it cannot be assumed that the entire increase in urban population will seek the lots already subdivided. There are many areas relatively closer in and more attractive that could and should be developed. This would indicate that the vast majority of the surplus subdivided areas will forever remain idle unless some readjustment is effected.

Sufficient data is not available for a fair approximation of the tremendous useless expenditures made for streets, utilities and other facilities now serving vacant lots. In Los Angeles County, there are 2220 miles of streets serving the frontage of vacant lots and the annual charge for street maintenance in front of these vacant lots alone is $1,435,869. It also is stated that the increased cost of government made necessary solely because of the existence of these vacant lots is $3,500,000 annually.

Another testimony to the folly of surplus land platting is the resultant and fictitious increase in land values. From a few estimates it is evident that for the entire nation, such inflated values would run into the billions of dollars, being in excess of $250,000,000 each in the Chicago and Los Angeles regions alone.

For an orderly reorganization of the sparsely built areas, it is essential that thorough plan and zoning regulation precede new platting or replatting in order to establish the desirable character of the several districts. Density regulations under zoning ordinances, if used more extensively and effectively, would contribute immeasurably to the solution of the problem of indiscriminate land platting.

For example, it is quite generally conceded and should be recognized in planning that greater open space should be the compensating factor for greater distance in travel. Generally speaking, therefore, building sites should be increased somewhat in proportion to their distance from the center of high values. Likewise, beyond the limits where scientific studies indicate that the subdivision of land into lots of less than an acre or two should terminate, only large estates, agricultural use, subsistence homesteads and the like should be permitted.

Such an attempt to control more rigidly the distribution of population and wild-cat subdivisions may seem a questionable extension of the zoning principle, but we need only to be reminded that in less than 20 years we have witnessed the extension of the application of zoning regulations from the skyscrapers of New York to the cutover lands of Wisconsin, where the permanent use of certain lands is specifically prohibited. Moreover, in view of our serious land problems, both rural and urban, we may reasonably expect a more widespread use and continued refinement of zoning regulations to effect a rational and wholesome distribution of population.

Such regulations would serve to correct many evils in land platting and tend to bring about a better understanding of our future population growth in the urban regions. Too much stress cannot be placed upon the dire need of direct legal authority to control excess subdivision and the sale of subdivided property by metes and bounds.

Installation of improvements and utilities as a condition of approval of plats is now in effect in a limited number of communities. Though not a panacea for all ills, this is a commendable practice and one that should be more extensively used. In Memphis, Tenn., a law has been in operation for the past decade which provides that a deed to a lot of less than two acres within the city or up to five miles beyond, cannot be recorded unless it abuts upon a public thoroughfare or is approved by the City Plan Commission. In other communities, instances are recorded where building permits or utilities are refused for lots in unapproved subdivisions, and while such a procedure may possess some merit, it can, at best, be regarded only as an expedient of questionable practical value under our democratic form of government. Obviously, these problems must be corrected at their source if subsequent and aggravating complications are to be avoided.

They died for peace. We who live must preserve it—in their name.

We must maintain peace—that you may lead a normal life—free from the personal hazards of war; unsullied by the moral letdown of a post-war era.

Wars are rotten messes, son. They rob the veteran of his youth. In time they rob the cradle and the grave.

We fought young boys and old men in the Argonne, son. Today Germany pays in the damaged morale of its desperate young people—in starvation, in political turmoil and oppression.

France and England, the victors, are paying, too. Dishonored debts, moral decay, fear of another war haunt them.

Italy pays, too—a war-made dictator is today leading his people in a foolish, selfish attack upon a helpless nation . . . to kill and be killed—for what?

That is war, son . . . not parades with colors bravely flying and bands playing. War means heart-broken mothers and maimed men who come back with maddening, irrational thoughts of their comrades who sleep under little white crosses on foreign soil.

It is your duty, son . . . Cherish peace, honestly endeavor to preserve peace . . . in the blessed memory of that army of my comrades whose ideals will never die.

MARK TWAIN ON THE RAILS.

From the Washington Post.

TOWARD the end of this month, a flat-nosed, streamlined, Diesel-powered train will begin its daily round trip between St. Louis and Burlington, Ia. It is capable of a cruising speed of nearly 100 miles per hour and is propelled by a 660 horsepower engine. The weight of this luxurious animal of the tracks is 287,000 pounds, and it is ultra-modern from the tip of its blunt nose to the end of its sawed-off rear. And it is to be christened, of all things, "Mark Twain!"

If Mark Twain were living, he would be the first to see the irony of the compliment. If this were one of the old-fashioned trains that possessed something of a human quality as it came puffing down the tracks, the idea of naming it for the homespun writer would not be incongruous. But the glamour of the puffing engine is gone, and with it the boyish thrill of being swung up into the magic little cab by a grimy, smiling engineer. The new speed marvel has been dehumanized and de-sooted until there is little resemblance between it and the homely era which its namesake chronicled.

This "stainless steel innovation" is being named "Mark Twain" because its route lies through Hannibal, Mo., the boyhood home of the beloved novelist. The cars of the train will bear the names Tom Sawyer, Huckleberry Finn, Becky Thatcher and Injun Joe. It is too late now to stop the blunder. But it may be hoped that this will not set a precedent. There is something positively sacrilegious in the idea of a Dieseled "Dickens" hurtling through the English counties at 100 miles an hour, pulling after it a streamlined Pickwick and Sam Weller.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.

STATE DEPARTMENT historians, preparing to publish the diplomatic documents of the Harding administration, recently came across a note sent to Cuba by the then Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes.

It advised Cuba, in no uncertain terms, that the best remedy for its bulging sugar crop was to plow up a considerable portion of the cane sugar fields. The note was rather emphatic advice for a Secretary of State to be sending, even to a country where the United States enjoyed Platt amendment privileges.

Therefore, State Department officials hesitated about publishing it. Mr. Hughes, they said among themselves, now occupies the exalted position of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. It might be embarrassing to have his note made public.

Word of this hesitation reached Charley Michelson, astute strategist of the Democratic National Committee.

"What!" said Michelson. "A Republican advised a foreign country to plow up its sugar crop?

"That is going to be our answer to Republican critics of the AAA. There is no doubt that note is going to be published, even if I have to take it up with the President."

John Roosevelt.

John got a couple of "raw deals" from the Boston newspapers recently. 1. The Boston Herald reported erroneously that he had turned down a bid to the Hasty Pudding Club. 2. The morning after his automobile accident in East Boston the Boston American called him up at 2 a. m. to ask him how he was sleeping.

So lanky John called a conference of the Harvard correspondents of the Boston papers for 3 p. m., Oct. 17, at his Dunster House room. Of the six correspondents in Cambridge, three appeared at the conference—American, Herald-Traveler and Post. The others—Globe, Advertiser-Record and Transcript—"forgot" or didn't care.

No refreshments were served at the conference, and John was the only Roosevelt present. He opened with a remark about "all the papers here" being "anti-Father" and asked the boys to be good fellows and go easy on him in the future.

Father Coughlin.

NOV. 3—the day Father Coughlin goes back on the air—is the next important political date as far as Washington is concerned.

The politicos from both parties will have their ears almost glued to the microphone to hear whether the radio priest is going to be pro or anti-New Deal.

Present indications are that he has come back on the Roosevelt band wagon. Joe Kennedy, former head of the Securities Exchange Commission, is credited with doing the converting when he took Coughlin to Hyde Park last summer.

Present indications are that he has come back on the Roosevelt band wagon. Joe Kennedy, former head of the Securities Exchange Commission, is credited with doing the converting when he took Coughlin to Hyde Park last summer.

During that conference, Coughlin complained about Roosevelt's failure to bring about drastic currency inflation, but otherwise was friendly.

Whatever he says, Coughlin is going to tell it to a lot more people this winter. He has increased his radio network to include stations in Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, Denver and San Francisco. Before, he only went as far west as the Mississippi River.

This new network is going to cost the Detroit priest a total of $300,000, much of it being spent for telephone transmission to radio stations, rather than time on the air itself. To help meet the increased cost, Coughlin is cutting his time down from one hour to 45 minutes, eliminating the music.

"In This Corner—"

GEORGE PEEK may be down, but he is not out.

Twice thrown for a loss by Secretary Cordell Hull in their feud over the administration's tariff policy, the burly head of the Export-Import Bank is determined to have another go at it.

Peek returned to Washington for a few days last week—after a three-month vacation—and confided to intimates that he has the groundwork ready to renew his battle with the Secretary of State.

Merry-Go-Round.

The new Peek plan will unfold when Congress reconvenes in January. It revolves about Senate Bill No. 3464, which was quietly slipped into the hopper by Senator J. "Ham" Lewis in the closing days of the last session.

The measure, of which Peek is the real author, would establish a Federal Foreign Trade Board with extensive powers. It would absorb all Government trade agencies now in existence. This would take from Hull his pet bureau for the negotiation of reciprocal tariff treaties, leaving him only the diplomatic end of the negotiations.

Should Peek succeed in putting through his bill—most unlikely—it will make him top man in the New Deal's foreign trade setup. If he loses, it will probably mean the end of his official life in the Roosevelt regime.

FRIENDS of Gen. Hugh Johnson say that White House Secretary Louis Howe agrees with him that the President should house-clean the official family. It seems that Louis knew Johnson was writing the magazine article in which he belabored certain New Deal policies. . . . Senator George Norris, who has continued working in Washington since the adjournment of Congress, has now departed for Nebraska. He expects to return early in December. . . . In the latest batch of NRA dismissals, numbering around 500, practically all the discharged were in the $1400 a year salary group, with only a few above that figure. . . . The "front steps" of the White House once again are visible. The fence erected early in the summer, to hide the work of modernizing the kitchen, has been removed.

G. O. P. LEADERS DECIDE ON STATE PUBLICITY DRIVE

Curtis estimated that this work, under direction of the State committee, will treble the party's organization strength. Formation of the clubs will be optional with each county, he said.

L. M. Hyde Presents Plan.

The formal plan for the organization of the Young Republican Clubs was presented to the committee yesterday by Laurance M. Hyde of Princeton, State Supreme Court Commissioner, and brother of former Gov. Arthur M. Hyde. It was formally approved by the Executive Committee, most of the members of the State committee having approved it several months ago.

Curtis said another pre-election campaign activity would be meetings in each of the 13 congressional districts in the State the latter part of next month or the first part of December. Prominent Republicans from Missouri and other states will address the meetings.

Curtis and other party leaders said they were confident that Missouri will return to the Republican column next year. While talk of a State ticket was officially taboo at yesterday's meeting, there was much discussion of possible candidates among the committee members outside the formal sessions of the executive committee.

Winter an Onlooker.

Former Lieutenant-Governor E. H. Winter of Jefferson City, the nominee for Governor in 1932, and a leading candidate for the nomination next year, was an onlooker at the meeting. Winter, according to some party leaders, is supported by the faction headed by former Gov. Hyde, still a potent factor in State politics.

Former Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett of St. Louis, the choice of several St. Louis members of the committee for Governor, also was present but, like Winter, avoided any discussion of his possible candidacy. Barrett is supported by St. Louisans who oppose Hyde and who believe Winter to be Hyde's candidate. Hyde was in the hotel but did not appear at the committee session.

Former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield of St. Louis, regarded as another possible choice for Governor in 1936, was not at the meeting, but former Collector Edmond Koeln of St. Louis, a Caulfield leader in 1928, appeared at the afternoon session. Caulfield also has declined to discuss his possible candidacy, maintaining it is too early.

SYMPHONY SEASON SEAT SALE LARGEST ON RECORD

Total Is 4524; Subscription Reservation Offer to Be Withdrawn After Opening Concerts.

A total of 4524 season seat subscriptions have been sold for the coming season of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, it was announced yesterday. It is the largest sale in the history of the orchestra, an increase of 193 over last season's sale and 52 per cent over that of the 1933-34 season, when the orchestra last appeared at the Odeon Theater.

The subscriptions, which are at a saving of 35 per cent, will be withdrawn from sale after the opening concerts, Nov. 8 and 9. Of those sold so far, 2500 are for Saturday night concerts and the rest for Friday afternoons.

The lower balcony seats for the Saturday night concerts are sold out, and only 132 of the $12 and $9 tickets in the upper balcony remain unsold. There are plenty of lower priced seats available for Friday afternoons, and on the lower floor for Friday or Saturday performances.

CONNETT SISTERS' DEBUT TEA TODAY

WHITE chrysanthemums will decorate the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll Connett, 4422 Lindell boulevard, today for the debut tea of their daughters, Miss Mary Jessie and Miss Nancy Burnside Connett. About 300 guests have been invited to meet the debutantes between 4 and 6 o'clock.

White chrysanthemums against greenery have been banked about the fireplace in the living room. More of the flowers will cover the mantel which will be lighted by white tapers in silver candelabra. Before this floral background Mrs. Connett and her daughters will receive their guests. Gift flowers have been arranged about the reception room and the living room. The tea table will be adorned with more of the white blossoms and lighted by white candles in silver candelabra.

Miss Mary Jessie Connett will wear the gown in which she served as a special maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball earlier in the month. It is a model of silver lame with an over drapery of nasturtium-toned tulle. The bodice is fashioned with a round neckline at the front and a deep V at the back. Outlining the neckline is a wide pleating of nasturtium-colored tulle with a lei of shaded velvet nasturtiums. The waistline is defined by a wide girdle of rhinestones fastened with an amber buckle from which falls a voluminous tulle skirt, which opens down the front to reveal the silver drapery of the underskirt. Miss Nancy Connett will wear a gown of silver lame. The bodice, slashed to the waist, is designed with a high neckline and long sleeves fitted to the elbow, where they flare over the hand. She will wear a shoulder corsage of orchids. Mrs. Connett will wear a gown of silver metal cloth combined with black velvet. Her flowers will be gardenias arranged in a shoulder corsage.

The following debutantes will preside at the tea table: Miss Lila Marshall Childress, the Veiled Prophet Queen; Miss Lydia Ann Allen, Miss Marcella Berkley, Miss Suzanne Bitting, Miss Ruth Deibel, Miss Eugine Evans, Miss Blanche Fischel, Miss Elisabeth Cole Freeman, Miss Aurelia Gerhard, Miss Elizabeth Goodson, Miss Joy Gross, Miss Harriet Hulburd, Miss Elizabeth Myrl James, Miss Jane Jordan, Miss Lucile Keeler, Miss Carol and Miss Elizabeth Mansfield, Miss Georgia and Miss Virginia Morse, Miss Martha O'Neill, Miss Anne Shapleigh, Miss Ann Tierney, Miss Irene Pettus and Miss Phoebe Weed, and three of last year's debutantes, Miss Frances Bates, Miss Helen Franklin and Miss Atwood McVoy.

A group of Mrs. Connett's friends have been asked to assist including, Mrs. Gwynne Evans, Mrs. Boyle Price, Mrs. Louis T. Hall, Mrs. Elkins Franklin, Mrs. Felix E. Gunter, Miss Helen Schlafly, Mrs. John Frederick Schlafly, Mrs. Glendy B. Arnold and Mrs. Dwight D. Currie.

The debutantes were graduated in 1933 from Villa Duchesne and the following year studied in Edinburgh, Rome and Paris. They attended Washington University last fall and spent the spring in Mexico with their mother. They are the granddaughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. August Schlafly.

"Henry the Morg," Secretary of the Treasury, Whose Boast It Is That He "Doesn't Know Much About Anything."

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.

THIS depression is essentially a financial crisis—not an industrial or a trade crisis. There is plenty of production and means to produce far more. There are unsatisfied demands to the very edge of starvation among one-third to one-half of us. Somehow money—which is our only means to supply unsatisfied demand—isn't doing its job. It may be that the old system is wrong, but it also may be that the administration of it is wrong.

We didn't need a doctrinnaire. It was said that we mustn't take a Wall Street man for fear we would be under the domination of the money trust. That was a question of personal honor and integrity. But why did we have to pick a Wall Street man who didn't know anything about money? Then why did we have to replace Secretary Woodin, upon his death, with a Hyde Park man who seems rather inclined to boast of the fact that he doesn't know much about anything—at least about finance?

"Henry the Morg," his boss calls the Secretary of the Treasury. Morgenthau's business experience aforetime was running a farm paper, which few farmers saw, and advising the Governor of New York on agriculture.

His greatest pre-Cabinet contribution to our fiscal affairs was to introduce that great bug expert, Prof. Warren, whose own great gift was to beguile the administration into its fiasco with devalued money.

Maybe nobody could have done better, but in getting anybody to try at all, why did we have to get somebody who, by the very terms of his selection, couldn't even know how to start?

In this great Porsenian threat to the republic, who stands at the right hand of Horatius to guard the bridge with him? Henry the Morg.

Here, too, there were, in the Democratic party, giant figures in this field. Carter Glass was good enough to be dragged from a sick bed to secure the election by insuring that the new administration would be guided by masters in this mystic art—but too good to be Secretary of the Treasury.

And so—the financial and fiscal affairs of the United States are in the worst mess in our history.

Chairman of Will Rogers' Fund.

John G. Lonsdale, chairman of the board of directors of the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co., has been appointed local chairman of the Will Rogers Memorial Commission. A national campaign to raise funds for a memorial will be held from Nov. 4 to 26. Frank Hawks, speed flyer, will come here Nov. 5 to assist in the campaign.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

THREE generations of St. Louis society attended the debut luncheon at the St. Louis Country Club today for Miss Blanche Elliot Fischel, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter Fischel, 14 Lenox place. Miss Fischel was presented to society by her mother and her grandmother, Mrs. William H. Elliot, 5023 Westminster place.

About 200 guests were present, among them all of this season's debutantes, a group of last year's buds, and friends of Mrs. Fischel, Mrs. Elliot and Mrs. Washington E. Fischel, paternal grandmother of the guest of honor, who also attended the party.

After receiving her guests in the lounge, before a bower of gift flowers, Miss Fischel sat with the debutantes at a large table in the alcove dining room. Chrysanthemums in the autumn shades and foliage were used in decoration.

Mrs. Fischel, her mother and Mrs. Fischel Sr., presided at smaller tables arranged through the main dining room. The debutante wore Chinese red crepe, an afternoon gown with long sleeves, and a corsage of green orchids. Mrs. Fischel was in black velvet with a lace collar, and Mrs. Elliot wore a black crepe and chiffon gown with a small black hat.

Miss Fischel was one of the four special maids of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball. She is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Smith College for two years. She has traveled abroad.

Many additional parties have been planned for Miss Fischel. Thursday night she will be guest of honor at a supper party to be given by Miss Blair Boyle. On Nov. 10 she will share honors with Miss Vera Angert at a supper at the St. Louis Country Club, with Mrs. Robert Holland as hostess. Mrs. Marion Clifford Blossom and Mrs. Wilbur B. Jones will entertain for her at the St. Louis Country Club dinner dance Nov. 16, and Nov. 24 she will share honors with Miss Carroll Jones at a party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morrill and Mrs. Ralph Simpkins. Mrs. Sidney Maestre will give a luncheon Nov. 27 for Miss Fischel, Miss Eugenie Evans and Miss Ann Shapleigh.

At a Little Theater play Dec. 13, Mrs. Allen V. Cockrell and Mrs. Calvin R. Lightner, her great-aunts, will give a theater party for the debutante, followed by supper and dancing at the Artists' Guild. Mrs. Arthur B. Shepley will entertain for her at the St. Louis Country Club Dec. 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Taylor Woods have returned from their wedding trip in the South and are making their home at 6018 McPherson avenue. Mrs. Woods until her wedding Saturday, Oct. 5, at Christ Church Cathedral, was Miss Margaret Hallowell Condie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Douglas Condie of Kinghurst, Ferguson. Mr. Woods is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harper Woods of Webster Groves.

Mme. Emma Noe of Hopkinsville, Ky., will arrive Friday to spend two weeks with Mrs. Lewis Cass Nelson, 23 Lenox place. Mme. Noe, who is a former Metropolitan Opera singer, is coming to attend performances of grand opera in the Municipal Auditorium. She will be the guest of honor at a reception which Mrs. Nelson will give during her stay. The latter recently returned from Coronado, Cal., where she spent the summer with her niece, Miss Ida Louise Baker of St. Louis.

Mrs. William F. Keeshan and her children will conclude her visit Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill Ryan, 29 Windermere place. Mr. Keeshan will join his family here Thursday and return with them to their home in New York. Mrs. Keeshan is the former Miss Margaret Ryan.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Cass Nelson III have taken a house at 524 North Central avenue, Clayton. They formerly resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Martin Nelson Jr., at 2 Dromara road.

Mrs. George L. Ball of Memphis, Tenn., returned to her home Sunday after a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Ivers Meier Jr., 7300 Pershing avenue, and their infant daughter, born last Tuesday.

Guests at the Metcalfe home after the wedding Saturday evening of Miss Jane Metcalfe and Bertram Beach Culver Jr., will be limited to members of the two families.

One of the social affairs in connection with the week of grand opera beginning Thursday will be a musical tea and reception to be given by the hospitality committee of the St. Louis Woman's Club, at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, in honor of Giovanni Martinelli, Metropolitan Opera Co. tenor, who is celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary on the operatic stage.

Maria Jeritza, Gennaro Papi, Margaret Halstead, Paul Althouse, Elda Vettori, Leon Rothier, Rita de Leporte, Guiseppe Bentonelli, Ernest Knoch, Colette d'Arville, Norman Cordon, Giacomoa Spadoni, and other members of the grand opera personnel will be special guests. Several of them are expected to sing.

Receiving with Martinelli will be Guy Golterman, director of the St. Louis Grand Opera Company; Oscar Johnson, president of the St. Louis Symphony Society; Mrs. Henry S. Butler, president of the St. Louis Woman's Club; Mrs. Marvin E. Holderness, vice-president of the club; Mrs. Henry C. Whiteside, chairman of the hospitality committee; Mrs. William Bagnell, vice-chairman; Mrs. Harold E. Woodward, chairman of the St. Michael and St. George Church Service Bureau which is sponsoring the performance of "Turandot," and Mrs. Fred Z. Salomon, chairman of the Council House committee, sponsoring "Faust," and Mrs. Oscar Johnson.

Serving will be Mrs. Leo De Smet Carton, Mrs. William N. Claggett, Mrs. Charles B. Sudborough, Mrs. Daniel Upthegrove, Mrs. Thomas R. Collins, Mrs. Alexander Fraser, Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser, Mrs. Robert Lund, Mrs. James M. Nelson Jr. and Mrs. Fred M. Hoag.

Assisting at the tea table will be: Mrs. W. Palmer Clarkson, Mrs. H. H. Culver, Mrs. W. L. Hemingway, Mrs. Thomas C. Hennings, Mrs. John G. Lonsdale, Mrs. R. D. Lewis, Mrs. George S. Mepham, Mrs. Frank Thompson, and Mrs. Lewis C. Nelson.

An orchestra under the direction of Max Steindel will play.

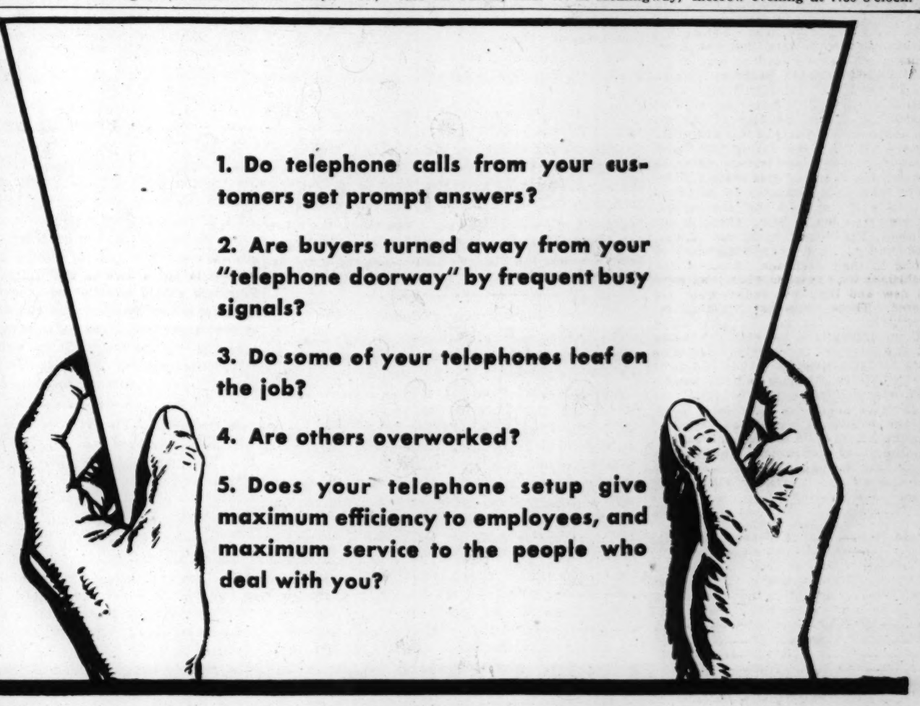

Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Coulter, 4 North Kingshighway boulevard, have been guests at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York for a few days. They will be home Thursday.

Miss Virginia Mariella McDonald, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel McDonald, 4753 Westminster place, has chosen Saturday, Dec. 21, for her marriage to Philip Robert Becker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Becker, 5138 Waterman avenue. The details of the wedding have not yet been completed.

A meeting was held yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. Ernest W. Stix, 6470 Forsythe boulevard, to complete plans for a banquet to be given at Hotel Coronado Friday night in celebration of the sixteenth anniversary of the League of Women Voters of St. Louis. Mrs. Quincy Wright of Chicago, chairman of the Department of Government and International Co-operation, will be the principal speaker. Her subject will be "The American Path to Peace." She will be the guest of Mrs. Roscoe Anderson, 456 Baker avenue, Webster Groves, while in St. Louis. The Rt. Rev. William Scarlett will also speak at the dinner on "The Background of the Present European Situation."

Seated at the speakers' table will be the following: Mrs. Wright, Bishop Scarlett, Chancellor and Mrs. George R. Throop, Mr. and Mrs. E. Lansing Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Fred English, Mrs. Jackson Johnson, Mrs. Washington E. Fischel, Dean and Mrs. Isadore Loeb, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Brant, Mrs. Eugene Towner Senseney and Mr. and Mrs. J. Hardin Smith.

The St. Louis American Legion Choral Club will entertain the disabled war veterans at the Veterans' Hospital, Jefferson Barracks, tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock.

THIS "EFFICIENCY TEST"

THE RIGHT ANSWERS TO THESE QUESTIONS MAY BE WORTH MONEY TO YOUR BUSINESS ...A FREE SERVICE OFFERED BY THE TELEPHONE COMPANY WILL UNCOVER THE FACTS FOR YOU...

There is one sure way to find out if you are getting the maximum value from your telephone service . . . and that is to call it on the carpet. Make it "prove-in" for you.

Out of hundreds of analyses of business telephone setups, large and small, telephone service engineers have developed a definite "efficiency test" for business telephones. This test uncovers the facts about your telephones.

It tells you whether you may be losing customers through slow answers and "busy signals". It tells you where you have too much telephone service and where you have too little. It shows you how slight changes may add many-fold to the efficiency of your employees. It may even uncover for you definite, profit-making possibilities from your telephones that are now overlooked.

The test is thorough, but simple to make. It involves no inconvenience for you and your employees.

Gladly, and without obligation, we'll send a service engineer to apply these tested methods to the telephone problems of your business. Just call the telephone business office.

WHEAT REGAINS PART OF LOSSES IN LATE REBOUND

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 29.—In a late rebound of prices today, wheat in Chicago jumped to well above yesterday's finish. Resting orders to buy wheat on declines were encountered. The rise here was after Winnipeg wheat quotations had fallen to around 4½ cents under the price paid to Canadian producers.

Wheat closed firm at the day's top point, ⅛@1⅛ above yesterday's finish, December 97⅞@98c; corn ⅞ off to ½ up, Dec. 59¼@⅝, oats ¼@⅝ advanced, and provisions varying from 15 cents decline to 5 cents gain.

Opening unchanged to ½c lower, December, 97@97¼c, wheat then scored gains. Corn started unchanged to ⅜c off, December 59⅜c, and soon advanced.

Winnipeg messages told of persistent dearth of any Canadian wheat export business of consequence. The messages added that it was apparent Argentina was willing to meet threatened competition with lower prices. On the other hand, relative absence of Canadian selling pressure was noted, together with snows and colder weather in Canada.

Official Argentine wheat exports for the year from August, 1934, to July, 1935, totaled 172,000,000 bu against 140,000,000 the previous year. Russian exports for the 11 months from August, 1934, to June, 1935, inclusive, were placed at 2,080,000 bu, which compared with 32,000,000 bu the previous year.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 33,085,000 bushels, corn 7,399,000. Open interest in wheat was 128,791,000 bushels and in corn 30,726,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 29.—Wheat was ½@1¼c higher on closing bid. Corn was bid ⅛c lower at the close.

Liverpool wheat opened ¾@1d lower. One cable was 1⅛@1⅜d lower. The close was 1⅜@1⅝d lower.

Winnipeg wheat opened ¼@½c lower. Later the market turned 1½@1⅝c lower. The close was ⅛@⅜c net higher.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market today wheat was 1½@½c lower, white corn 1c lower, yellow nominally 4@5c lower and oats ¼@⅜c lower.

Sales made on the floor of the exchange were as follows:

Local wheat receipts, which were 18,000 bu, compared with 27,000 a week ago and 1500 a year ago, included 6 local and 7 through. Corn receipts, which were 37,500 bu, compared with 13,500 a week ago and 9000 a year ago, included 8 cars local and 1 through. Oats receipts, which were 8000 bu, compared with 10,000 a week ago, included 2 cars local and 2 through. Hay receipts were 1 car local.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 29.—The price of Pennsylvania grade crude oils increased 15 cents a barrel today. The prices: Southwest, $1.87; Eureka, $1.82; Buckeye, $1.67; Bradford Transit, $2.15; New York Transit, $2.15.

COTTON CLOSE IS STEADY, 11 HIGHER TO 10 LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Cotton was comparatively quiet and irregular today. December was steady and October easy, with the near months about even on trade buying.

There was liquidation and scattered selling in the later deliveries. At 2 p. m., December was ruling around 10.89, or 4 points net higher, while later positions were 1 to 7 points net lower.

Cotton futures opened barely steady, unchanged to 3 lower, with steadier Liverpool cables offset by hedge selling. Dec., 10.86; Jan., 10.81; March, 10.85; May, 10.88; July, 10.91; Oct., 10.83.

Trading was fairly active at the start, with overnight hedging from the South taken by buying through brokers with trade and foreign connections. LATE RALLY IN STEELS; STOCK LIST CLOSE FIRM

General Upturn in Final Hour Follows Highly Irregular Tendencies; Moderate Profit-Taking Near the Finish.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A late rally in U. S. Steel common today gave support to a stock market that had exhibited highly irregular tendencies throughout the greater part of the session. While there were still a few soft spots in evidence, the general upturn in the final hour gave the list a steady to firm closing tone. Transfers approximated 1,750,000 shares.

The last-hour buying rush, centered largely on U. S. Steel and allied stocks, put the ticker two minutes behind floor transactions.

There was moderate profit-taking near the finish, but shares up around a point or so included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Sharon Steel Hoop, Deere, Cerro de Pasco, North American, Canada Dry, Crown Cork, Container Corp., Mesta Machine and American Smelting. Amerada Corp. spurted 4 points, Owens-Illinois registered a gain of 3 and Westinghouse and American Woolen preferred firmed 2 or so. Chrysler, General Motors, Studebaker, Allied Chemical and the majority of the rails were in arrears. Fairmount Putrex issues were among the losers.

Sterling, at mid-afternoon, was up ⅛ of a cent, at $4.91⅞, and the French franc was .00⅛ of a cent higher at 6.59⅜ cents. Belgas, guilders and lire were unchanged. The Canadian dollar edged forward ⅛ of a cent to 99 cents.

Closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: North American 24⅝, up 1½; Sparks Withington ⅞, up ⅞; General Motors 52⅞, down ⅜; Studebaker 6⅜, down ⅜; Chrysler 85⅛, down 1½; Packard 6⅜, down ⅜; U. S. Steel 47¼, up ¼; Radio 7⅞, down ⅛; Columbia G. & El. 15⅛, up ⅛; United Corp. 4, up 1/16; Param. Pict. 9⅝, down ⅛; Graham-Paige 4, down ⅛; Westinghouse E. & M. 91, up 1⅞; Superior Oil 2⅝, up ⅛; Com. & Sou. 3⅛, up ⅛.

BANK BOOSTS CALL RATE FROM 1-4 TO 3-4 OF 1 PCT.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—While the official rate on the call money desk of the New York Stock Exchange remained at ¼ of 1 per cent, the Manufacturers' Trust Co. today quoted day-to-day money on security collateral at a new ¾ of 1 per cent rate, and the rates for time money were quoted firmer by money brokers.

Money for 3 to 6 months maturity was lifted to ⅝ of 1 per cent, while previously all maturities up to 6 months had ruled, since June 8, at ½ of 1 per cent. Rates for loans of 60 days or less still remained at ½ of 1 per cent.

The change in the call funds rate to ¾ of 1 per cent ends the long period since April 18 of this year in which all institutions have quoted ¼ of 1 per cent.

U. S. STEEL PAYS 50C ON PFD.; QUARTER EARNINGS INCREASE

Nine Months Net Loss $4,241,499 Against $11,466,491 in Same Period in 1934.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Directors of the United States Steel Corp. today ordered a dividend of 50 cents on the preferred stock. Similar payments have been made quarterly on the senior shares since January, 1933, when the old $7 annual rate was abandoned.

The corporation reported total earnings of $13,469,570 for the September quarter, after ordinary operating expenses, against $14,117,864 for the June quarter and $2,768,863 for the September quarter last year.

After interest, depreciation, depetion, overhead expense on iron ore, etc., there was a deficit of $1,305,205 against deficits of $3,492,493 in the second quarter and deficit of $9,626,767 in the September quarter of 1934.

After provision for the preferred dividend, there was a deduction from surplus for the third quarter of $3,206,610 against $2,563,898 in the preceding quarter and $11,628,172 in the like period of last year. The dividend on the preferred shares is payable Nov. 20 to stock of record Nov. 1. With this payment accumulations on the stock, which is entitled to $7 annually, will amount to $4 a share.

Shipments of finished steel products for the September quarter totaled 1,787,224 tons against 1,768,751 tons in the previous quarter and 1,112,267 tons for the September (1934) quarter.

Myron C. Taylor, chairman, in a statement, said in part: "The operations for the third quarter average 57.7 per cent of capacity of finished products for each month, compared with 2 per cent in the corresponding quarter of 1934.

"Tonnage shipped during the third quarter of 1935 exceeded the second quarter tonnage by 18,473 tons. However, in the character of the products shipped a relatively large proportion of the third quarter shipments were of the lesser priced products than was the case in the second quarter.

"At the present time operations are averaging about 42 per cent of capacity. It is believed this average will be maintained substantially throughout the fourth quarter."

The corporation's statement for the nine months ended Sept. 30 shows net loss of $4,241,499 after taxes and other deductions against net loss of $11,466,491 in the first nine months of 1934.

Structural Steel Contracts.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Contracts closed for structural steel in September are estimated at 83,449 tons against 100,211 in August, according to the American Institute of Steel Construction. September production was placed at 85,711 tons compared with 93,748 in August, with shipments at 82,256 against 92,256 in August. The Institute estimates tonnage available for fabrication within the next four months at 229,372 tons.

Demand for Dollar Pints.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—A sharp increase in the demand for all types of liquors is reported by distillers here. Requests are particularly active on pint sizes to retail around $1.

TODAY'S FINANCIAL BAROMETER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—Security loans of member banks of the Federal Reserve System in leading cities have continued to decline in face of the rise in the stock market recently.

The decline, prolonging a trend which began with the market crash in 1929, lately has been attributable entirely to reduction in loans to customers other than brokers or dealers. Officials explain the advance in the market probably has provided favorable opportunity for liquidation of old loans.

Week ended Oct. 23	—$1,970,000,000
Preceding week	— 1,977,000,000
Same week last year	— 2,215,000,000

Wabash Railway Co. reports for week ended Oct. 26 revenue cars loaded 5788, against 5141 same week last year; revenue cars from connections, 9598; against 6315 same period last year; totals, 14,386 for 1935 week, 11,456 for 1934 week.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

LONDON, Oct. 29.—speculative profit-taking and the lack of fresh investment buying owing mainly to the approaching elections and partly to the decreeing of sanctions, caused a generally easier tendency on the Stock Exchange today. Most sections recorded slight declines, but motor and gold mining shares were steady exceptions. The market closed easy.

PARIS.—Led by rentes, prices on the Bourse recovered part of their early losses today as profittaking subsided. International issues, however, were irregular. The market closed firm.

BERLIN.—Bonds led the slight improvement which took place on the Boerse today despite the very small business transacted. The closing was quiet.

BOND PRICE CHANGES NARROW AND MIXED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Narrow and unimportant price changes, with a slight tendency toward irregularity, was the rule on the corporate bond market today. U. S. Government obligations did little either way and closed mixed. Foreign bonds were about steady. There were few group movements of consequence except among the low-priced rails, many of which were in demand at prices ranging from small fractions to around a point above Monday's close.

Atlantic Coast Line 4½s advanced 1¼ points to 78¾. "Katy" 5s were 1½ better at 46¼, and Western Maryland 4s improved a major fraction at 95¾. Other bonds making some headway included Consolidated Gas 5½s, American Waterworks 6s and Union Pacific 4s. Losses were shown by Container 6s, Chile Copper 5s, International Paper 5s and Youngstown Sheet and Tube 5s.

Government bonds were 5-32nds lower to 3-32nds higher, with Treasury loans about equally divided between the two. In the foreign division, German 7s and Argentine 6s were among others selling higher.

Two More New Graves.

Uncle Sam and Wild Geese.

Government Railroads?

Nine Words From Mussolini.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.
(Copyright, 1935.)

THE body of "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer "darkly, by dead of night," was carried out of New York for burial at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Three hours later two more gangsters were shot down in the big city. They had no time to "draw."

"Stop, I'm the law; put 'em up," said one of two killers. Up went four hands, the other killer said "Yeh, that's them; let 'em have it."

Two small time gangsters will probably need new graves. Police say the wounded, named Pegno and Garaldo, "were shot for being mixed up in recent killings, or perhaps for ordinary 'squealing.'"

Thousands of wild geese, foolishly led by ganders that fly ahead of the wedge-shaped flocks, alighted on Niagara River, above the falls. Unable to rise from the swift current, and, unlike small, light ducks that habitually balance themselves and feed at the edge of the falls, the heavy geese could not deal with the rushing water. Many were swept to death, some were shot by permission of the Game Warden. Finally, the great flock rose and flew southward.

Warning to Uncle Sam. Remember that you are also a large and heavy goose, and do not let anybody persuade you to land in the European rapids, just above the next war.

Railway labor unions plan a Washington lobby, to promote Government purchase and operation of railroads. Owners of some railroads would gladly share the expense of that lobby if they could sell their railroads at a fair price.

Running a railroad in competition with automobiles, motor busses and trucks, is like running a legitimate hotel in competition with night clubs and other former speakeasies.

To let Europe, including London, know that his air power is not exhausted by his Ethiopian enterprise, Mussolini filled the air with thousands of his war planes, ready for work.

As the planes roared, Mussolini, appearing on a balcony, with 70,000 Italians cheering wildly, said just nine words:

"We initiate with the same courage the fourteenth year."

For the time Mussolini has adopted the late Theodore Roosevelt's motto, "not words, but deeds."

When the English wanted to convince Getawayo, King of the Zulus, that it was useless for him to fight England or try to retain his lands, they took him for a trip to London, showed him big battleships.

He looked around, thoughtful, went home and "died of discouragement." Visitors from other countries looking at Mussolini's air display must also have been thoughtful.

Italian commanders in Ethiopia send greetings to Mussolini on the beginning of his fourteenth year of leadership; all report freshly conquered Ethiopian territory. Men of the "October Twenty-eighth" Blackshirt Division erect a statue of Mussolini facing the enemy, needless to say, beyond Adigrat.

The young Duke of Bargamo, cousin of Italy's King, is in the fighting. Haile Selassie has not yet gone to the front, but promises to go soon and "shed my blood with yours."

That is not the custom of Europe, where practically all rulers in the big war stayed far from the trenches.

In Moscow, a man convicted of stealing bluing from the State Trust and selling it to speculators was sentenced to death, seven others went to concentration camps. In Ethiopia they would only cut off the hand of a thief for stealing bluing, if they had any bluing.

CHILD ACTORS IN NEW PLAY

Three Appear In "Dead End" by Sidney Kingsley.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Sidney Kingsley, who won the Pulitzer prize for drama with "Men in White" in 1933, returned to Broadway as author-director last night when his second play, "Dead End," was produced at Belasco Theater.

The play was distinguished by the performance of three child actors—Gabriel Dell, Billy Halop and Bobby Jordan—and a spectacular setting of a tenement street by Norman Bel Geddes, who is also the producer. The setting is of a street that finds a dead end in an East River pier. The play is a preachment on the harmful effects of street life on children.

The Future of Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IN MOST lists of master players New Yorkers predominate. Why is this? Are the New York players themselves overcome with a sense of their own importance, so that they are blind to the skill of players from other cities? Or is it the number of first rank players in New York City actually greater than it should be in proportion to the comparative populations?

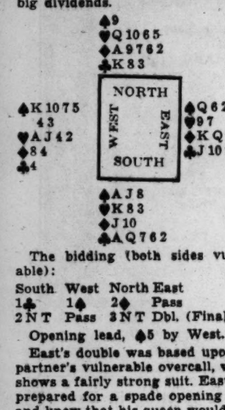

Ely Culbertson

In my opinion, the standard of play in New York City is immeasurably higher than elsewhere. Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland and other important centers in the East and on the Pacific coast have their allotment of expert players, but the important national tournaments have been dominated by New Yorkers. There is a sound reason why this is so. It arises from an inevitable "vicious circle."

Any one, to be a great player, must combine natural ability at logical analysis with the practice which comes from constant competition with superior players. When bridge first became popular there naturally were more good players in New York than elsewhere because there were more people in New York. Students of the game in New York had the opportunity to play with and against these good players because there were enough experts to go around. Naturally, talented young players had a better chance to increase their knowledge of the game. Even those who cannot play regularly at the clubs with ranking players have constant chances to oppose them in open duplicate games, and if they are alert their game cannot fail to improve. And the more good players are created by association with the present crop of experts, the greater will be the opportunities of all up-and-coming but inexperienced players.

Nevertheless, the Western cities are coming into their own. The names of their players are being seen more and more inscribed on championship trophies. The present Grand National plan for championship tournaments will make it possible for more and more people to attend the important tournaments, and the standard of play will improve throughout the country.

Far too little doubling for penalties takes place in the average bridge game. When a penalty double is unlikely to be redoubled, and when the gain of the opponents, if they make their contract, cannot be very large, the sketchiest sort of penalty double sometimes pays big dividends.

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1♣	1♠	2♦	Pass
2 N T	Pass	3 N T	Dbl. (Final bid)

Opening lead, ♠5 by West.

East's double was based upon his partner's vulnerable overcall, which shows a fairly strong suit. East was prepared for a spade opening lead, and knew that his queen would help to establish the suit quickly. East also knew that South could not make his nine tricks by running a long suit, for he had South's suit (clubs) and North's suit (diamonds) securely stopped. If either opponent had a long heart suit he probably would have bid it.

The double was most successful. South could have held the set to one trick had he guessed that West could be finessed for both heart honors, but instead he attacked the club suit. After winning the queen of spades with the ace on the first trick, South played two rounds of clubs. Finding out about the bad break, he tried a diamond finesse, which East won. West then took five spade tricks and the ace of hearts, and three no trump was defeated 800 points.

Today's Question.

Question: Your partner deals and bids one spade. The next player passes. What should you bid, holding ♠7 5 4 3, ♥Q 7 5 2, ♦8 7 6 5, ♣9?

Answer: You should bid two spades. Even if partner's hand is a minimum, this contract should be safe, for you can use the small trumps to ruff clubs and add tricks to the ones he can win. If partner's hand is very strong, you have kept the bidding open and given him a chance to bid four spades.

In This Second Group Of Recipes Cold Daube A la Creole Is Featured.

By Gladys T. Lang

ABOUT noon on Sundays friends drop in at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Von Schrenk in Florissant, where a warm welcome is always waiting. Mrs. Von Schrenk is former president of the Garden Club, whose interest in gardening is surpassed only by her interest in entertaining. In the spring and summer cooling mint julips are served with various hors d'ouvres on the broad veranda overlooking her beautiful garden. On very cold days one is greeted with steaming hot toddies or a hot buttered rum. In this convivial atmosphere guests linger on and later gather in the dining room where a bountiful spread is prepared. The following was served at one of these gatherings:

Cold Daube a la Creole
Scalloped Oysters Hot Rolls
Salad Bowl with Cheese Platter
Chocolate Torte

4 pounds of lean beef from the shoulder
1-3 pound of salt pork
5 onions, 5 carrots, 2 turnips
3 bay leaves
2 cloves of garlic
1 tablespoon of lard
3 sprigs each of thyme and parsley
Salt, pepper and cayenne.

Cut the salt pork into pieces three inches long and one-half inch thick. Season with black pepper and cayenne and roll in a mixture made of the finely chopped thyme, parsley, bay leaves, one minced clove of garlic and three well mashed cloves and six allspice. Make incissions at intervals in the meat and force in the coated strips of salt pork. Rub the whole with salt and pepper.

Cut three onions in quarters and place in a sauce pan with the lard. Brown slightly, then place them on top of the roast which has been placed in a Dutch oven. Cover closely and simmer very slowly until well browned. Add the carrots and turnips cut in inch squares and the remaining onions chopped fine. After simmering for 10 minutes, turn and simmer 10 minutes longer. Add enough stock or consomme to half cover and continue smothering slowly with lid on, turning often from two, to two and a half hours, or until tender.

While this is cooking, in another pot place a knuckle of veal and two pigs feet. Season well with salt, pepper and cayenne and cover with two quarts of cold water and slowly bring to a boil. Add one bay leaf, a sprig of thyme, one-half clove of garlic and one onion, minced very fine and two mashed cloves. Cook all very slowly until meat is tender and broth reduced to about a quart. Cool to remove all fat. Reheat and add more salt and pepper, a little vinegar and Worcestershire sauce and a few drops of tobasco. Place the daube on a platter and when the broth has begun to jell coat the meat with it. Set immediately in a cool place. The remaining jellied broth is cut in small pieces and used as a garnishing around daube. This should be prepared the day before serving.

Scalloped Oysters.

4 dozen oysters
3 tablespoons of butter
1 blade of mace
4 cloves
1 sprig of thyme
1 bay leaf
3 sprigs of parsley
½ cup of cream
½ cup of oyster liquor
Grated toasted bread crumbs.

Drain the oysters in a colander, then strain the liquor. Heat the liquor with the chopped herbs and let simmer for 10 minutes. Strain, reserving liquor. Butter a baking dish, in this place a layer of oysters, over oysters a layer of toasted bread crumbs about one-half inch thick. Dot with bits or butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add another layer of oysters and bread crumbs until the dish is full. Mix the cream with one-half cup of the seasoned oyster liquor and pour over all. Sprinkle top with bread crumbs and dot with butter. Place in a quick over and bake about 15 or 20 minutes.

Chocolate Torte.

One-half pound of powdered sugar.
One-half pound of sweet butter.
Eight eggs.
One-half pound of ground almonds.
Pinch of salt.

Cream the butter well, add egg yolks, one at a time, then the ground almonds and the chocolate, which has been melted with a very little water. Stir in the bread crumbs and lastly fold in the egg whites beaten stiff with a pinch of salt. Take three-fourths of this mixture and bake in three layers (not too large, preferably in loose bottom pans) from 10 to 15 minutes in a rather quick oven. Turn out, and when cool spread the remaining uncooked mixture between layers as a filling. Cover cake with the following icing:

One cake Maillards chocolate,
Ten tablespoons of cream.
Vanilla.
Pinch of salt.

Break the chocolate into a double boiler, add cream, sugar and butter and cook until thick, stirring occasionally. Add vanilla. When cool, spread on top and sides of cake. Ornament with blanched almonds.

Hot Buttered Rum.

Fill small tumblers half full of boiling water. To each glass add one-half teaspoon of sugar, then nearly fill with rum. On top float a lump of butter and allow to melt.

Mint Julep.

Some crush the mint first with a teaspoon of sugar, but Mrs. Von Schrenk prefers this first method.

Lovely Little Fool

--o-- By PHYLLIS MOORE GALLAGHER

A New Serial of Complicated Love Interest

CHAPTER TWO.

JOHN'S coat was tan camel's hair and the collar was turned up, snug around his bronzed throat. He was smiling, an awkward, shy smile, and as he took off his hat a lock of yellow hair fell over his forehead.

Betsy stood looking at him for a moment. Last night on the Kingston's yacht she hadn't really noticed John. Her stricken eyes had been too full of a petunia satin . . . shadows leaning together up at the bow of the boat. Now she saw that his eyes were very gray and friendly; and she had a strange, irrelevant feeling that he would never say cruel, harsh words. She liked his mouth.

Betsy Seymour, a beautiful young Government clerk, madly in love with Marshall Van Devanter, had been his guest at a yachting party on the beautiful Potomac. This was a gala affair for the rich and near-rich, the social elite and social climbers. Betsy suffers her first pangs of fear and jealousy because of Marshall's open attentions to Libby Stockton, spoiled daughter of an old and wealthy Washington family. She meets Raoul de Prudentio, attaché at the Embassy of a Latin-American country, who is immediately attracted by her beauty. She also meets John Storm, a Boston youth in the capital studying law, and who is to play an important part in her life from that moment. The next day Betsy is surprised when John appears at the door of her home. It develops that he has rented a room there, not knowing that it was her home.

"I'm John Storm," he said. "You don't remember me, do you?"

"Oh, indeed I do!" she said, quickly, color flooding her cheeks. "I'm just too . . . too surprised to speak!" And then, "You're not by any remote chance our new roomer, are you?" She was looking at the big suitcases on the top step.

"Third floor front," he said, grinning. "To quote a banal and threadbare precept, 'The world is certainly one small place!'"

He brought in the two suitcases . . . big walrus bags plastered with gay little foreign stickers . . . and lumbered up the steps with them. Betsy watched him until he disappeared around the stairhead. Then she stood as if transfixed, listening to his tread on the second flight. At last she took a soft breath and turned to her mother, who had come out into the hall from the dining room.

"Mother!"—softly, so John Storm couldn't hear. "I met him last night on the cruise! Isn't that funny? He told me my voice was like silver bells!"

As Betty bathed and dressed for Jennie Travers' dinner party, she could hear John moving about in his room above hers. She was going to like him up there, she thought. The movement of his feet on the bare floor was friendly . . . as friendly as his gray eyes and his awkward, rather shy, smile. John's arrival had made her forget some of her troubles, yet when she lifted the white taffeta dress from the closet and took it off the wire hanger she paled visibly.

She'd never like that dress again. It brought back too poignantly the thing that hurt her most . . . the bright swirl of a petunia satin . . . Marshall and Libby. She put the dress on because she had nothing else she could wear to a formal dinner; but she didn't pirouette before the mirror in it. She kept saying over and over, avoiding her reflection, "I shouldn't blame the dress! It is a nice dress!" And she tried hard to like it because mother's stitches were on the halter neck and mother's tired hands had carefully pressed the billowing skirt.

Later, when she heard Terry open the front door and Marshall's voice saying, "Hello, Terry! How're you, Mrs. Seymour?" she floated like a soft breeze down the creaking old stairs.

"Lovely, lovely!" Marshall said, as if he had never before seen the white taffeta. His voice seemed very big, yet soft and tender. Perhaps that was because she stood so close to him. Oh, everything was all right, after all! Marshall hadn't changed! The realization of this made relief and happiness sparkle in her eyes, dance on the highlights of her golden hair, dimple the corners of her mouth. Even Terry, scowling at the front door, obviously disliking Marshall and being rude enough to show it, didn't rob her of this recaptured ecstasy.

BETSY flung a wisp of a velvet jacket over her shoulder, blew her family a good-night kiss . . . lingering a little on father's kiss . . . and took Marshall's arm. They hurried down the three white steps and across the ancient brick walk to the car.

Libby Stockton, wrapped cozily in her white ermine evening cape, turned languidly on the front seat to greet them. Betsy didn't see her at first. She didn't actually believe that Libby was there; not until Marshall opened the rear door and helped her into the lonely back seat and Libby said, in her husky, cultivated drawl, "Hello, there, Betsy, darling." Then Marshall went around and slid under the steering wheel next to Libby . . . next to Libby! And in Betsy's heart, somehow cold and lost in a dark, deep place where tears seemed to be falling, a part of her youth died.

Jennie's house was ready for the patry; flowers filled the amber glass cornucopias, the Limoges vases, the crystal bowls, the old silver champagne buckets on the hearth. The gentle scrape of violin strings and the tinkle of steel-guitars edged the laughter of young voices. There was a pleasant bustle; colored waiters in the dining room, a butler serving cocktails and hors d'oeuvres in the drawing room . . . serving Raoul De Prudentio. Lee Travers—Jennie's red-headed brothers who looked for all the world like her!—sleek navy officers and Legation attaches. Girls in satins and lames and chiffons whose faces smiled daily from society pages and rotogravures sprinkled the mauve room like spring flowers.

As Betsy came through the door, following in Libby's wake, she saw all this panoply of color through a troubled blur. Jennie, swinging a little fish-tail train of gold lame behind her, greeted them. Her red hair flamed under the chandelier prisms, her gray eyes were cordial.

"Darling, save me from this woman! Don't stand off, flirting with Raoul. I tell you, Libby's a leech!"

"Cheerio! Cheerio!"

Betsy's white taffeta skirt rustled like autumn leaves in a light wind as she hurried up the stairs to Jennie's room. She did things to her hair, her nose, looked long at her wretched little face. Oh, how could Marshall have done this to her? Made her ride alone while he laughed and talked with Libby and looked not once toward the rear seat . . . not even in the rear-vision mirror. What was happening to them?

When she came back down the winding stairs, Raoul was waiting at the foot for her.

"I thought you'd never come, Betsy," he said and kissed her finger tips. "I've worn out the toe of my shoe tapping it with impatience."

Betsy saw the other girls watching her now. Saw them raise their brows discreetly and exchange wry glances. . . . unpleasant glances. Raoul was a man of the world, as handsome as a god. He belonged to their set and yet he had left them all to talk with a girl who didn't belong, a girl who was being thrust upon them by Marshall Van Devanter. Oh, she could see what they thought! But it didn't matter! Nothing mattered, for there was Marshall leaning against the old rosewood secretary in the drawing room, clicking fragile cocktail glasses with Libby, toasting her with his eyes, if not his lips. And there was Libby in ice blue satin trimmed with mink, looking up at him from beneath her long dark lashes.

Jennie came over to Betsy and slipped an affectionate arm around her slim wrist. "I'm so glad you could come, Betsy," she said, her eyes gentle. "You met every one on the yacht last night, didn't you?"

• • •

BETSY did feel it. She had felt it last night on the cruise when Jennie had smiled at her. . . . her head a bright friendly flash in that cold, indifferent gathering.

Betsy was to learn later that Jennie Travers was famous for her brusqueri. Now, when she turned to Raoul and said sharply, "I thought you Spanish cavaliers reserved your hand-kissing for married ladies, Raoul? How is it I find you kissing Betsy's hand?" and Raoul answered evenly, "Sometimes it is a tribute to beauty, Jennie," Betsy found herself uneasy and embarrassed.

"Well, if I were you," said Jennie, looking straight into his eyes, "I would control myself. You might put Betsy in the wrong light."

Raoul's face darkened, but he said, lightly, "Please, Jennie! Spare me. I've been told the tip of your tongue is as sharp as a dagger point. Tonight is the first time I have been pricked by it!"

"Pricked?" repeated Jennie. "I am slipping!"

Dinner was announced, and they all filed into the long dining room, where the soft flames of the candelabra pulsed over the white damask, the glittering silver and crystal goblets, the gardenias clustered on flat mirrors.

Betsy waited one breathless second for Marshall to come to her, but there was Libby on his arm again, and there was Raoul bowing before her and tucking her fingers through his arm. How could Marshall treat her this way? How could she walk into that dining room, conversing with an air of sprightliness, just as if her breathing wasn't as difficult as inhaling threads of wool. Oh, it was hard enough to be in this strange house in the midst of all these frigidly courteous girls without Marshall treating her cruelly!

Marshall's placecard was next to Betsy's. He was standing there smiling when she came around to her chair. He bent over to her, whispered softly, his eyes whimsically tender.

"Darling, save me from this woman! Don't stand off flirting with Raoul! I tell you Libby's a leech!"

He drew out her chair and his fingers swept lightly across her bare shoulders. The brief contact made Betsy's heart beat intolerably. Just that touch, just his voice which seemed to pour over her, vibrating through her very bones, had changed everything. Sweetness flowed back into her and her eyes became washed with a misty hope.

"And how does a girl go about saving a young man from a leech?" she asked tremulously. "Shall I offer to split a can of leech exterminator with her? — or maybe you'd resent that!"

He was sitting next to her now, his brown-lashed eyes looking into hers, his lips smiling over white teeth.

"Say-y, don't tell me you've been thinking that Libby and I * * *"

She had been a fool, of course. A blind, stupid, silly little fool. Couldn't Marshall look at another girl without her thinking wild, crazy things? Was she going to be like this all her life, suspicious, afraid, making Marshall unhappy, making herself miserable?

They talked a lot, and in between the courses Marshall found her hand and held it in his. The party that had given every promise of being unbearable now became the most glorious function she had ever attended. They talked of the office, of Terry's National Guard meetings, of all the little events that were precious because they shared them with each other; and every once in a white Marshall said one of those things that made her dizzy with happiness, unable to answer him.

Through this beautiful, enchanted haze Betsy saw Raoul, dark and silent, ignoring his dinner partners, dreaming over the gardenias at her, and at the head of the table Jennie, turning slightly in her chair, nodding to some one in the drawing room.

Notes on Wearing Of Boutonnieres

Boutonnieres took a sudden spurt in popularity last year with the introduction of the artificial carnation which is made of feathers, proving that many men did not previously take up the fashion only because of the factors of inconvenience and expense. At the risk of incurring the undying enmity of florists the country over, it may be mentioned that it was our fashion scouts who first spied the artificial carnations in the lapels of members of the Royal Family in England, sent the news post-haste to America and were thereby responsible for the overnight success of the fashion in this country. Naturally, however, there are a number of discriminating men who have always worn genuine flowers for boutonnieres and always will. The dark red carnation and the blue cornflower boutonniere share honors for evening wear, while the yellow carnation is worn with town clothes. A few well-dressed sportsmen wear a boutonniere of purple violets at sports events.

Handy and Practical

One woman cuts the waxed paper from bread into squares and tacks them on the inside of her pantry door. She claims it is a saver of time when she wants to lard or butter a pan.

Prevents Sticking

To prevent poached eggs from sticking to the pan, place a large spoon in the boiling water and slide the egg into the spoon. Cook in this manner for an instant and then slide the egg from the spoon into the pan.

A Dusty Plant

Don't keep a plant around with dusty leaves. It looks just as bad as a dusty chair and is very unhealthy for the plant. Wash the leaves carefully with clear water and remove all dust so that the plant can breathe properly.

Sparkling Decanters

The decanter is back on the job again and must be kept shining and bright to be attractive. Use a little vinegar and a handful of salt and place the solution in the decanter. Shake well and rinse with clear water afterwards.

Wedding Gift Always Sent To the Bride

Rule Holds Even Though Guest Is Known Only to Groom.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post:

MY EMPLOYER is to be married soon. I should like very much to send a personal gift, since I am this man's secretary, and the only one in the office invited to the reception. But if I may send something, will the bride know who the present is from, since I have never met her? And under the circumstances would you consider it better to send the present to him?

Emily Post

Answer: It is true that the bride's family sent you an invitation because your name was on the groom's list, but even so, it is correct that your wedding present be sent to the bride. If she does not recognize your name, the groom will tell her. On the other hand, if you very much prefer to send a present to him, this is an exceptional occasion when it would not be improper to do so.

Dear Mrs. Post: I have been secretary to a man for several years and he is now about to take a trip with his wife around the world. What may I do as a proper bon voyage expression?

Answer: If you know of any small useful thing that he needs—you probably don't, or you would not be writing to me—this would be ideal. Otherwise you might send him a book or two. You ought to know his tastes well enough to select what would be likely to interest him. Or send him whatever he smokes, or else films for his camera on the chance that he may run short of one or the other.

Dear Mrs. Post: I promised the doctor for whom I am nurse-secretary to learn what you would suggest for announcing his removal to a different address. He would like to let everyone know who has ever been a patient, and we will therefore have to order modestly.

Answer: The simplest announcement would be the sending out of his regular professional cards, engraved with the new address and telephone number. They would be mailed on the day before he moves.

Dear Mrs. Post: Recently I bought a new law dictionary for my best beau, which I am going to save for his birthday present. I'd like to write something rather devoted in the front of the book, but what?

Answer: I don't think anything could be more unsuitable than to write devotedly in a law dictionary, which your friend will undoubtedly use in his office. Moreover, I'm sure he would wish that you hadn't. But you might write as devotedly as you please (i. e., think wise) in a note to accompany the book.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

MY boy friend is very polite in every way, but when we are walking along the street he does not bother if he is on the inside or the outside. Also when we get off the street car, he lets me get off first, instead of helping me off.

Could you please tell me how I should hint to him about this, because it makes me feel terrible at times. PERPLEXED.

I am sorry I couldn't answer you on the exact date you suggest. We are obliged to consider precedence and space in using the letters.

I do not think the boys are quite so punctillious about observing the etiquette of walking with the girls as they once were. It is right for them to walk on the outside of the sidewalk, the reason for this custom established was, that it meant the protection of the girl in case of accidents from the street. It still is right to take this place; at the same time, if you are crossing many streets, the constant changing over would seem a little overdone. But, without any question, the boy should precede you in getting off the car, then turn and put his hand under your elbow to help you off the car. What with high heels, tight skirts, catching hems, loose scarfs and other difficulties of woman's dress, she is likely to trip any time, unless she hangs on to the car or a young man; and so his help is merely a matter of precaution, even if it is not observed as one of the niceties of good manners.

Pause a minute before getting off and say, without making much point of it, "You first." Then hold out your arm for a little lift. You could, of course, comment upon some boy who does all these things well and he may take the hint.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

MY DAD always wished to live to see his golden wedding anniversary but he passed away two years ago last May. This December 23 would have been the day. Now shall we give our mother candy or any presents on that day, or what to do? We would not think of a dinner—and he not there with us. What would you advise?

TWO SISTERS.

I believe it would not be very difficult to find out just how your mother might feel about anniversary gifts of any kind. The occasion might be a sad one and the reminders painful to her, although she might have the keenest appreciation of your thought. Very diplomatically you might find out just her viewpoint. If she is sensitive, you could show her these attentions at some other time, and simply try, without speaking of the anniversary, to divert her mind, by taking her out somewhere.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

THE other day I noticed that you asked for a recipe for tomato paste. The following is one I obtained from an old lady who was reared in Italy. Perhaps this is the one your correspondent desired:

Select ripe tomatoes, season with salt and Becillica leaves or seed (these seeds obtainable at Italian grocery supply companies). Use about two tablespoons of seed to a peck of tomatoes. Cook until thoroughly softened. Run through collander, first removing surplus juice. Spread pulp on boards, drying in the sun, stirring frequently. When dry, make in balls, store in a jar and keep moist with olive oil. It is only necessary to moisten the outside of balls. MRS. W. O.

Thank you very much for this recipe, in answer to my request, as I know it will interest a good many.

I received a letter from Grandmother, thanking me for the baby clothes I sent and also saw her letter in your column. I hope some day to again return to you the great good you have done for me, I shall let you know again when I have things for some of your people. Most sincerely yours, M. B. J.

Thank you for this very kind letter and for the help you have given me, too.

Selfishness May Be Used To Help Child

They Should Be Taught That They Do Things For Themselves.

By Angelo Patri

IT is a mistake to tell a child that he is delicate and that, for your sake he must not eat things that do not agree with him. "No, no, Sonny, I wouldn't eat that dish of berries. You know how berries cause a rash on you. Don't eat them. For my sake don't. I'd feel so bad if you were to make yourself sick."

Angelo Patri

"They won't hurt me, will they, Ma?"

"O, yes, dear, I'm sure they will. You have a delicate stomach and the least thing upsets it. Mother has to be so careful for you."

That sort of thing makes a child lean hard on his mother, but it is not good for the child. It makes him dependent, whining, balky. By and by he turns on his mother and says: "Just to show you, I'm going to eat more berries, and more, too."

One day I actually heard a little boy say to his mother: "All right, if you won't let me go out I won't eat my dinner for you. See if I care. I don't care if you do cry. Serves you right. I won't eat a thing for you."

That won't do at all. Eating, dressing and taking medicine are impersonal things, matters of routine. Don't make an issue of them. If you do you and your child are headed for trouble.

Personal issues are always bad. The older the child is the more dangerous the personalities. The adolescent boy or girl resents intrusion, and if they don't they should. Mother has no right to say, "You surely will do this for my sake. I am your mother. Remember that. You cannot refuse me this request."

It is unfair to put the matter on a personal basis. There are things a child must do for himself, regardless of anybody else in the world; that is, if he is to preserve his personal integrity. It is unfair to have mother inject her feelings into the situation. This is particularly true when the young person must make an important decision such as choosing a life work or a life companion. Nothing ever comes of saying, "Do this for my sake," except distress and failure.

Children must be taught from the cradle upwards that whatever they do of good or ill, is done to themselves, for themselves, by themselves. We can advise and help, but we cannot live for them. When we try we only spill the milk that we offer them.

Children are human through and through, and it is human to be contrary. Remember this when you find yourself slipping and beginning to plead and coax. If you do, your influence will be much stronger and more enduring. As soon as a child learns that you are not going to battle with him for his own good, as soon as he discovers that you will give him you full attention and generous praise only when he has done a good job, just as soon will he rely upon his own strength and try hard to win your approbation.

So teach the child that what he does he does for his own good. There is an ounce of selfishness in the best of us and it is wiser to use it to the child's advantage. "Do it for my sake," makes a weakling. "Do it for your own sake," makes a strong personality.

WHEN BUSINESS GIRLS GO FEMININE

It Takes a New Set of Rules to Catch a Husband

By Virginia Irwin

NOWADAYS when an unmarried woman reaches a certain age, she's a bachelor-girl if she has been able to fool enough people into thinking that she doesn't really want to get married. Otherwise, she's just a plain old maid, an object of pity and the subject of conversations that usually start out with "Now, just take so-and-so. My dear, isn't it a pity? And she would have made some man such a good wife." But, for the bachelor girl these same people have only admiration and a bit of reverence. She's a self-made woman, and they accord her the same respect that they dish out to their American idols, self-made men. Nobody ever stops to suspect that, for all her success and standing in the community, she may be just as deserving of a little pity as the old maid. And nobody would believe you if you hazarded a guess that Miss Whoozit, president of Whoozit, Inc., would be interested in Mae West's "10 rules for Man-Hunting."

Not that there aren't a lot of bachelor girls who really aren't, and couldn't be, interested in marriage, who really prefer a career to love in a cottage, with the traditional roses vining over the door, but there are also a goodly few who, after say 10 years of climbing the success ladder, have begun to suspect that perhaps, after all, they've missed the boat, bet on the wrong horse.

They've begun to wish, in all modesty, that they weren't so smart. They've begun to suspect that Mae West knows what she's talking about when she says "If you've gotta mind, don't let him get wise to it. Hide it under a swell permanent or a henna rinse." And privately they envy their less intellectual sisters who have been busy enthroning themselves in a home with a husband and babies, while they have been busy earning the right to a mahogany desk, a swivel chair and the once-glamorous, but now empty title, of "big business woman." In short they'd like to trade off a career of tending to business for a life sentence at the hard labor of minding babies and a home.

FOR the bachelor-girl who wants to trade off her single blessedness for a wedding band, there are rules, many of them, supposed to bring at least a dozen men floundering at her feet in less time than it will take her to say "I do." To earn the right to clean up a sink full of dirty dishes, the first rule seems to be to remember that all the old rules were meant to be broken. An anonymous writer in a reputable magazine advises the gal in search of a mate to first discard all of mother's well-meant, but outmoded, advice. There is a rumor afoot that times have changed since mother retired behind her crinolines and touch-me-not attitude at the sight of a strange man. The idea now seems to be that, if you think you might be interested in the guy at hand, talk to him if you have anything that even faintly resembles an excuse for talking—i.e., a mutual interest in music, bowling, etching or engineering. But don't be too erudite. Remember George Jean Nathan's observation that it's actually flattering to have a man yawn in your face because "a man reserves his greatest and deepest love, not for the woman in whose company he finds himself electrified and enkindled, but for that one in whose company he may feel tenderly drowsy." In other words, try to make the poor fellow feel comfortable instead of on edge for fear he will make himself ridiculous before your superior mentality. And if he tries a few jokes—bum but perfectly proper—laugh, even if you think they are slightly stupid.

Another thing. While you're on this man hunt, make up your mind that if he suggests on the spur of the moment that it would be nice to have dinner tomorrow night in that quaint little tea room he knows out in the county, that you haven't a thing in the world to do, and you think it would be just too nice, too. After years of the more serious stuff, you may have an engagement for a banquet being given by some organization for some visiting stuffed shirt, but attending banquets for important people won't conjure up visions of a fireside, slippers and pipe for your boy friend.

And make up your mind to lone wolf it for a while. You can resume your beautiful friendships with your unmarried girl friends after you get your man, but no man in love likes to be burdened with his girl friend's girl friends while he is dreaming of a home and a little woman.

Next, if you're hanging onto any of those swell, but slightly austere, clothes that made you a well-dressed business girl, throw them away and get yourself something with a few ruffles and bows and whatnots. If you like plain clothes, console yourself; if you're successful in hanging a scalp on your belt, you'll get plenty of chance to wear the plainest of plain when you have finally won the battle that entitles you to bend over a scrub pail and a washtub. Go in for the ultra-feminine things, like scarlet fingernails. You may not like them, but men usually do. Anyway, you won't have to be bothered long; a week with your hands in hot dishwater three times a day and you'll be lucky to keep any kind of polish on your nails.

For the girl who can afford it, travel is an excellent thing. She loses a lot of self-consciousness when she puts on her new act before strangers.

Amelia Earhart advises "experiment." "Find out about people," she says, "and then adapt yourself to them, please them, anger them, study them." The idea is to get them interested: the method doesn't matter.

If you're away from home, you can get away with pretending to be something of a mystery. That always helps. Have a past, present or future—whichever appeals to you most—and dramatize yourself. Have the men guessing as to whether you're a widow or a writer, an international spy or a suffragette. Whenever you do that, you'll have men making efforts to meet you. If your act is good enough, you'll draw men like an excavation job does a crowd on a spring afternoon. And take another tip from Mae West: "Don't be afraid to know more than one guy at a time." You don't have to marry the first one you meet. In fact, you probably won't. And in the meantime you'll be getting in a lot of valuable practice that will help when the right man comes along. And also you'll be getting something of an education on how to combat a blond menace in case one ever threatens your marital happiness.

And last, but not least, don't make yourself his slave. Keep him guessing and don't get chicken-hearted and think it's a sin to make the poor fellow think he's getting something sweet all done up in ruffles when you know deep down in your heart that what he's getting is someone who will run his home like you ran your office. In fact, almost anything you can think up to win your point or your man is legal in the man-hunting game; it's something of an all's-fair-and-no-holds-barred affair. Scrap your conscience for the time being and don't let it worry you because you know it's all something of a masquerade. If you turn out to be someone else besides the gal he courted, don't let his cracks on the subject give you a headache. Just wait long enough and you'll probably discover that you didn't get the bargain you thought you had after all, either. But you won't be able to tell until afterwards. But that makes you even, because neither will he.

The Perfect Opportunity For Working

By Elsie Robinson

YOU'VE something to do?
Something you've needed to do for a long time?
Then do it!
Stop waiting for the perfect opportunity—
DO IT NOW.
Yes, I know you don't feel like doing it—yet
Some day, perhaps, when everything's Okay—
Some day when you are feeling fulla fizz—
Why then, you'll leap right at it!
Then you'll show 'em what you can do when you have the right chance.

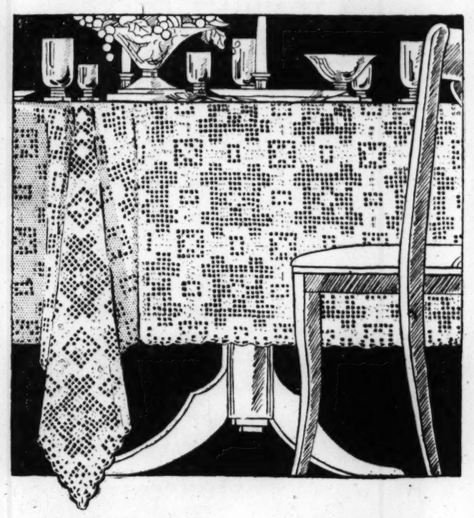

Elsie Robinson

Baloney! That line o' talk isn't a reason;
That's just a stall—a coward's alibi for ducking—
A loafer's camouflage for dodging—
A quitter's excuse for fading out.
And it doesn't fool anyone—except yourself.
If there's something that you oughtta do, there's just one time to do it.
And that's NOW! Do it NOW!
Stop waiting until things are sitting pretty—
Stop stalling until you're feeling just right.
You know and I know that that time will never come.
The "just right" time never arrives,
Things are never perfectly convenient, perfectly practical.
There are no Perfect Chances.
Only children think that everything will be "Just Right" some day.
Grown-up people with grown-up minds know that things are never just right—
Grown-up people don't wait for chances—
They MAKE them.
Any chance is the RIGHT chance to the person
Who really wants to get started.
And any reason is a PERFECT reason to the person who doesn't!
So if you've something to do—
Here's your opportunity!
"Things aren't just right?"
Of course they aren't and they never will be—
But what of it?
This is Life—and Life is never ONE HUNDRED PER CENT.
So stop your grouching, quit your stalling, get yourself going—

Animals Present Their Surprise on Willy's Birthday

By Mary Graham Bonner

DOWN from the cave trooped the Puddle Muddlers, shouting:

"Many happy returns of the day! Many happy returns of the day!"

The ducks led the parade quack-quacking as they waddled. Then came Christopher Columbus Crow, and Top Notch, the rooster was next. After this ran Rip with Sweet Face following, and then came Jelly and Honey Bear walking on their hind legs, and looking so splendid and strong, Jupiter and Blacky Bear ended the procession.

As they came up to Willy Nilly, Mrs. Quacko Duck had a wreath she had made of all the most beautiful leaves she had found and she put it on Willy Nilly's head quacking:

Then they gave their presents. Rip and Sweet Face ran back to their hiding place and brought the kindling wood they had gathered. The bears had a great bag filled with nuts.

The ducks had brought an enormous bundle of old leaves to put around the house to keep out the cold draughts and Christopher had made a pen holder out of one of his feathers. Willy Nilly could hardly speak for joy.

Custard Pear Pie

Line a deep cake tin with rich pi. crust. Cover the bottom with stewed pears. Pour over the pears a custard made of one cup milk, one cup pear juice, the yolks of three eggs, four tablespoons sugar and a pinch of salt. Bake in the oven until the custard is firm and the crust well baked. Make a meringue of the four egg whites and spread on top. Return to oven to brown lightly.

Sirloin Steak and Oysters

The next time you are broiling a sirloin steak in the oven, place your steak on the broiler and in the bottom of the broiling pan under the steak place a pint of oysters. The juice from the steak will run down over the oysters and give them a delicious flavor. Serve steak on a large platter with the oysters and gravy at the well-end of the platter, seasoned with salt and pepper.

The Best GRAY HAIR REMEDY IS MADE AT HOME

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy, by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be handicapped by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

A DOCTOR TALKS OF HEALTH

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

PEOPLE talk a great deal of being acid. And like to alkanize themselves to counteract this.

Whether there actually is much acidosis is open to question. Certainly every case of disturbance of the acid-alkaline balance of the body must be rapidly corrected or very serious consequences ensue.

Dr. Clendening

We have very delicate chemical methods of determining the exact reaction of the blood and tissues of the body. We can tell to a nicety whether they are even ever so slightly acid or not. Of course, acids are harmful, but so are their opposites—the chemical substances which react in an alkaline fashion. An extreme example is caustic soda which will destroy animal tissues. So what we want to strive for is neither acidity nor alkalinity, but a condition of neutrality.

And this is exactly what the body strives for desperately all its life—and manages to maintain to a nicety by a most ingenious set of chemical reactions, carried on by the buffer substances of the blood.

An example of acidity in the body frequently seen is the exhaustion that follows extreme muscular effort. We saw when we were examining the chemistry of muscular exercise a day or so ago, that one of the first chemicals to be formed in the body as a result of muscular contraction is lactic acid. It is formed in considerable quantities, and unless plenty of oxygen gets to the muscles to correct it, it brings about cessation of contraction, and fatigue through its accumulation in the tissues. With our comparatively inadequate method of supplying oxygen to the muscles—as described in the article this week on muscle functioning—this condition comes to every man as a result of more or less violent exertion. When it does arrive, as in the case of the distance runner after a race, he is in a condition of acidosis, and as can be seen from his violent breathing, it is a quite uncomfortable state to be in. Unless enough oxygen is pumped to the muscles to reduce the lactic acid, indeed death will result.

In disease conditions, acidosis is frequently seen, but is usually so serious as to constitute an emergency. Thus, in diabetes, the patients may become sluggish and go into coma, unless they are getting enough insulin. This coma is the result of the accumulation of the ketone bodies which come from the fatty acids, incompletely reduced in the diabetic state.

Under most conditions, however, the body is fully able to compensate for any disturbance in its acid-base balance.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS.

G. M. W.: "I have heard that eating yeast will cause cancer. Is there any truth in this statement?"

Answer: We do not know the cause of cancer, but certainly yeast has never been considered to be a cause. Considering the amount of bread that is eaten, and also the amount of raw yeast, cancer would be practically universal if this were true.

THERE'S MURDER IN THE AIR

A Serial Romance

By ROY CHANSLOR

Tyler Recounts the Complete Story of Ruth's Part in the Gordon Mystery and His Further Plan.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO.

SLOWLY, quietly, he told the story of the development of Ruth's strange power. Of her first vague, unformed premonitions of disaster. Of her eventual certainty, that night, of the murder of Martha Erik. Of the astonishing night when Zangara, the assassin, was about to strike at Franklin D. Roosevelt. He came to the first realization by Ruth that Paul Gordon's life was in danger. In detail he recited what had followed. How Ruth had known that the assassin was about to shoot Gordon, how his life had been saved by her warning. How later, she had known of the invasion of the grounds of the estate by Espi, the hired killer.

He described the scene in the cottage on the night that Ruth had foreseen peril for Helene, told how he and Nat had run to her aid, how they had been puzzled by the circumstance of the turned-off burglar alarms, how they had even suspected that some member of the family, or Johnson, had shot Nat to escape detection.

"I've already apologized for those suspicions," Tyler said with a smile. "I apologize again. But what was I to think? Until I realized that Collins was Gaudio's creature, it seemed incredible, yet true, that it was a member of this very household."

He went on briskly, as if hurrying to get through, to tell the rest of the story. He talked with the top of his mind, his sharp eyes ever observant for the slightest sign of betrayal on the part of the guilty person, a sign that did not come. When he had finished he gave a little sigh.

"That's all," he said. "Except for one thing: Always there has been a limitation of Ruth's power, that supernormal cognition which has enabled her to sense, somehow, the malignant purpose of the human mind."

He paused and then said, significantly: "She has never been able to identify the person to whom that mind belonged! Thus we have worked in the dark. She knew what was in Gaudio's mind, but she did not know who the man was. The same was true of Collins."

He paused again, impressively.

"The next step," he said quietly, "the step we are working toward is the development of her power to the point where she can not only sense this malignant purpose but also identify the person who holds it. That step, I think, is very near at hand."

He paused once more, dramatically, and swept the circle of faces with his probing eyes. He masked the exultance which flooded through him. Ah, that had struck home! He had planted the seed, the seed which he hoped would sprout luxuriantly, the seed of fear, of desperation.

"I am a little afraid of this step," he went on, gravely. "Frightened—for Ruth. It's something which I cannot hope to understand, you see. A while ago, as I talked with her, I could see it coming. I stopped her, because I was afraid. I—well, I persuaded her to take a sleeping powder. Because I want some one present when she makes the great experiment, some one who understands such phenomena—Dr. Karasc."

"Dr. Karasc—he is coming?" Nat tried.

"I telephoned him, told him," said Tyler. "He feels that he can safely leave his patient in Baltimore for a day. He is coming—in the morning. Then we will put Ruth to the test. She knows nothing about Collins. We will ask her to name Gaudio's accomplice. And if I'm right she will name—Collins."

A murmur ran through the room. Tyler kept his eyes on Nat. He was so strained and white. Obviously, he had divined his purpose, realized that a trap had been set—with Ruth at the bait. And he was pitifully afraid of what that trap would bag.

• • •

"WE'LL be back by nine in the morning," Tyler said. "I'm sure Ruth will sleep until then. I gave her a stiff dose. Poor child, she's been under a terrific strain. She needs the rest."

"But won't you be worried about her, leaving her all alone?" Johnson demanded. Tyler shook his head.

"Worried?" he asked. "What's there to be worried about now?"

As they came out onto the porch, two cars, containing Nelson, Harrigan, Cooke and the other guards came around the side of the house. The men shouted good-bys, and those on the porch waved to them as the cars went down the driveway and then headed toward the city.

Nat got out Tyler's car. He picked him up at the porch. They called good-nights. Then they were rolling down the long driveway. Tyler spoke rapidly to Nat. Near the gate a figure appeared, swung onto the running-board. Without stopping, Nat slipped from under the steering-wheel. The figure was that of Cooke, who took the wheel as Nat and Tyler silently dropped off the running-board.

The car turned in the direction taken by the others. Two men loomed up out of the darkness silently—Nelson and Harrigan. No word was spoken. Noiselessly the four stepped off the gravel driveway, began to make their way back toward the dark cottage. Lights began to appear in the upstairs rooms of the big house.

Reaching the cottage, the four men stepped into the dark living-room. No lights were turned on. Tyler whispered to Nelson: "You and Harrigan wait here." Then he went toward the stairs, Nat following. They mounted the steps, stood in front of Ruth's door.

"Father!" she said hoarsely.

"Yes?" he said.

She groped with her other hand until she found Nat's. Then she sighed, gratefully. "I—I played," she said in a low vibrant voice. "And then it came: Murderous determination to strike—tonight. . . . To strike, Father—at me!"

Paul Gordon was deep in dreamless sleep when the telephone tinkled. He stirred, then sat up quickly. The phone—it was the house phone—tinkled lightly again. Gordon reached for it.

"Mr. Gordon," said Tyler's voice. "Don't speak. Come at once to the cottage. Use your private stairs, and make no sound. Cross the garden in the shadows. And hurry."

Gordon heard the phone click with finality. He hung up, filled with bewilderment and alarm. Furtively he let himself into the hallway, tip-toed down the steps, closed the door behind him noiselessly.

He crept toward the cottage, careful to keep in the shadows. He saw the door to the cottage open slightly, and stepped forward. Inside he heard Tyler's low voice, reassuring.

He could dimly make out several dark figures. He heard Tyler give a low-voiced order: "Nelson, you and Harrigan cover the outside. Let anybody come in—but nobody go out. If there's any mix-up—you know what to do."

They led him up the stairs. As they entered Ruth's room, Tyler spoke to her softly, and she answered. Tyler took Gordon's arm and guided him to the shadows in the far corner of the room. "Stand by," he whispered. "And don't make a sound, no matter what happens, until I give the word!"

• • •

TYLER went swiftly to the side of Ruth's bed nearest the window. He dropped to one knee. His left hand held one of Ruth's, his right a heavy automatic.

Now that the moment was near, Ruth was unafraid. From her mind she excluded every thought. Presently, almost without her realizing it, there was that sensation of light in her mind, as if that shutter had rolled back. Then she knew that the Unknown had made up its mind. Fear Ruth felt in that mind, a desperate fear, but a fear held firmly in leash by grim determination.

Very softly she whispered to her father: "Now—it is coming."

She knew that a figure was letting itself out of the house, knew that it was feeling its way through the dark shadows, eyes on the cottage. She made one conscious effort to identify that figure—and felt her consciousness of it begin to recede. With an effort she cleared her mind of speculation. . . .

With the Unknown, Ruth slipped from the shadows, stood in front of the door, listening. Then the figure was at the door, was opening it very slowly, without sound.

Then the door to the bedroom opened, inch by inch. Then a shape was moving, almost noiselessly, toward the bed. Ruth, game to the end, was simulating the natural rhythmic breathing of sleep.

The dark form drew nearer. Tyler moved the muzzle of the automatic until it was on a line with the figure's breast. Then, very quietly, he said:

"Stand where you are, Mrs. Gordon!"

She gave one choked little cry then. The blade gleamed as she turned it toward her breast. Nat, dropping his gun, sprang toward her. But the knife had been driven up to the hilt. She swayed into his arms, went limp.

• • •

ON her own bed in the big house, Nelson and Harrigan laid the body of Carlotta Gaudio. At a sign from Johnson they stepped quietly from the room.

Downstairs, in the living-room, Paul Gordon sat slumped on the divan, his masklike face gray, only his deep-sunk eyes betraying his suffering. On either side of him, holding his nerveless hands, were Helene and Doris. In a chair at one side, unable to bear the sight of those tragic eyes, was David.

Nearby sat Ruth, her delicate face filled with sympathy. On the arm of her chair was Nat, his hand resting lightly on her arm but his eyes upon Doris. His back to the room, looking moodily out of the window, was Tyler. No word was spoken until the three men had returned from upstairs.

Tyler turned then, quietly motioned them to chairs. He looked at Gordon. "There are things to be done," he said gently. "Before I do them, I want you all to know the facts. We'll have the truth, at last. . . . And then it will die—here, with us.

"I'll tell the story as matter-of-factly as I can. First, when and how I learned the identity of Gaudio's inside ally.

"Ruth told me," said Tyler, "although she didn't know it herself. This is how she did it: You'll remember that she had unerringly foreseen every attempt made upon the members of this family. To my satisfaction, at least, she had proved she could detect the malignant purpose in that mind which was plotting death and destruction.

"Yet when Mrs. Gordon disappeared, ostensibly kidnaped by Gaudio, Ruth knew nothing whatever about it until I myself told her! And just a little later she knew that danger again threatened Helene—knew it at the very moment that Gaudio's men were forcing their way into the sanitarium.

"Therefore I was convinced that Mrs. Gordon's disappearance was not part of Gaudio's vengeful plan. I was certain that she had disappeared of her own free will! As far as I was concerned, that branded her definitely as being in league with Gaudio. But I had no proof whatsoever, and not the shadow of a motive.

"Furthermore, I could not be sure that some one else was not aiding her, some one else who had access to the house and to its secrets. Then I learned that Doris had obtained from Collins the whereabouts of Helene, obtained this information only a short time before Helene was kidnaped.

"But Doris had previously tried to throw suspicion on Mrs. Gordon! And Mrs. Gordon, very subtly, while seeming to protect Doris, had planted a seed of suspicion against her in my mind—by a falsehood, by telling me that Helene, in her delirium, had been deathly afraid — of Doris.

I was sure that for some reason, undoubtedly connected with Gaudio, Mrs. Gordon had twice tried to kill her husband—then Helene—had shot Nat to avoid exposure — and finally had betrayed Helene into Gaudio's hands.

"Here I made an error, which I based on the circumstances. I assumed that the attack on Helene and the subsequent betrayal of her to Gaudio were made because Mrs. Gordon was afraid that something Helene knew was incriminating to her.

"That's why I was so bitterly disappointed when it developed that Helene knew absolutely nothing incriminating about anybody! I realized, then, that it was hopeless to prove her guilt without setting a deliberate trap. But I knew, too, that even if we caught her red-handed, we should probably never know what had inspired her — and never know for sure whether or not Doris, or anyone else had aided her. That's what I had to find out. By the use of a bit of guile—I did so."

The Search For Good in Old Faiths

By the Rev. J. F. Newton

"DEPENDING upon when one was born, one will accept or remain apathetic to the moral values lying at the core of the book."

Thus a critic wrote in review of the new story by Ellen Glasgow; and a stately story it is, tracing a "Vein of Iron" in the blood of a family in Old Virginia, making them strong in the face of disaster.

What puzzles the critic, apparently, is that Ellen Glasgow still believes in "romantic love, the family, gentility, and the pioneer virtues of endurance and self-reliance, which are at least questionable."

To the critic such a creed is quaintly old-fashioned, and out of date, along with the stern faith in God which inspired it. To him it is only an odd survival of a moral fanaticism long gone by.

"If the basic morality of the book puzzles you, as it does me," he adds, there remain many fine pictures, like the old father whose face "seemed cut out of light," and many pages of careful and tranquil prose.

But, alas, can placid prose make up for the loss of a faith which out of darkness carved faces of light, and gave men reverence for yesterday, strength for the vicissitudes of today, and hope for tomorrow?

Is it a matter of when one was born, whether these high qualities are valid or not? After all, has life really changed so much, or do we in our vanity only think so? What have dates to do with it?

If love, the home, gentility, heroic endurance and sturdy self-reliance are questionable, is anything unquestionable? What have we left upon which to build a life of decency or a character or honor?

What has the critic to put in place of virtues whose flower and fruit were so fine? Just moral cynicism, clever nihilism—the acid which is eating the heart out of the best life of our generation?

No, some of us do not agree that the search for the good, on "graven stone and written scroll, and all old flower-fields of the soul," is vain.

To us the high, firm faith of our fathers is still true, and we find all that the sages said in the Book our mothers read.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

» by WYNN «

For Wednesday, Oct. 30.

YOU can make this day nothing but a scramble of haywire, or you can pick the right thread by careful observation and come through O. K. If in doubt, lie low. If too sure of everything, lie low, too. Detour selfish motives.

Is Might Right?

Does Might make Right? Is possession nine out of ten points in the law? These are familiar phrases that some folks have heard and repeated so often they think there must be some truth in them. But there is only a superficial appearance of truth in them—only partially and only on the physical level are they approximate. "I have" doesn't mean the same as "I deserve to have."

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead brings financial opportunities to forge ahead, especially from Nov. 27; also changes to improve relations with family and relatives by changes. Avoid danger: Dec. 10-Jan. 15; Mar. 28-May 18; Aug. 13-Oct. 2.

JACK O' LANTERNS, witches, and the face of your true love seen in a mirror! But wait a minute—before you break your neck trying to walk down the stairs backwards, listen to our Hallowe'en news! All this week, at HERZ you can get rich, spicy pumpkin pies (you know, the kind that take you right back to Grandma's big, sunny kitchen!) for only 29c each. And mind you, it's a regular 35c value. And cake doughnuts for only 23c dozen. And here's something to make the witches hop right off their broomsticks—good old-fashioned molasses taffy for only 25c a pound. At all three HERZ stores, 806 Olive, 512 Locust, and 706 Washington.

ROCKET FLOWERS—isn't that an expressive name? They come from that mysterious, exotic country, Brazil, and have been worked into the shape of miniature Oriental trees that are everlasting. You can get them only at the CHASE FLORAL SHOP, Hotel Chase, ROsedale 2919 or 2500. You'll love their original table pieces, too, and, of course, you'll insist that either Mr. Robert Stock or Mr. Paul Hammond design them personally.

YES, pink gold, and we didn't get the idea out of Alice in Wonderland, either. We got it at ALOE'S, 707 Olive and 537 N. Grand, where we saw how it is made into glasses and how it blends with the color of the skin so that it takes a mighty good Philo Vance to discover that you have any glasses on! We saw Aloe's new Ful-Vue glasses, too, and learned how the styles are designed to suit the contour of your face in a way that is actually flattering. So, if you're one of those sissies who's been putting off getting glasses you need because you think they won't be becoming, you'd better go modern and dash right down to ALOE'S.

YOU can always depend on the younger generation to pick a winner! So we weren't at all surprised to hear that the very new Bar Dresses, which CUNNINGHAM'S are featuring especially in petite misses' sizes are as popular as Joan Crawford! They reach a new high, too, 10 inches from the floor, and can be used equally well as dinner or for the cocktail hour. Scads and scads of 'em at CUNNINGHAM'S from $10.95 to $39.75.

IF YOU really would like your entrance to be as effective as that of the lovely Isolde, herself, then it must be in a mink coat from LEPPERT-ROOS. It isn't without reason that their name on the label of your coat is like the signature of an old master on a manuscript; the quality of their mink and the style of their mink coats have made it so. And the nicest part of all is that you need pay no more for that name. LEPPERT-ROOS mink coats priced from $750.

WE NEVER have believed all that malicious slander about a woman changing her mind so often, but just the same we know any woman would love this chance to be fickle! We're thinking of the tricky reversible robes we saw at the MITZI SHOP, 407 N. Seventh. For instance, if you want an aqua negligee you wear one side; while if you're in a tea-rose mood, you simply wear it on the other side. Of course, there are dozens of color combinations. Only $4.98. And then we saw a night-gown—the loveliest, daintiest thing, right out of a fairy tale! It's a bolero type of Skinner satin with tiny puff sleeves, square neck, lots and lots of genuine "val" lace, and three adorable little velvet bows down the front. Only $4.98 at the MITZI SHOP.

WE'VE often day-dreamed about it, but we never thought it could really happen—to be able to begin at the beginning, and at the beginning of the season, too, and get everything new from lingerie to fur coat! Dresses, Coats, Hats Sports Wear, Lingerie and Accessories—there isn't a thing that your Winter wardrobe covets that isn't marked down, way down. You'd almost be skeptical about it all if you didn't understand that the manufacturers give big concessions just for this one time each year. It's all this week at GARLAND'S.

1. —Dr. Paul S. Achilles of the Psychological Service Center, New York, obtained information from 4527 students from 90 colleges as to their plans for their future vocations and, as reported in Occupations Magazine, he found the brighter students were the ones who were not trusting to luck or chance, but had given careful thought to their plans of life. However, it is encouraging to note that only 12 per cent had given no thought to their future vocations. Nearly half reported that tests of intelligence and traits of personality by psychologists had helped them decide on their vocations.

2. —The whole history of jurisprudence shows that true "laws" are merely crystalizations of what most people have already come to desire. Now and then—especially in modern times with inexpensive mail, newspapers, telegraph, radio, etc.—an organized minority "puts over" a so-called law on a rebellious, unorganized majority—but these are not laws; they are decrees, just like the decrees of dictators and can only be enforced by strong-arm methods. Enacting laws without previously educating the public as to their reasonableness only delays orderly progress.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE
» by WYNN «

For Wednesday, Oct. 30.

YOU can make this day nothing but a scramble of haywire, or you can pick the right thread by careful observation and come through O. K. If in doubt, lie low. If too sure of everything, lie low, too. Detour selfish motives.

Is Might Right?

Does Might make Right? Is possession nine out of ten points in the law? These are familiar phrases that some folks have heard and repeated so often they think there must be some truth in them. But there is only a superficial appearance of truth in them—only partially and only on the physical level are they approximate. "I have" doesn't mean the same as "I deserve to have."

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead brings financial opportunities to forge ahead, especially from Nov. 27; also changes to improve relations with family and relatives by changes. Avoid danger: Dec. 10-Jan. 15; Mar. 29-May 18; Aug. 13-Oct. 2.

Tomorrow.

IF YOU really would like your entrance to be as effective as that of the lovely Isolde, herself, then it must be in a mink coat from LEPPERT-ROOS. It isn't without reason that their name on the label of your coat is like the signature of an old master on a manuscript; the quality of their mink and the style of their mink coats have made it so. And the nicest part of all is that you need pay no more for that name. LEPPERT-ROOS mink coats priced from $750.

WE NEVER have believed all that malicious slander about a woman changing her mind so often, but just the same we know any woman would love this chance to be fickle! We're thinking of the tricky reversible robes we saw at the MITZI SHOP, 407 N. Seventh. For instance, if you want an aqua negligee you wear one side; while if you're in a tea-rose mood, you simply wear it on the other side. Of course, there are dozens of color combinations. Only $4.98. And then we saw a night gown—the loveliest, daintiest thing, right out of a fairy tale! It's a bolero type of Skinner satin with tiny puff sleeves, square neck, lots and lots of genuine "val" lace, and three adorable little velvet bows down the front. Only $4.98 at the MITZI SHOP.

WE'VE often day-dreamed about it, but we never thought it could really happen—to be able to begin at the beginning, and at the beginning of the season, too, and get everything new from lingerie to fur coat! But, Georgiana, after seeing the grand values GARLAND'S are offering in their 38th Anniversary Sale, we believe it can be done even on our emaciated budget! Dresses, Coats, Hats Sports Wear, Lingerie and Accessories—there isn't a thing that your Winter wardrobe covets that isn't marked down, way down. You'd almost be skeptical about it all if you didn't understand that the manufacturers give big concessions just for this one time each year. It's all this week at GARLAND'S.

• • •

"TOP HAT", "Gold-digger", "Sweepstake" . . . these are only three of the amusing bags we saw at STIX, BAER & FULLER, Downstairs Store, for only $1. There are as many styles as Emperor Selassie has titles! Small bags, large bags, pouch bags, envelope bags! Real leathers, real suedes, alligator grains, crepes in colors! And what thrilled our economical soul is that you can afford several of them!

Let's EXPLORE Your MIND

By ALBERT EDWARD WIGGAM, D. Sc.

See Whether His Opinions Agree With Your Own

1.—Dr. Paul S. Achilles of the Psychological Service Center, New York, obtained information from 4527 students from 50 colleges as to their plans for their future vocations and, as reported in Occupations Magazine, he found the brighter students were the ones who were not trusting to luck or chance, but had given careful thought to their plans of life. However, it is encouraging to note that only 12 per cent had given no thought to their future vocations. Nearly half reported that tests of intelligence and traits of personality by psychologists had helped them decide on their vocations.

2.—The whole history of jurisprudence shows that true "laws" are merely crystalizations of what most people have already come to desire. Now and then—especially in modern times with inexpensive mail, newspapers, telegraph, radio, etc.—an organized minority "puts over" a so-called law on a rebellious, unorganized majority—but these are not laws; they are decrees, just like the decrees of dictators and can only be enforced by strong-arm methods. Enacting laws without previously educating the public as to their reasonableness only delays orderly progress.

3.—One of the curious contradictions in our curiously irrational and contradictory human nature, is that many women, and some men, find their highest happiness in being mastered and dominated—in abject submission to some unquestioned authority. Such women want nothing so much as a "lord and master," who makes them tremble when he is displeased, but who smiles on them when they succeed in pleasing him. The constant hazard of rousing his displeasure and the intense hope of giving him pleasure, strange to say, gives them a sense of security which they dare not seek for on their own. To them this is happiness.

Phantom Beau

By Nikki Kaye

THE large bed in the brightly lighted, enormous front room was piled high with coats. The frosted windows threw back a view of furs, overshoes, hats and scarfs scattered over dressers, chairs—even the dressing table was littered with many small powderbags and rouge puffs.

A short, vividly pretty young woman paced up and down the room. She clasped and unclasped her hands. She pushed her blonde hair from her face in frantic impatience. From the closed door could be heard music, the sound of laughter and many young voices.

The door burst open. Jean stood in the center of the room, her eyes dark with terror. The train of her long gown lay in a tragic heap around her feet.

Agnes ran to her. "Jean, my dear, what's wrong? What's wrong? Why aren't you down stairs with the rest of the young folks. Hurry, my dear, the party is already in full swing."

Jean took one tragic look at Agnes and turned away. "Harriet hasn't arrived yet," she said in a stifled voice.

"Harriet? Oh," she laughed. "That's nothing to worry about. I know how fond of each other you two are, but don't let that stand in your way. Harriet will be here, never fear. Now run on down stairs."

• • •

"BUT you don't understand, Agnes. Oh heavens, I've got to tell somebody. Don't you remember? Harriet told you about it, didn't she? Don't you remember our plan last year: Well, what am I going to do? How can I face them? What can I say? Oh, I wish I hadn't been such a jealous fool."

Agnes looked up suddenly. "Do you mean that prank you and Harriet were planning on last year? Why? I didn't think you'd go through with anything like that. You're too sensible a girl for such a thing."

"Agnes," Jean said slowly, "you don't know what it is to live with sisters like mine. You and Harriet—well, after all she was still a kid in college when you got married. But my sisters—well, they're both young, beautiful, and talented. They're not serious-minded. They've always been very popular. The telephone was always ringing for them. The house was always filled with their friends. Men were always talking about them to me. They got flowers, candy, everything.

"It isn't that I minded, Agnes, truly I didn't. I love my work. I love being a school teacher. It's just their attitude toward me. You know, they thought me funny, different in some way, and they always poked fun at me. I knew that if I could get someone to telephone me, write letters, do something, that they'd stop worrying me."

"I understand," said Agnes. She patted Jean's shoulder. "So that's why you and Harriet decided on the beau plan, isn't it?"

Jean nodded.

"Tell me the whole thing," Agnes asked.

• • •

"WELL, you see, we had it all planned. That time I took the trip to New York I was to come back and pretend I had a sweetheart. You know, describe someone to the family, tell them where he took me and everything. Then I was to receive letters from New York.

"Harriet has a friend who lives there and she was to arrange for this person to receive the mail at his address. The family would see the letters and would stop bothering me. I gave Harriet $50 and she was to send me telegrams, telephone me, send me flowers and candy at intervals."

"Did she?"

"Oh, yes. I had a splendid time. I wrote the craziest sort of letters because I knew only Harriet would read them anyway. I got the letters, telegrams, even the candy and flowers. In fact, I got flowers every week. We even exchanged photographs. I don't know where Harriet ever got the picture she sent of this fictitious man, but it was exceptionally pleasing. It was grand fun, all this winter, writing to someone . . . but now . . . now . . ."

Jean threw herself on the bed and sobbed. "Everyone in the family invited someone for the Hallowe'en party, and of course I had to do it, too. I thought sure Harriet would send a wire or something, letting me know she or he couldn't come. But she isn't here yet, and I'm supposed to be waiting for a man that I know doesn't even exist.

Agnes leaned over Jean and smoothed her forehead. Suddenly th door burst open and Harriet, full of furs, packages, and flowers, ran into the room.

Jean sat up. Her eyes were glassy. She shook with rage. "Harriet! How could you! Look at this mess you've let me in. Why didn't you send a wire, telephone, do something."

Harriet stared. "What in heaven's name are you talking about?"

Jean jumped up. "What? What? All winter long you've been writing me telegraphing, sending flowers, candy, and when I invited you to the party, you didn't even have sense enough to send a wire refusing the invitation."

"Oh, my dear. I had forgotten all about it. Truly I had. I sent you Jack Delton's name and address, and then I forgot to tell him about it. Here's your $50, darling. Next year we'll work the plan."

"But who's been sending the flowers, and the letters?"

"Why, I suppose Jack has. That must have been his voice I heard as I raced up the stairs. I thought I recognized it. Isn't it exciting? Come along, powder your face. What are you shaking about?"

"Because in his last letter he proposed to me and I . . . I accepted!"

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

FATHER OF 72—Jacob Hunter's record, which ranks him with the great fathers of his state, still lives in the oral traditions of his descendants. The old patriarch, who attained to the age of five score and six, was married five times and was the father of 72 children. To the last, he preserved a full set of teeth, and was a picture of rugged health. The respective ages of his children were so widely spread, that some of the brothers were strangers to one another. It was impossible to gauge the number of Hunter's descendants surviving to the present day, but they are undoubtedly very numerous.

We always claim that our own rules for long life were more beneficial and practical: (1) Never carry a bundle by the string. (2) Count your fingers after shaking hands with a Philadelphia lawyer. (3) Never sleep with the windows open when you are in a submarine. (4) Keep your feet dry when taking a bath.

37 NATIONS LINED UP IN BOYCOTT ON ITALY

Canada, Irish Free State, Argentina and Five Other Countries Accept Economic Sanctions Voted by the League.

STARTING DATE TO BE FIXED TOMORROW

General View Is That 'Buy Nothing' Program and Bar on Exports Will Be in Operation by Nov. 15 at Latest.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 30.—Thirty-seven countries are united today in the League of Nations' economic boycott campaign against Italy in the effort to halt the Fascist warfare against Ethiopia.

The buy-nothing-from-Italy program was strengthened by the addition of eight countries—Canada, the Irish Free State, Argentina, China, Cuba, Siam, Portugal and Venezuela. They also agreed not to export certain key war products to Italy.

The Irish Free State and France also enrolled themselves in the project of mutual assistance, under which the states are pledged to help one another if any of their number suffers as the result of the boycott. This list now totals 20.

Arms Embargo by 41 Nations.

States accepting the arms embargo against Italy now number 41, today's additions being Peru and Canada. Thirty-seven have announced their readiness to apply financial sanctions, cutting off their credit to Italy.

Still missing from the financial sanctions list, the buy-nothing program and agreement not to export by products to Italy are 19 states of the League. Fifteen have not yet replied as to whether they will join the arms embargo.

The Foreign Minister of the Netherlands, A. C. D. De Graeff, proposed today that the League sanctions committee start the economic boycott Nov. 9.

League Session Tomorrow.

Representatives of 52 nations composing the League general staff for sanctions will m et tomorrow to set the date for enforcing the boycott. The general view was that it would be in operation by Nov. 15 at the latest.

After establishing the date for imposing economic sanctions, the League still will have to set up machinery for supervision of execution of the campiagn, and to meet unforeseen difficulties. League statesmen said they realized that never before had a world-wide effort been made to isolate a warmaking nation and that the task might develop unexpected complications. These statesmen expressed hope that by the relentless pressure of the sanctions process, Mussolini's ability to wage war in Ethiopia eventually would be reduced to such an extent that peace negotiations would begin.

Laval Trying to Guard Against "Irritation" in Peace Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Premier Pierre Laval, a reliable source said today, has told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate he would seek to weaken the imposition of punitive measures on Italy as much as possible to preclude acts "likely to cause irritation" in peace negotiations.

French and British foreign affairs experts achieved considerable progress in sifting the elements of a possible compromise acceptable to all parties, authoritative informants said.

"Leasing" of Southern Ethiopian territory to Italian Somaliland was reported reliably to be under consideration at Paris and Rome. This would avoid the term "protectorate" in any peaceful settlement of the Italian-Ethiopian conflict.

Foreign office experts, some sources said, were working separately in Paris and London for "solutions likely to satisfy part of the Italian desires while safeguarding the principle of Ethiopian integrity under the aegis of the League of Nations."

"Pertinax," political writer, reported Laval gave formal assurance the army and the air force, as well as the navy, would be sent to the assistance of Britain in case of an unprovoked attack on that nation. Premier Laval last Saturday, said a commentator, sent to London a note clearing up France's previous
